U. S. Again Turns Down 2-Way Talk With Russia

Reply to Stalin's New Overture Says Issues Mentioned Are Not Bilateral

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

For the second time in a week the State Department made it plain yesterday that the United States would not deal with Russia behind the back of any other country.

This time the reminder was prompted by Josef Stalin's letter to Henry Wallace, listing some of the subjects Russia would like to discuss with the United States.

Reply Less Chilly

The response yesterday was somewhat less chilly than last week when President Truman coldly rejected Foreign Minister Molotov's broadcast overture for Soviet-American discussions.

It went so far as to use the word "encouraging" to describe some of Stalin's sentiments. But it was just as firm as previous statements in ruling out bilateral talks on issues such as Germany, which affect other countries.

It said, in effect, that if Stalin wanted to show his good will he could help to settle stalemates in the United Nations or other "established bodies." One official added that Stalin could also show it right in Moscow, where Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith has been rebuffed for more than a year in trying to settle a long list of problems involving American citizenship claims, cultural relations and embassy operations.

Smith may renew his efforts when he returns to Moscow from his vacation next week. The questions on his list do not affect other countries at all, yet they have been stalemated as completely as the broader differences mentioned in the Stalin letter and in yesterday's official statement.

Text of Statement

This is what the State Department said, in a press release issued after a morning of hurried consultations:

"The department has seen the press reports of a statement by Premier Stalin in response to an 'open letter' from Mr. Wallace.

"Premier Stalin's opinion that a peaceful settlement of outstanding problems is possible and necessary in the interests of a general peace is encouraging, but the specific issues listed in Premier Stalin's statement are not bilateral issues between this country and the Soviet Union.

"They are of intimate and compelling interest to many countries and have been under negotiation for the past two years or more in bodies where other countries were represented, such as the United Nations and the Council of Foreign Ministers.

"For example, the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission and its subcommittees have held over 200 meetings and the commission just yesterday reported its inability to reach an agreement because of the adamant opposition of two of its

Truman Suggests U. S. Embassies Copy White House

President Truman suggested yesterday that American embassies throughout the world ought to be built like the White House.

In this way, he explained, a United States citizen visiting his embassy abroad "will see the home of the President in replica."

The Chief Executive threw out the idea at the White House as he received delegates to the third National Conference on Citizenship, now in progress here.

"Sometime I hope they may get that done," Mr. Truman added.

Hilda's a Trouper . . .

INJURED CIRCUS GIRL RETURNS—Hilda Alzana was back on the circus lot yesterday. The spunky, 16-year-old artist of the high wire was not in costume, however. She wore a brace on her back and used a cane—the result of a 60-foot fall from the wire during a performance in Miami November 19. It will be a long time before Hilda hears the acclaim of the crowds again, but the fall has not diminished her love for the circus. She'll travel with the "Big Top" until she's able to work again. Brain Tumor Detected With New Machine

Nature of Disorder Diagnosed by Means Of Recorded Reflexes

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Perfection of a reflex-recording machine to detect brain tumors in 30 minutes without surgery was reported here yesterday to an assembly of the Nation's mental health specialists.

Dr. Gantt

The sensitive instrument could also be readily adapted to test a person's degree of drunkenness, with results more "significant" than those of blood analysis, said its inventor, a noted Baltimore psychiatrist.

The new, unnamed machine was described at a technical session of the 104th annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association by its originator, Dr. W. Horsley Gantt.

Dr. Gantt, associate professor of psychiatry at Johns Hopkins University, achieved Nation-wide recognition in 1946 when he was given the Lasker Award by the National Committee for Mental Hygiene for "outstanding contributions to the study of mental conditions."

The recording machine, said Dr. Gantt, was evolved out of 10 years of research in quest of a method "to evaluate behavior under rigidly controlled conditions." Basically, it records a person's reflex to slight electric shocks.

By extensive testing, Dr. Gantt stated, he had devised a set of standards of responses, ranging in 10 steps from the normally healthy mind to the imbecile. Chiefly, he said, it is used to differentiate or-

Fact Finders Appointed in Plione Dispute

Goldsborough Extends Railroad No-Strike Order Until May 29

A special inquiry board was established by President Truman yesterday to investigate the threatened strike of CIO Long Lines telephone workers.

The move drew a quick protest from the Long-Lines department of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., against which the American Telephone Workers Union threatens to strike.

The President created the fact-finding board under procedure laid down by the Taft-Hartley law. His executive order stated that the dispute threatens to result in a work stoppage "imperiling national health and safety."

Bartlett T. Miller, vice president of A. T. & T.'s Long Lines department, issued a statement saying the company is "wholly at a loss to understand" the President's order.

"The company's opinion was not sought," he said. "The employes affected comprise less than 5 per cent in the telephone communications industry and we find it difficult to believe that any emergency exists that imperils the national health and safety.

"Neither the union nor the company had broken off negotiations

Sits Up in Bed and Talks

5-Year-Old Boy Falls 50 Feet From Klingle Bridge and Lives

Luck was working overtime—again—for 5-year-old Dwight E. Chadbourn yesterday when he tumbled 50 feet from the Klingle Bridge.

Dwight, whose home is at 2924 Macomb st. nw., was taken to Children's Hospital. No broken bones were apparent, but X-rays were taken to determine whether he may have suffered a fractured skull.

Although the boy's mother, Mrs. Philip S. Chadbourn, expressed fears her son may have suffered a skull fracture, he gave no signs of one. Several hours after his fall he was sitting up in his hospital bed and talking to his parents.

It was the boy's second miraculous escape from death. About a year ago, when his family lived at Stuart, Fla., the boy fell from the family car while it was zipping along at 40 miles an hour. He escaped with nothing more serious than scratches.

Yesterday's accident happened at about 11:15 a. m. on the west side of the bridge, about 45 feet from the north end.

Police said the boy was playing with two other children, Stephen McCarty, 4, and Jeffery Hatch, 4, both of 3220 Connecticut ave. nw.

Police believe the Chadbourn boy climbed to a bench and then onto a ledge about a foot and a half wide. Apparently he leaned

Coal Talks Stall Just After Start

Lewis, Operators Disagree on Contract Drafting; Contempt Charge Is Dropped

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Soft-coal contract talks last night headed for a breakdown—which might mean a new strike—just a few hours after they began at the Shoreham Hotel.

The talks stalled after a clash between the Nation's mine operators and the United Mine Workers president—John L. Lewis—over who is going to have a voice in drafting the new wage-hour contract. There seemed no way to keep the bargaining going, unless Lewis or the operators gave in.

[The Associated Press said that at a meeting last night the operators had decided to remain firm against what one of them termed Lewis' effort to dictate who should represent employers in contract talks.—Editor's Note.]

Showdown Expected Today

The showdown probably will come this morning.

Shortly before the clash, the Justice Department dropped its charge of civil contempt of court against Lewis and the UMW. This was filed several weeks ago when the miners took too long—the department said—to call off the spring strike after Justice T. Alan Goldsborough ordered it stopped.

Justice Goldsborough allowed the civil contempt charge to be dropped without comment. But when Assistant Attorney General H. Graham Morison went on to ask Goldsborough to lift the anti-strike injunction—which is still in force—the justice balked.

Asks for "Good Reason"

"You've got to give me a good reason for that, sir," said Goldsborough.

Morison recalled that when Lewis and Ezra Van Horn, operator spokesman, split over the miners' pension plan, the miners walked out, on March 15. In a few weeks the Nation was suffering from a lack of coal, and the Government asked the court to order the miners back to work. All the Government wanted, said Morison, was to break the strike and get the mines to working. Now that has been done, he added, the public purpose has been achieved, and a lawsuit has been started to settle the row over the pensions. The Justice Department does not think the miners would strike again over the pensions, even if they lost the lawsuit. So there is no reason to keep the injunction.

Goldsborough said he didn't think there was any force in what Morison said, and that the pension issue was a long way from being settled, but that he would think over Morison's motion, and give a ruling later.

Seeks to Upset "Deal"

While the strike was on, Lewis made a deal with Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), the public trustee on the pension board, for $100 a month for miners over 62 who worked in the pits 20 years or more. Van Horn went to court to upset this deal, and the case has yet to be tried.

The court hearing yesterday did not affect the fines Goldsborough slapped on the miners for criminal contempt of court—$20,000 for

House Beats Effort to Kill Mundt Bill

Weakening Riders Also Shouted Down; GOP Leaders Aim At Passage Today

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

One effort to kill the Mundt-Nixon anti-Communist bill and another to soften its terms were shouted down by the House yesterday.

House Republican leaders then got behind an Un-American Activities Committee drive to pass the sweeping Communist control measure before nightfall today.

The bill imposes heavy fines and jail sentences for trying to set up a foreign-controlled totalitarian dictatorship in this country, without technically outlawing the Communist Party.

"Outlaw" Angle Debated

The party would be required to register its officers and members and give annual financial accounting to the Justice Department, however. Communist-front organizations would be required to register without filing the names of members.

Communists would be denied passports, and could not hold a nonelective Government job. Communist propaganda would have to be labeled as such.

The debate over whether the bill "outlaws" the Communist Party—highlighted in the clash between Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Harold E. Stassen in Oregon Monday night—meanwhile continued in the House. Stassen said the bill would outlaw the party and Dewey said it wouldn't.

Calls Bill Confused

Representative William J. Miller (R., Conn.), in moving to kill it, cited the failure of the two Republican candidates to agree on what it does.

Miller said even the Un-American Activities Committee was uncertain what it wanted to do and was constantly revising the measure.

Miller's motion was rejected by a loud voice vote after Representative Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif.) spoke against it. He said the bill strikes "at the subversive activities of communism in the United States and not at communism as an idea."

Nixon said both Stassen and Dewey were for the bill and later told reporters: "The winner of that debate was the Mundt bill."

With managers of the measure in the saddle, only technical amendments acceptable to the committee were approved.

Representative Chet Holifield (R., Calif.) tried to modify the preamble which terms the Communist movement "a clear and present danger to the security of the United States." He wanted to make it read "potential danger."

But the House shouted that down, too. Holifield said he agreed with Governor Dewey that "you can't kill an idea with a law." He said he intended later to ask the House to call on the Attorney General for a report on the 27 laws now dealing with communism.

Representative Vito Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y.), opposition manager, said the bill substituted legislative determination of guilt for judicial determination, and "challenged" Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) to submit the bill to

D. C. Woman Flays Leadership On UPWA Convention Floor

Mrs. Jean Clements Says Renunciation of Reds Is Demanded

Atlantic City, N. J., May 18 (AP).—The first open opposition to the leadership of the CIO United Public Workers was voiced today on the floor of the union's convention by Mrs. Jean C. Clements of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Clements said a "legitimate opposition movement has sprung up" within the union to have the Public Workers denounce communism and oppose the third party.

"I hope some day the union will be given back to the people for whom it was created," Mrs. Clements said in criticism of the officers' report to the convention.

"I have no quarrel with the gains in wages during the past two years," she said. "I heard nothing in the report about how many members we have lost, how many there are to organize, and how many we have missed."

Mrs. Clement said, "If the officers of the union had signed the anti-Communist affidavits, the members would have had some protection against red-baiting charges."

Abram Flaxer of New York, union president, said yesterday he was opposed to signing the affidavits required by the Taft-Hartley Act as a matter of principle.

Mrs. Clement is one of three delegates on the floor representing an opposition group within the union. The group claims "between 5000 and 10,000" adherents. The union claims a membership of 86,000.

Supreme Court Gets NMU Plea to Void Taft-Hartley Clause

By the United Press

Labor's fight against the non-Communist affidavit requirement of the Taft-Hartley law reached the Supreme Court yesterday.

The National Maritime Union (CIO) asked the high court to void the requirement of non-Communist oaths by officials of unions which want to use machinery of the National Labor Relations Board. The requirement was upheld by a 2 to 1 vote of a special Federal Court here several weeks ago.

The union also asked the court to rule on constitutionality of the law's requirement that unions file financial statements with the board.

In addition, it petitioned the court for an injunction which would prevent the NLRB from conducting any elections in its field without putting the NMU on the ballots.

The appeal said the Justice Department and a majority of the court had conceded that the Communist Party was a legal party, and

Old City Section Of Jerusalem Also Taken Over; Fierce Battle Shaping Up

Cairo, Egypt, May 18 (U.P.).—King Abdullah's Arab Legion marched into hallowed Bethlehem and the Old City area of Jerusalem today. A fight between Arab and Jewish forces for the entire Holy City seemed imminent.

An official Trans-Jordan announcement of the entry into Jerusalem said the Arabs, who now control all approaches to the city, had moved up artillery in preparation for a bombardment of Jewish areas.

The tough Legionnaires, crack fighting force of the Arab world, moved into a police post in central Bethlehem close to the Holy Church of the Nativity.

Closing in from North

After securing their position, the Legionnaires marched 5 miles northward into the Jewish quarter of the Old City area of Jerusalem, the Trans-Jordan government announced tonight in Amman.

Advance units of the main Arab Legion forces which entered Palestine were dug in only 6 miles north of Jerusalem, and Amman said the Legionnaires were now closing in on the north side of the city.

Fierce fighting was in progress between Arabs and Jews in the western or modern part of Jerusalem proper.

Dispatches from Arab capitals indicated that King Abdullah hopes soon to capture the entire City of Jerusalem.

[An Associated Press dispatch by Daniel De Luce, from within the Old City, said King Abdullah's well-entrenched desert fighters had let go a roaring mortar fire which appeared to be loosening the Jewish grip on the rest of the city.]

Former Military Police

A United Press Amman dispatch said the Legionnaires now just north of the city might soon be coming up against areas which the Jewish Haganah troops seized last weekend, when the British Palestine mandate ended.

Both Bethlehem and Jerusalem are in what would have been an international neutral zone under the United Nations partition plan for Palestine.

Two sections of the Arab Legion entered Jerusalem in the movement from Bethlehem and occupied positions in the Jewish quarter, Amman said.

It was indicated that these legionnaires were among the men

Tel Aviv Bus Station Bombed; Many Dead

Tel Aviv, Israel, May 18 (AP).—A direct bomb hit smashed a mid-city Tel Aviv bus station at the home rush hour tonight and the dead were expected to reach at least 20.

[The United Press reported 41 persons were killed and 60 wounded in the bombing. Women and children were among the casualties, it said.]

It was the third raid today and the worst by far in four days of successive air assaults. The dead included women and children.

In Haifa, Jewish sources said Haganah fighters forced the unconditional surrender of Arabs at Acre, where 4000 Arabs had been reported surrounded.

The Haifa informant said the surrender came after three days of bitter street fighting. Acre, just outside the territory of Israel, is an important communications link with the northern frontier. The city is in territory that would have been Arab under the U. N. partition plan.

Irgun Zvai Leumi, one of the Jews' secondary fighting forces, claimed tonight its soldiers were pressing an attack on Ramle, an Arab city 12 miles from here on the Tel Aviv-Jerusalem highway. An Irgun communique said Arab casualties at Ramle were in the hundreds and that Iraqi and Trans-Jordan troops defending the city had appealed for reinforcements.

Civilians in Tel Aviv said a fighter bomber which bore Egyptian green markings dived five times to within a thousand feet of the crowded square. Each time it loosed a single fragmentation bomb.

Royall Stays Death of Nazi War Criminals

Intervenes for 17 When High Court Declines to Act

Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall last night stayed the executions of 17 German war criminals doomed to die Thursday for complicity in the massacre of unarmed American prisoners during the Battle of the Bulge.

Royall intervened after the United States Supreme Court refused, by a 4-to-4 tie vote, to consider the appeals of the condemned men and of 55 other Germans sentenced to prison for their part in the massacre.

The prisoners charged, through an American attorney who defended them, that they were tricked and tortured into confessing their guilt.

"In view of the serious allegations contained in the petition of the defendants," the Army announced, "Secretary Royall has directed Gen. (Lucius D.) Clay to stay execution of all 17 sentences involving death until General Clay has fully and carefully investigated all allegations in the petition."

Willis M. Everett, jr., Atlanta, Ga., former Army officer who defended the group at Dachau, filed the petition. He accused the United States prosecution team of using "sham" courts, threats and third degree methods to obtain confessions from the prisoners.

British Labor To Call Halt on Nationalizing

Wages, Tax Program Giving Workers More May Be Substituted

Scarborough, England, May 18 (AP).—Cabinet and high political sources indicated today that the Labor government is about to call a halt to industrial nationalization. A wages and tax program to give the workers a larger share of the national income may be substituted.

Still undecided, however, was whether the iron and steel industry would be taken over and operated by a government board as are the nation's coal mines.

Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison, addressing the Labor Party's forty-seventh annual conference here today, made it plain that political considerations were behind the government's go-slow intentions.

Emanuel Shinwell, the party chairman and War Minister, said that "nationalization is about finished," but the question of nationalization of iron and steel "is all up in the air."

The new line of stressing redistribution of wealth was suggested by Hugh Dalton, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, in discussing the Government's recent one-time-only capital levy, which takes 10 to 50 per cent of unearned income from all investors who netted more than £2000 ($8000) last year.

Bringing down prices is another major Government objective, he said. He hinted that the threat of nationalization could be used to bring prices down in industries where profits are excessive.

Morrison advised the party to go slow on nationalization and consolidate its gains.

Aneurin Bevan, Health Minister, was loudly applauded, however, when he spoke for nationalization of the steel industry. He declared "steel in private hands is the chief limiting factor on British production."

Two Colonels Squabble Over Absentee Command of Guard

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

The District National Guard has one too many commanders and thereby hangs a squabble now reposing in the White House.

Normally the question of who commands the Guard here is simple. Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox is head man. When he went to Europe last month on a business trip, two colonels advanced themselves to the top.

The first of these is Col. Peyton G. Nevitt, adjutant general of the Guard and its senior staff officer. Nevitt bases his claim to the command on an order issued last year, signed by himself "by order of General Cox," designating him as the officer in command during absences of the commanding general.

The other contender is Col. LeRoy S. Mann, commanding officer of the 260th Anti-Aircraft Artillery Group and senior line officer of the Guard. Mann's position is that his date of rank precedes Nevitt's, and therefore he outranks him and should be commander.

Colonel Nevitt vigorously attacks this claim. He says that he received his rank on February 6, 1943, in the Army of the United States and is still on active duty, and was made a colonel as adju-

New District Postmaster Collects Stamps, Likes History, Golf, Garden; No Politician

Roy M. North, 58, who yesterday was nominated to be the District Postmaster, brings to mind the old gag about a mailman taking a walk on his day off—North's hobby is stamp collecting!

North is modest about his hobby—"I've only a small collection," he said, "mainly covers given me by friends—but I do get real enjoyment from it."

The Washington Post
ROY M. NORTH
38 Years in Postal Service

The appointee came to Washington in 1933 at the behest of a fellow-philatelist, Franklin D. Roosevelt, who nominated him for deputy Third Assistant Postmaster General in that year—a post which he has held since.

Another hobby is history. "Now if the Confederates had maintained a drive to occupy those ridges at Gettysburg after the first day . . ." he conjectures in his Southern (born near Warm Spring, Ga.) accent—"things might have been different."

Of medium height—5 feet 10 inches—North's stocky 185-pound frame is a testimonial of prowess at the dinner table.

"I particularly like highly seasoned, Latin-type foods," he said. "And I was really able to indulge that liking during several trips I've made in the way of business to Central and South America."

For exercise, he golfs or gardens—the latter by "remote control" as North phrased it. Living at 2501 Calvert st. nw., he maintains a garden at the Maryland Agricultural Farm, a Federal-community project in Bethesda.

The District postmaster-designate is no politician. "Never was in politics in my life," he said emphatically.

The postal service has been his career ever since his school days at Emory College (now university) in Atlanta, Ga.

He started as a railway mail clerk and went on to hold various inspectorships, to become a postal auditor and to engage in special surveys of the service.

Moderately fond of the theater, North prefers to spend his evenings listening to his wife, Mona, play the violin, accompanied by their daughter, Ramona, 20, at the piano. Another daughter, Janis, 15, attends Woodrow Wilson High School.

North is a member of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church. Fraternally he belongs to Omicron Delta Kappa. Howard Dutkin.

U. S. Charges Defamation in Note to Slavs

Belgrade, May 18 (NYHT).—The American Embassy sent a note tonight to the Yugoslav Foreign Office asking correction of the "defamatory imputations" published in the Belgrade press to the effect that Lieut. Col. Chester M. Statton, of the American Military Attache's office, had knowingly employed a Chetnik war criminal and had concealed him from the police.

Meanwhile, in Chachak people's court Ilija Mangovich, described as a "Chetnik cut-throat," formerly employed as a servant in Colonel Stratton's household, was sentenced to death. In his summation the public prosecutor again charged that Colonel Stratton and Warrant Officer Rene LaPlante, who originally hired Mangovich, had known of his Chetnik background and were aware he was living in Belgrade illegally.

The American note indignantly denied Colonel Stratton knew anything of Mangivich's war record. It observed that the public prosecutor admitted Mangovich had been freed by general amnesty and the embassy could hardly be reproached for hiring amnestied persons.

Meanwhile, the Communist Party announced today the execution of 10 former high government officials found guilty in Ljubljana of espionage. They included Oscar Juranich, general secretary of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs; Stane Oswald, assistant Minister of Industry, and Branko Dil, chief inspector of the economic control commission of Slovenia. All had been accused of working for the Gestapo while interned at Dachau.

Communism Won Sergeant, Not the Girl, Moscow Says

MOSCOW INTERLUDE—Galina (Galya) Danaeva Biconish, described by the State Department as an experienced and beautiful Soviet agent, is shown with her American husband, Sergt. John Biconish of Binghamton, N. Y., the night of their marriage. This candid shot, in Biconish's quarters in the American House, Moscow, was taken on their wedding night in December, 1945, by an Army photographer now living in Washington. "Galya" is accused by the State Department of seducing 21-year-old Sergt. James M. McMillin into deserting his Moscow station after her GI husband had been transferred to Fort Riley, Kans.

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Communism—not Cupid—lured Sergt. James M. McMillin into deserting his Army post with the United States Embassy in Moscow, the Russian press and radio insisted yesterday.

Protest against capitalism—not passion for a lovely Soviet agent—led the 21-year-old cryptographer to run off on the eve of his return to the United States after two years' service at the embassy, Russian commentators declared.

The Russian version of the incident—which the State Department blames on the machinations of a seductive Soviet spy—is that Sergeant McMillin quit his post with the United States Military Attache and refused to go back to the United States "as a protest against the anti-Soviet policy of capitalists who are presently ruling America."

The Moscow City Soviet—according to Associated Press—released a copy of a letter purportedly sent by young McMillin to the Moscow mayor and to the United States Embassy there.

The letter is quoted as stating that the Boulder, Colo., youth intends to remain in the USSR as a "protest," and adds:

"Living in the United States, I did not think there existed a system of government such as exists here in the Soviet Union, in which the common man is looked after and which is directed towards constant improvement of the mode of life and culture of the people.

"The future belongs to this country. Obviously, it was long ago clear to the capitalists that such a political system, where everything belongs to the people, presented a great peril to them. Only this can explain the ferocious attacks on this country by American capitalists."

The letter did not mention Galina Danaeva Biconish, Russian wife of Tech. Sergt. John Biconish, now stationed at Fort Riley, Kans. "Galya," as she was called by embassy personnel, took up with McMillin after Biconish was transferred back to the States in September, 1946. It was she, an "experienced" agent, who entranced McMillin into deserting, according to the State Department.

Two friends of McMillin, who served with him at the embassy, yesterday backed up the State Department in pish-tushing Soviet claims that Russia's way of life rather than the glamorous "Galya" had inspired McMillin's desertion.

Paul F. Beatley, 21, of Landover Hills, Md., a former roommate, said there was no doubt that if anything, Jimmy McMillin was anti-Communist in his thinking, but completely infatuated with the gorgeous "Galya." Alex Timm, 23, of Passaic, N. J., another former buddy, supported this belief.

Chinese Reds Seize Hankow Supply Base

Nanking, May 18 (AP).—Gen. Lin Po-cheng, Communist scourge of Central China, won a major victory today in the rich Han River Valley, which supplies food to the big government base of Hankow.

He captured Laohokow, with its huge stores of food and gasoline, and thereby cut Han River traffic to Hankow, 200 airline miles southeast.

With possibly 25,000 soldiers at his back, Liu was free to strike south to the Yangtze River lifeline of Central China—or westward into Szechwan Province, with the wartime capital of Chungking.

Reports from Central China said the way to the Szechwan border, about 100 mountainous miles southwest of Laohokow, was undefended. The Communists have long been rumored to be planning a Szechwan invasion.

The government's official military news agency announced the loss of Laohokow, which also was a concentration point for foreign missionaries fleeing the war zone.

The official account asserted the garrison inflicted more than 5000 casualties on Liu's forces before falling back.

Peiping reported 2000 Communist raiders attempted to capture a Peiping suburb, but were driven off.

U. S. Relief Unit Flies Supplies to Mukden

Peiping, China, May 18 (U.P.)—The United States China Relief Mission, fighting hunger in Mukden, flew 319 tons of farm supplies to the Communist-encircled Manchurian capital today.

Nineteen tons of machinery and 300 tons of seed left here by plane to assure a plentiful autumn harvest. Mukden's last food stocks were expected to be exhausted this summer, however.

Police Station Vending Machine Gets Slugs

Dixon, Ill., May 18 (AP).—A driver for a soft drink concern, Earl Webb, told the police chief he is going to remove one of his automatic vending machines because of losses.

The cash box is short some nickels and a number of slugs have been found, Webb told Chief Harry Fischer.

Greeks Quiz Reds in Polk Slaying

Athens, May 18 (U.P.)—Greek troops killed 103 guerillas and captured 83 in an all-night battle yesterday and today near the Bulgarian border, the general staff announced.

Simultaneously, Athens newspapers reported that several "known pro-Communists" had been arrested by security police for questioning in the murder of CBS Correspondent George Polk. Polk's bullet-torn body was found Sunday in Salonika harbor.

The general staff communique said Greek forces had defeated 2000 guerillas near the northeastern Greek town of Papades, north of Drama and less than 20 miles from Bulgaria. Three guerilla leaders were killed in the encounter, and Greek troops were still pursuing remnants of the rebel force today, the announcement said.

Other reports said the Greek air force had knocked out two guerilla artillery units.

The Public Order Ministry announced today that eight alleged Communists have been arrested for the May Day assassination of Justice Minister Christos Ladas.

Anti-Red Bill Riders Beaten

Attorney General Clark for an opinion on its constitutionality.

Halleck said every member should determine the constitutional question for himself.

"I know this," said Halleck, "we're dealing with a situation that needs to be met."

Nixon said Clark told the committee present laws on the subject are inadequate. He said Clark, without indorsing the Mundt bill, said additional legislation would be of assistance to him.

Mrs. Douglas Assails Bill

The Democratic Congresswomen were among the bitter critics of the measure. Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas (D., Calif.) said the bill would make a hundred Communists for every one jailed, but conceded the bill would pass.

Representative Mary T. Norton (D., N. J.) said the law may be used against labor organizations. Mrs. Norton quoted a telegram from the Most Rev. Francis J. Haas, Catholic Bishop of Grand Rapids, Mich., terming the measure "potentially destructive to the civil rights of all Americans."

Representative E. E. Cox (D., Ga.) said he did not think the Bishop spoke for the Catholic church on the bill.

members—the Soviet Union and the Ukraine—to proposals which were acceptable to the other nine nations represented on the commission.

"A similar situation exists with regard to other issues mentioned in Premier Stalin's statement."

Generally officials here were unimpressed with the Stalin-Wallace exchange. They said they had seen it all before, notably in Stalin's interview with Harold Stassen last year, in his previous written interview with Alexander Werth of the London Sunday Times, and in other carefully timed protestations by the Soviet leaders.

The most that officials could see in the Stalin letter was a sign that he wants to cool off the international temperature. Secretary Marshall has taken an unprovocative tone in his statements about Russia, as if he, too, wanted to see the tension eased.

To this extent the United States and Russia seemed to want the same thing, but official Washington doubted that a real change in Soviet policy was impending, or that the two countries had been brought any closer by the events of the past week.

Comment on Hill

Comment on Capitol Hill was equally skeptical. Senator Brien MacMahon (D., Conn.) thought there was nothing in the Stalin letter but an "implementation of Russian policy." Senator Owen Brewster (R., Maine) suggested that Wallace had been violating the Logan Act of 1799, which forbids American private citizens to conduct negotiations with foreign leaders.

Representative Walter M. Judd (R., Minn.) found Stalin's proposal "loaded with jokers," but thought President Truman "ought to call Stalin" on it and point out the inconsistencies in it.

Neither in the Molotov broadcast nor the Stalin letter, nor in the American statements replying to them, was there any mention of the Soviet-American questions on which Ambassador Smith has been beating his head against a Soviet stone wall.

Ambassador's Problems

Here are some of the problems on which Smith and other American negotiators have been getting precisely nowhere:

LEND-LEASE SETTLEMENT: The United States sent Russia 11 billion dollars' worth of lend-lease goods in the common war effort. Remnants of these vast quantities were never destroyed or used up in the war, and the United States wants them back or wants to be paid for them at fair valuation. Eight tankers were returned after long efforts, but 87 American merchant ships still remain in Russian hands. The negotiations took a momentary spurt when Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin arrived in Washington last year with new instructions from home, but since then they have dragged and no settlement is in sight.

AMERICAN CITIZENS IN RUSSIA: At least 1500 persons in the Soviet Union claim American citizenship and want to come to this country; at least 150 of these are regarded at the State Department as bona fide citizens. Yet the Soviet government refuses to let these people come to Moscow to prove their citizenship and file applications with the American Embassy.

SOVIET WIVES OF AMERICANS: About 200 American husbands want to bring their Soviet wives to this country. The Soviet government, true to Russian traditions going back to the days of the early Czars, regards these women as Soviet citizens and stubbornly refuses to let them leave.

CULTURAL EXCHANGE: The United States has tried ever since the war to encourage exchanges of students, scholars, teachers and doctors between the two countries. These efforts, constantly ignored or rebuffed by the Soviet authorities, are now at a virtual standstill because of the new decree making it more dangerous than ever for an unofficial Soviet citizen to talk to a foreigner.

CLAIMS OF U. S. NATIONALS: Many American citizens, businessmen and others, claim compensation for property in the Soviet-occupied areas of eastern Europe. The Soviet government has been unwilling even to talk about these claims.

EMBASSY OPERATIONS: The American Embassy in Moscow has tried since the end of the war, and tried in vain, to get added housing space for its staff of 100 and its 43 dependents in Moscow. Last year the Soviet government added to the troubles of Embassy employes by setting an arbitrary limit on the food and other supplies they could import duty-free from home. The limit is no bigger for an embassy of 100 than for one of 10 persons. The duty imposed ranges from 100 to 500 per cent on the value of the goods. The struggle is made harder for Embassy employes because they have to buy non-imported food from the Russian "commercial shops," where prices are fiendish even by American standards, and at a new rate of exchange of only eight rubles for a dollar instead of the previous rate of twelve.

Other Headaches

These are only a few of the issues on which Ambassador Smith has made no headway until now. There are others, such as the Soviet refusal to let an American commercial airline operate to Moscow, or the persistent refusal of the Soviet authorities to grant visas to staff correspondents of American newspapers. Visas are issued sparingly and selectively: for those who are already in Moscow, the censorship and high costs make it hardly worthwhile to stay.

This whole area of Soviet-American frustrations may produce new efforts by Ambassador Smith in the light of the Stalin and Molotov overtures. The Ambassador does not need new instructions, it was said here yesterday, to tackle the Russians again. If Stalin really wants better relations with the United States, the State Department believes he has ample opportunity to prove it.

3 Airmen Unhurt When Wind Upsets Plane at Bolling

Three Air Force men escaped injury yesterday when their C-45 training plane was blown over on its nose as it raced down the runway after landing at Bolling Air Force Base. Both propellors were damaged.

Shaken up were Capt. Kenneth Blackshaw, 3218 Ravenworth pl., Alexandria, pilot; Lieut. Loran B. Loridon, 2408 Sixteenth st. north, Arlington, copilot, and Master Sergt. Tennyson Craft, of the base.

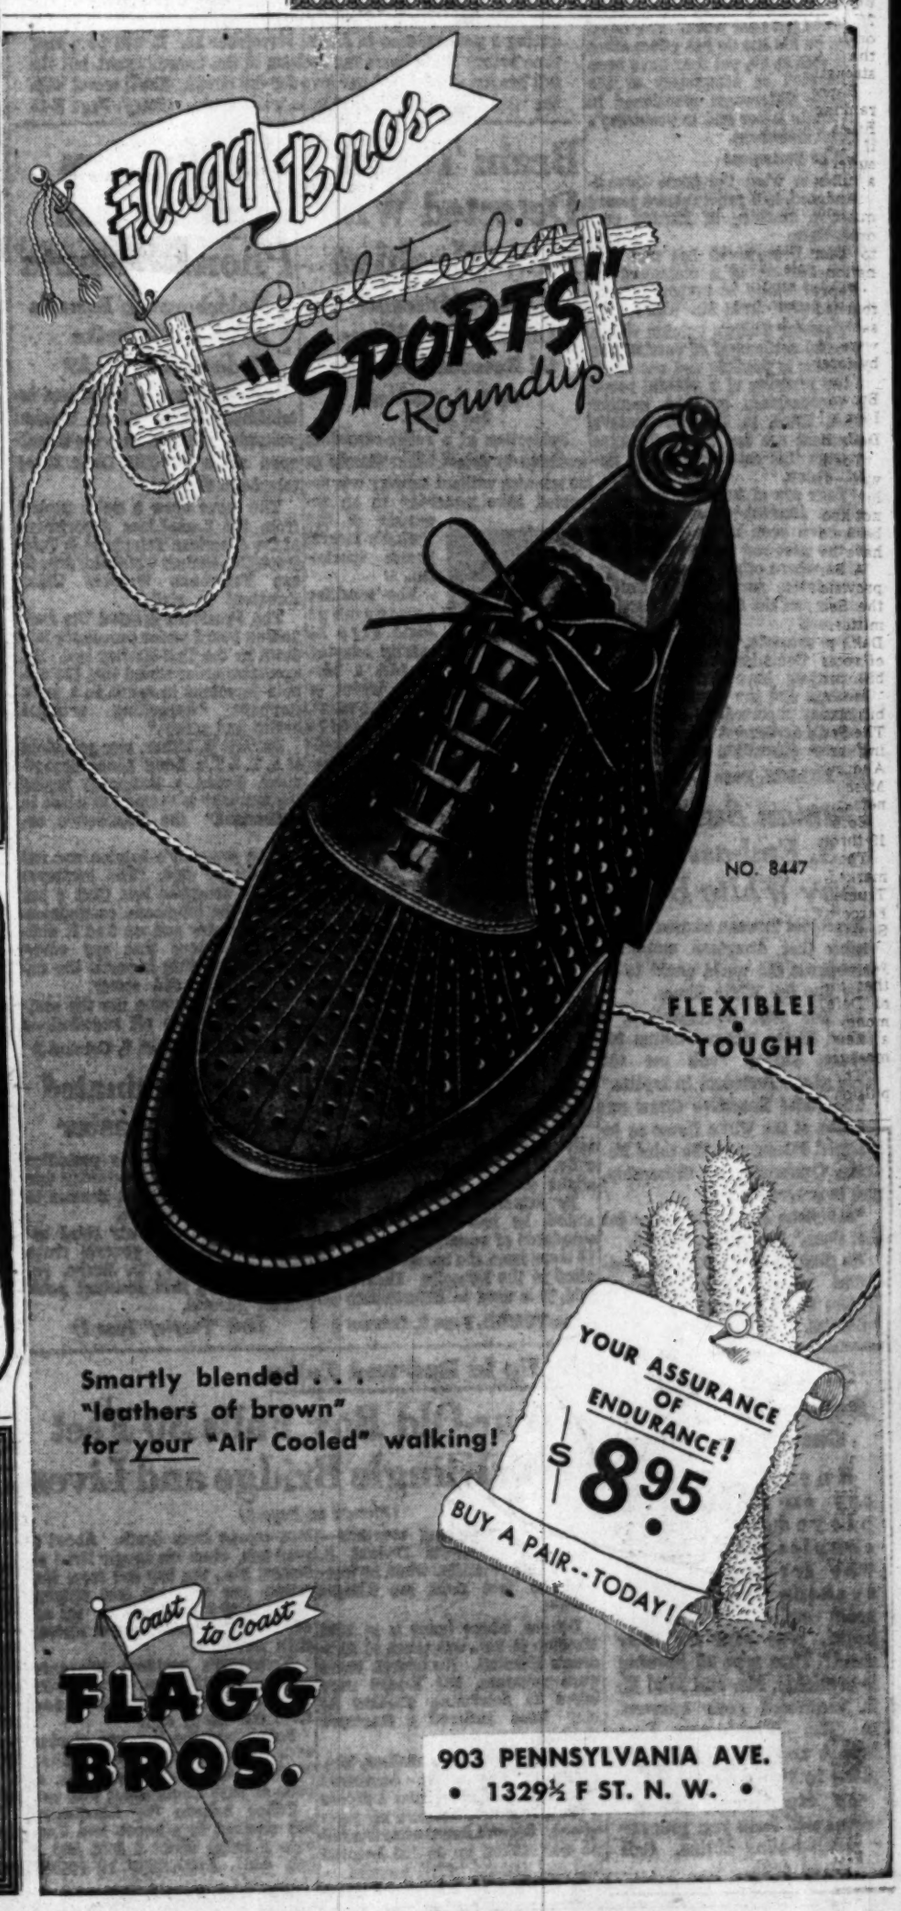

The two officers are attached to the Department of Air at the Pentagon and had completed a routine proficiency flight.

Draft Debate Due to Open Next Week

By the Associated Press

The Congressman who was expected to block the draft bill predicted yesterday that the House Rules Committee probably will approve the measure and send it to the House floor next week.

The prediction came from Representative Leo E. Allen (R., Ill.), chairman of the Rules Committee which began hearings yesterday on the draft bill previously approved by the House Armed Services Committee.

Two defense measures were approved by the House Armed Services Committee yesterday. They were:

1. A bill to let the Department of Defense hold on to about 200 surplus World War II plants as a reserve.

2. A measure to authorize the Navy to stop work on 13 unfinished warships in order to start building the world's largest ship—a giant 65,000-ton aircraft carrier. The bill carries other construction changes. A subcommittee okayed it Monday.

Favors Voluntary Enlistment

Representative Allen, despite his prediction of the draft bill passage, still contends the Army has never given voluntary enlistments a fair trial.

He has recommended a bonus plan, paying volunteers up to $1,500 to enlist in the armed forces. He said this substitute would make the draft unnecessary. President Truman called the idea asinine.

"Brass hats just want this draft, that's all," Allen said. But he added the bill probably would be approved by his committee anyway.

Yesterday's hearings indicated there woud be a fight before such approval is won.

Representative Brown (R., Ohio), presidential campaign manager for Senator Taft (R., Ohio), asked whether a draft bill would be necessary if President Truman does not approve steps to build the Air Force up to 70 combat groups.

Representative Andrews (R., N. Y.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee which worked up the draft bill and approved it 28 to 5 early this month, said a draft is needed right now to bring the Army up to authorized strength.

Representative Sabath (D., Ill.), ranking Democratic member of the Rules Committee, wanted to know if the United States has "really suffered anywhere" by not having a full-strength Army.

Andrews did not answer that question, but he said a two-year draft is vital "unless we are willing to gamble dangerously with the national security."

Representative Cox (D., Ga.) touched off a brief flurry when he said groups opposing the draft were "for the most part dominated by foreigners."

"Just a minute," exploded Brown, "the Methodists opposed it. I am a Methodist."

Daily Hearings Planned

The hour-and-a-half-long hearing was adjourned until today. How long the hearings will continue is not known, but Allen said they will be held daily until all witnesses have been heard.

A Senate bill with similar draft provisions has been approved by the Senate Armed Services Committee. Chairman Gurney (R., S. Dak.) predicts there will be plenty of votes in the Senate to pass the bill, probably next week.

However, one provision of the bill clashes with the House version. The Senate measure calls for training of 18-year-olds as reserves. Andrews and Speaker Martin (R., Mass.) both said the House will not agree to this provision.

Both bills call for a draft of men 19 through 25.

The Air Forces, meanwhile, marked time waiting for President Truman to sign the 70-group Air Force bill approved by House and Senate by landslide majorities.

Representative Brown's comment yesterday that "reports are current that the President and Secretary of Defense Forrestal won't spend money for the 70 groups" injected a new angle into this defense measure.

"The President is under no compulsion to do so," Brown said.

ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman "very definitely" plans to buy further relief and recovery goods from Soviet-dominated eastern Europe, he told a press conference yesterday.

Hoffman said such purchases would include commodities in short supply in the United States, and named coal, timber and wheat as examples. On Monday the first ECA purchase in eastern Europe was announced in the form of $405,000 of Polish coal for Austria.

The use of eastern European resources for western European recovery is a dramatic development of the so-called "off-shore" procurement" program, under which the administrator can buy outside the United States in order to minimize the drain on American resources. The act of Congress lets him procure such goods "from any source" for the seventeen participating countries.

Although Hoffman said eastern European purchasing would be "scrutinized" carefully, and implied that it would be used sparingly, the Soviet satellites are able to provide important supplies to western Europe.

Poland mined about 60 million tons of coal last year, and exported about 19 million. According to the recent report of the U. N.'s Economic Commission for Europe, the Poles plan to mine 70 million tons this year, and 80 million next year. Their export goal for next year is 35 million tons, of which a large part will be available for western Europe.

In timber and wheat, the two other commodities named by Hoffman yesterday, Poland and Czechoslovakia have less than they need for themselves, although they hope to have an export surplus of grains next year. The principal eastern European sources of timber are Finland and the Soviet Union itself.

Argentina Studied

Hoffman's assistant, Richard M. Bissell, jr., said the ECA soon would be financing purchases from Latin America. In the case of Argentina, however, he said the start of purchases would take a longer time. He explained ECA was first making a study of Argentina's existing dollar balances, to see whether the Argentines themselves could finance a part of Europe's needs, and how much.

Special Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, just back from a flying trip to London and Paris, talked encouragingly at the press conference of the "substantial progress" made by the Marshall Plan countries in setting up their new organization. He said he had been impressed by their enthusiasm and desire to make the new Organization for European Economic Cooperation "as effective and comprehensive as possible."

Sterling Area Policy

Harriman denied having said in London that the United States was deciding its policy toward the sterling area without first discussing the subject with the British. Reports to this effect were cabled back by American correspondents, and led to published criticism of Harriman here.

"I said that certainly all of Britain's financial problems should be considered in due course," he explained, "but there is no basis for the implication that this would be unilateral consideration by the United States."

Hoffman announced that the first meeting would be held Friday of an advisory committee of financiers, formed to help him decide many international financial problems.

Among its members, he said, would be George L. Harrison of the New York Life Insurance Co., Allan Sproul and John Henry Williams of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, Walter W. Stewart of the Institute of Advanced Study at Princeton, W. Randolph Burgess of the National City Bank of New York and Edward E. Brown of the First National Bank of Chicago.

Another key post in ECA was filled yesterday by the appointment of Donald C. Stone, former assistant director of the Bureau of the Budget, as director of administration.

Midshipmen's Cruises Listed

The Navy announced yesterday the Mediterranean and African ports its midshipmen will visit on summer cruises.

A group of 13 ships, led by the 45,000-ton battleship Missouri and the new 45,000-ton aircraft carrier Coral Sea, will tour south European ports with 3183 midshipmen and Naval Reservists from June 6 to July 21.

Rear Admiral Heber H. McLean of San Antonio, Tex., will command the squadron.

The cruises are intended to further the education and training of the Navy's future officers and to familiarize them with foreign waters.

The entire squadron will visit Lisbon, Portugal, June 21-26. Thereafter, the squadron will split up for visits.

The boy fell about 50 feet, landing on a sloping bank. Rubin Modis of 4721 B st. se., a helper for the Union Storage Transfer Co., told police he saw an unidentified man struggling up the embankment with the boy and went to his assistance.

The boy, semi-conscious, had given the unidentified rescuer his address. Modis carried the boy to his home, about a half-block away, and the child's parents called an ambulance.

Two Scientists at Oak Ridge Suspended in Loyalty Probe

Oak Ridge, Tenn., May 18 (NYHT).—Two scientists at the atomic laboratories here have been suspended pending determination of their loyalty, three others have been called up before a loyalty board and it is expected that as many as 30 more cases may be heard in the immediate future.

The charges upon which these men are being heard are not sworn, but consist of anonymous accusations of Communist leanings. In most cases the accusation is admitted to be thin even by the men who are hearing the cases.

One charge, for example, reads: "A former landlord of yours has reported that in 1943, after you moved from the premises in which you had been residing, certain magazines and pamphlets which may have been left on the premises by you may have included a copy of the magazine New Masses."

Another charge reads: "A neighbor has stated that she believes a close relative by marriage is a Communist." The man against whom these charges were made is one of the two suspended.

Hearings are held before a board which includes one member of the AEC administration here, one member of the technical staff and one Knoxville lawyer. The accused are permitted to have counsel and to present witnesses; they are given transcripts of the record and are permitted all latitude in conducting their defense.

They are not allowed to know the names of the people who have submitted accusations against them, however, and may not confront their accusers. They are not given access to the FBI dossiers upon which the charges are based, but in the letters which called them for hearing some of these charges are itemized.

The local board, however, does not have the final disposition of these cases. Both the AEC in Washington and its own loyalty board, headed by Owen Roberts, former Supreme Court justice, supplement the local board. Perhaps the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy will take a hand as well.

The charges, altered only to the extent that is necessary so that identifications cannot be made, include these:

Charges in Case 1: 1. A close relative by marriage was reported in 1944 to have been active on a committee of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee. The Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee is on the list of organizations designated by the Attorney General as subversive. 2. Still another close relative by marriage is reported to admit membership in ——— Camp, which organization has been reported to have Communist connections.

Charges in Case 2: "A person with whom you associated closely in the years 1943 to 1947 said you were very enthusiastic about Russia and seemed to be pro-Russian in your point of view."

(The two suspended men are those so charged.)

Charges in Case 3: 1. While at the university, just prior to your employment at Oak Ridge in 1946, you and your wife were in close and sympathetic association with persons reported to have been members of the Communist Political Association during 1943-44-45. Among those person were ———, ———, ———, etc. 2. During the same period you were in close association with ———, who is reported to have been a member of the Tom Paine Chapter, American Youth for Democracy. The AYD has been declared to be a subversive organization by the Attorney General. 3. It is reported that you have indicated your approval of some of the principles of the Communist Party, that you are well informed on the writings of Lenin and Marx, and that you regard their philosophy as being sound."

U. N. Urged to Act Now on Palestine

Lake Success, May 18 (AP).—The United Nations Security Council debated Palestine today under a barrage of urgent official advices that war is rampant in the Holy Land.

French Delegate Alexandre Parodi reported the French consulate in Jerusalem was under machinegun fire. Parodi said a battle raged all last night and the consulate was isolated. Six persons have been wounded there, he said.

Parodi warned the Council it could expect little now from its French-American-Belgian consular truce commission in Jerusalem. He said the French consulate had no communications with other sections of the city.

The new section of the Holy City was shelled late yesterday and Jewish forces opened a strong attack in efforts to enter the old walled city, Parodi told the Council.

A telegram from Foreign Secretary Moshe Shertok of Israel charged that armed Arabs had entered the old walled city section Sunday and broken a U. N. arranged cease-fire.

A complaint from King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan said a mortar shell fell within the Mosque compound in front of the dome above the sacred rock—site of the Mosque of Omar—yesterday during a Jewish offensive against the old walled city.

Delegates heard the reports from Palestine after chief American Delegate Warren R. Austin said no nation can rightfully challenge United States recognition of Israel.

During the afternoon delegates gravely studied reports of the new bombings of Tel Aviv and the officially reported entry of Arab Legion units into Jerusalem.

In the midst of the reports, Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko berated the Council for failing to act. He said delegates had discussed the issue for three days without moving 1 inch forward.

He demanded that the council go ahead and vote on the American proposal for a cease-fire, standfast order to the Jews and Arabs. Gromyko added that he wondered if any delegate would oppose ending the war in the Holy Land.

Austin flared up angrily in the United Nations Security Council after Syrian Delegate Faris El Khoury said the United States blundered and had no right to recognize the new Jewish state in Palestine.

President Truman announced recognition last Friday a few minutes after Israel was proclaimed in Tel Aviv. Guatemala followed suit immediately, Russia came along yesterday, and Uruguay announced recognition of Israel today.

[The Polish radio announced that country also had recognized the new state, United Press said.]

The sharp exchange came as Council wrangling blocked a vote on an American proposal that the U. N. take immediate steps to stop war in Palestine.

"I would regard it as highly improper for me to admit that any country on earth can question the sovereignty of the United States in the exercise of that high political act of recognition of the de facto status of a state by the United States," Austin said.

Arabs Breach Jerusalem's Walls

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

BATTLE REPORT: The Arab Legion claimed yesterday that it had troops within the Jewish quarter of the old city of Jerusalem (A), where the fate of 100,000 Jews was in doubt. Haganah claimed the capture of the Arab city of Acre (D) after a 72-hour battle. Jews also reported that 500 Arabs, including part of an armored column, drowned when a dam south of the Sea of Galilee (B) was opened. Tel Aviv (C) was bombed by the Arabs for the fourth successive day. Egyptian and Trans-Jordan troops made junction at Lydda (underlined) who had served under the British as military police and ignored orders to return home when the mandate expired.

But the force on the north side was the formidable one, composed of the pick of King Abdullah's army, with full war equipment.

The advance positions of these Legionnaires is Jewish Atarot, 6 miles north of the Holy City, where the Collundia Airport is situated.

Amman reports said the Jews were using 3-inch mortars against Arab quarters in Jerusalem.

(Tel Aviv dispatches emphasized that Arab fire into the Jewish quarters continued night and day. It indicated that the plight of the Jews in the Old City area, at least, was desperate and that casualties were heavy. However, Haganah and its auxiliaries of the Jewish army are strong in western and southwestern Jerusalem, especially, and apparently would make a finish fight against any Arab attack.)

In Baghdad, the Iraqui ministry of defense announced that Iraqi ground forces, supported by artillery and armored cars, captured the Jewish town of Gesher.

End of Arms Embargo Urged

A demand for the end of the United States embargo on arms to the Middle East was voiced last night by Senators Owen Brewster (R., Me.) and Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) at a rally sponsored by the American Jewish Congress.

The meeting, in the Press Club Auditorium, was called to commemorate the "Battle of the Warsaw Ghetto" in 1943 during which Jews stood off regular Nazi troops until all the defenders were massacred.

In addition to voiding of the embargo, the speakers urged an end to the ban on United States volunteers to fight in Palestine, and asked sponsorship by the United States of Israel as a member of the United Nations.

Citing the record of the Jews in the Allied armies during the last war, Brewster recalled that "Egypt refused to fire a single shot . . . even when Rommel knocked at the very door of Cairo." He also charged Egyptian officials with "conniving" with the Nazis.

Another speaker was Stefan Rogozinski, counselor of the Polish Embassy, who told the gathering of 400 that formation of the state of Israel had been received by the Poles as "a happy event."

The last message sent by the defenders of the Warsaw ghetto before the German troops finally crashed through was read by Miss Frieda Haleff. The speakers were introduced by Sanford Bolz, president of the District Chapter of the congress.

Lifting of Embargo Rumored This Week

Reports that President Truman will lift the American embargo on arms shipments to Palestine within a day or so circulated widely yesterday in the House of Representatives.

"TEN CENTS A WEEK is all my wage boost would cost YOU, Mr. & Mrs. Washington!"

(if you are the average Washington family)

"I know that the wage boost I'm asking for sounds like a lot of money. But my coal bill alone for 1947 was actually over $1,500,000 more than it was in 1946 and at present prices it would have been over $3,000,000 more. Everything else . . . payroll, construction materials and operating expenses . . . has gone way up, too.

"Naturally, I'm concerned about my customers because they have to pay the increase. So I want to remind you that this is the FIRST increase I've asked for in more than a quarter-of-a-century! I've been furnishing more and more electric service to more and more people at constantly lowering prices for years. And the increase I've requested will amount to only ABOUT TEN CENTS A WEEK FOR THE AVERAGE WASHINGTON HOME.

"So even with the increase, your Electric Service bill will still be one of the lowest in the whole nation! It's a fact, Folks . . . even with my wage boost I'll still be working down there in the bargain bracket!"

Philadelphia Boys To Hear President

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman, who is tuning up for a slam-bang campaign, will make another extemporaneous speech Thursday.

The place of this off-the-cuff oration will be Girard College, Philadelphia, America's first "boys' town." The audience will be 1300 fatherless youngsters, ranging in age from 6 to 18.

Even if Mr. Truman had a ghost-written speech, he probably would throw it aside before a gathering like this. However, speeches without benefit of manuscript are now the rule with him.

President on Air

The President's talk will be carried by radio and television. He will speak at 5:05 p. m. (Washington time) for 10 or 15 minutes.

The boys Mr. Truman will face are part of a stream of 15,000 which has passed through the gates of Girard College in the last century. Their education was provided for by Stephen Girard, mariner, banker and patriot. Old Girard had a reputation for being cold, ruthless and money-mad, but his will disclosed that he had been thinking a lot about "the importance of educating the poor" and had ear-marked six million dollars for that purpose.

The six million dollars has grown to more than 80 million dollars, largely because of income from the anthracite coal fields owned by Girard in Pennsylvania. The college, opened in 1848 not far from the center of Philadelphia, has a campus of 40-odd acres with 29 buildings valued at 13 million dollars.

Graduates of the school have distinguished themselves in nearly every field, and include, locally, Jesse B. Manbeck, former president of the Columbia Typographical Union.

Going by Special Train

Traveling on a special train over the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Chief Executive will leave here at 9:45 o'clock and arrive at the Thirtieth St. Station in Philadelphia about noon. He will motor to Girard with Dr. Merle Middleton Odgers, college president, and have luncheon with him. The President is scheduled to return to Washington at 8:30 p. m.

Members of the Democratic National Committee's executive committee will be meeting in Philadelphia Thursday to pick a keynoter and other convention officers. However, Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said that Mr. Truman did not intend to confer with the party leaders.

Cardiff Giant Goes to Rest In Museum

"THE CARDIFF GIANT"
The hoax of '69

Cooperstown, N. Y., May 18 (AP). The Cardiff Giant, once accepted by thousands as a "petrified human" before it was revealed as a gigantic hoax, found a final resting place here today after 79 years of wandering.

The stone Goliath, one of America's most sensational practical jokes, goes on exhibition tomorrow in the Farmers' Museum of the New York State Historical Association. Nearby memorials to the giants of baseball history are housed in that sport's Hall of Fame.

The cardiff Giant, measuring 10 feet 4½ inches and weighing 2990 pounds, is on view in approximately the same position in which it was uncovered in 1869 on the farm of "Stubb" Newell, near Cardiff, in Central New York.

Workmen digging a well there unearthed a giant "body," slightly contorted as though the man had died in pain.

Crowds swept into Cardiff to view the "giant in the earth." The take soon reached $100 an hour.

Scientists, ministers and educators acclaimed the "find" as the greatest marvel ever discovered. A Yale graduate said it was of Phoenician origin. The New York State geologist said it was a statue, probably made before Indians inhabited Ameriea.

However, many cried "humbug." P. T. Barnum's offer of $150,000 for the giant was refused. The circus impresario made his own replica.

In the midst of the furore, George Hull, Binghamton tobacco dealer, confessed the Cardiff giant was his brainchild.

For a barrel of beer, he had obtained a block of gypsum at Fort Dodge, Iowa. A Chicago sculptor fashioned the giant recumbent figure. Hull rubbed the statute with sulphuric acid to give a mellow, aged-in-earth look.

Hull smuggled the form to the farm of Newell and interred it. About a year later, he directed workmen to dig a well on the spot.

Gardner Cowles, jr., newspaper and magazine publisher, bought the giant in 1936 and set it up in his basement playroom in Des Moines, Iowa. The New York State Historical Association acquired it from Cowles.

Colorado Convict Charged With 2 May Murders

Omaha, Nebr., May 18 (AP).—Two charges of first-degree murder were filed here today against 19-year-old Charles Edward McClelland, former carnival cook.

The Colorado reformatory prisoner, now serving a term of two to three years on fraudulent-check charges, is charged with slaying Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. May 2d, of Alexandria, Va. Bodies of the young couple were found in a slump of bushes near Omaha last August. Both had been shot.

McClelland told authorities last week he shot the couple after being picked up by them as a hitchhiker.

Colorado authorities have agreed to release McClelland to stand trial in Nebraska.

Probers Appointed For Phone Dispute and the company expected to continue negotiations with the union tomorrow."

Mr. Truman did not name the membership of the board immediately, although it was directed to make a report to the White House by June 8.

The union has demanded a wage increase of 30 cents an hour, a shortened work week, and larger pensions. The average pay now is about $1.21 an hour.

The union claims 25,000 members in 42 States and the District of Columbia.

Railroad Order Extended

Meanwhile, Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough last night extended until May 29 the restraining order which blocked a threatened railroad strike last week.

He also postponed until May 28 a hearing which had been scheduled for this morning on the Government's request foran injunction to replace the order. That order was to expire tonight.

The extension was made at request of the Justice Department because officials of three big unions involved—the Locomotive Engineers, Firemen and Switchmen—renewed negotiations yesterday with representatives of the railroads in another effort to settle their long dispute over working rules and wages.

The heads of the three unions had sent a letter to John R. Steelman, President Truman's labor adviser, suggesting that, in view of the new talks now going on, they be believed from litigation for a reasonable period.

Negotiations Renewed

Technically, the Government is in possession of the railroads, Mr. Truman having seized them on May 10 in order to get the restraining order which impelled the unions to call off the coast-to-coast strike they had set for May 11.

But if the private companies and the unions can reach an agreement the Government is ready to turn back the properties to their owners.

The three unions and the employers bargained yesterday for the first time since the Government blocked their strike.

Alvanley Johnston, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, told reporters:

"We have gone over the entire proposition. No definite agreement was made. The probabilities are that we will meet again tomorrow; I don't know what time." Later the time was set for 10 a. m.

Then Johnston and heads of the other two unions, the Firemen and Switchmen, reported to their wage and rules committees.

Spokesmen for the railroads merely said, "No comment."

GMC Strike Pending

Another major strike threat came from the CIO United Automobile Workers. The union notified the Michigan State Labor Mediation Board that a strike "is pending" for 225,000 General Motors employes. The union already has some 75,000 Chrysler workers out in a wage dispute.

A labor dispute at the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic energy plant "remains unaltered and the dispute unsettled," a presidential emergency board reported.

In its second report to President Truman under the Taft-Hartley Act, the board reported the positions of the Carbide & Carbon Chemical's Corp. and the Atomic Trades and Labor Council (AFL) were unchanged.

A court injunction against the strike expires June 7. The union is demanding a 15-cent hourly wage increase and other concessions.

Meat Strike Talks Continue

tant general of the militia of the District on July 1, 1946.

Colonel Mann declares that he was commissioned in the Army of the United States on November 15, 1941, his date of rank in the Federally recognized National Guard.

Last Wednesday, Colonel Mann wrote to Colonel Nevitt claiming the right to command the Guard and directed Nevitt to issue a general order notifying the Guardsmen that he is in charge.

Instead, Colonel Nevitt promptly issued a General Order noting, pointedly:

"Any order purporting to be issued by other than the undersigned commanding in the absence of Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commanding general, District of Columbia National Guard, under the provisions of paragraph 4, SO 38, this headquarters, 3 April, 1947, and verbal instructions of Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox immediately preceding his present temporary absence are illegal and of no effect. Officers and enlisted men of the District of Columbia will comply with the instructions of this headquarters."

Colonel Mann did not accept this as a fait accompli. Shortly after noon yesterday, he personally delivered to the White House a detailed report on the controversy.

This was done because "I have a duty to assume the command. If I do not assume the command, I am subject to court-martial. The laws specifically state that the senior officer left in command will assume command in the absence of the commanding officer," Colonel Mann explained.

He said he took the matter to the White House because the President of the United States is the next higher commander of the District National Guard after General Cox.

Meanwhile, Colonel Nevitt deplored the whole controversy over colonels and called for more privates, declaring: "We would like to emphasize that we trust that any presumed difference which may have reached the public will not interfere with recruiting but will develop recruits for our various organizations, some of which are below their organized strength."

Even if President Truman settles the issue quickly, the victor will have only a few days of glory. General Cox is expected back in town on Monday, office associates said last night.

Coal Talks Start But Stall Immediately

Lewis and $1,400,000 for the UMA. These fines have been appealed.

While this hearing was going on, Lewis and his 200-man committee were meeting spokesmen of the Nation's soft-coal mine operators at the Shoreham. Their purpose was to write a new wage-hour contract in place of the one signed last July 7, which runs out six weeks from now. This July 7 contract said that all who signed it were bound to meet with each other to draft the new one.

Some Operators on Hand

Northern and Western operators' groups—which turn out 269 million tons of coal a year—signed the contract, and were on hand yesterday. Lewis was ready to deal with them.

But the Southern Coal Producers Association—whose members turn out 160 million tons a year—did not take part in drawing the July 7 contract. After it was drawn, Lewis would not let the Southern association sign it. So it was signed by the 14 groups—with 400 operator-members in all—who make up the Southern association. They signed as separate groups, and not as the Southern association.

Joseph E. Moody, president of the Southern association, came to the meeting yesterday to join in the contract drafting. Lewis blocked his being seated.

Lewis took the stand that he was bound to deal with the 14 Southern groups, and that he would deal with Moody as their spokesman. But Lewis said he was not bound to deal with Moody as the association's spokesman, and that he was disinclined to do so.

Operators Behind Moody

The operators were ready to back Moody up, and insist on his being seated. Lewis, as always, was casting the miners' vote. Had the issue been drawn yesterday afternoon, there would have been a deadlock and the conference—for the time being, anyway—would have been through.

Operator Charles O'Neill headed off the breakdown with a motion to recess until today. Lewis backed him up.

Some saw in this, and in Lewis' saying only that he was "disinclined" to deal with the Southern association—instead of saying he would not do so—reason for hope that Lewis would back down at the last minute. But it was the general view that all Lewis wanted was to give the operators a chance to back down.

No Induction Test For Army Advised

A proposal that military physical examinations at induction be eliminated and mobilization standards lowered was presented here yesterday as "the combined thinking" of war experienced psychiatrists.

The pan, which would inaugurate a probationary phase of military life, was outlined to nearly 2500 psychiatrists at the 104th annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association at the Hotel Statler.

At the same time, military plans to reduce the ratio of 4-Fs by rewriting the physical standards for induction was revealed to the same assembly by Col. John M. Caldwell, chief of the neuropsychiatry consultants division of the office of the Surgeon General.

Order of Doctor Call

Colonel Caldwell also disclosed Army plans to set up neuropsychiatric teams to work as far forward in combat zones as possible, and divulged the Army order of preference in drafting physicians into service.

In event of resumption of selective service or inauguration of universal military training, Colonel Caldwell declared, physicians will be called in the following order:

1. Those whose education was paid in part by the Government.

2. Those who did not have previous military service.

3. Those with previous military service, to be called in inverse order to the length of that military service.

The plan for screening after acceptance into the military was presented by Dr. Wilfred Bloomberg, VA staff member, of Cushing General Hospital, Framingham, Mass.

It proposes that local selective service boards or recruiting stations weed out only those completely disqualified for any kind of service. By these, Dr. Bloomberg said he meant those with such disabilities as total blindness, total deafness, acute psychosis, extreme heart condition and marked mental deficiency, "perhaps of imbecile grade."

Would Accept Many Ailing

The revised standards advocated would accept persons with all degrees of psychoneurosis, epilepsy, alcoholism, cardiac murmurs without decompensation and other effects that have not entirely been incapacitating in civilian life, Dr. Bloomberg stated.

The men would later be screened at the training center, where a classification and assignment board would constantly review the status of men under its control for six months, weeding out only those who could be of no possible service to the military.

World War II methods, Dr. Bloomberg said, resulted in a 40 per cent loss of manpower, 30 per cent at induction stations and 10 per cent by disability discharge. Continuous screening would be much more effective, he said.

In another, more technical, session, psychiatrists were warned of the dangers of addiction to methadon, a painkilling drug that has been heralded as a new drug for breaking the dope habit.

Though useful under close medical care, said Dr. Harris Isbell of the United States Public Health Service Hospital in Lexington, Ky., methadon was found by tests to be "a dangerous addicting drug, perhaps even more dangerous than morphine."

U. N. War on Tropical Disease Proposed at Meeting Here

An attack on tropical diseases, backed by the United Nations, was proposed yesterday by a committee of scientists meeting here in the Labor Department auditorium.

The proposal, which calls for establishment of international centers for tropical disease study, was presented by the resolutions committee of the Fourth International Congress on Tropical Medicine and Malaria. Later, the 1000 delegates will vote on the question.

Two prizes were awarded by the congress last night for papers on malaria.

The Walter Reed Medal went to Dr. N. H. Swellengrebel of the Institute of Tropical Hygiene, Amsterdam, and the French Laveran prize to Dr. Henry E. Shortt of the London Medical School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine.

The committee's resolution proposed that the United Nations World Health Organization sponsor the establishment of study centers.

The committee further suggested that the U. N. unit "take suitable measures to further clinical investigations on human nutritional deficiencies."

Ferguson Is Candidate For Senate Reelection

Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) yesterday announced his candidacy for reelection.

His Republican colleague, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan was the first to sign Ferguson's nomination petition.

As he signed, Vandenberg commented to Ferguson:

"Well, Homer, if anybody has a cinch, it's you."

Hospital Fund Drive Slow

With its first week's returns in, Arlington Hospital yesterday reported it had raised less than 6 per cent of its 1948 goal of $85,000.

Since the funds drive began May 10, a total of $2561 has been received by the advanced gifts division, $1450 from the doctors' division and $376 from tht residential unit.

Drive Chairman Lawrence Douglas said yesterday it was "absolutely necessary" for the hospital to meet its goal if it is to continue present services.

He pointed out that additional volunteer solicitors are needed and urged persons interested to contact the campaign director, Mrs. Dorothy O. Lake, at the hospital, Glebe 8600.

New Machine Finds Tumors

ganic cases (brain tumors) from psychogenic or functional cases (including Schizophrenics).

The instrument tests reflexes of both hands of the person tested and also his respiratory action. One hand rests on a contact point where electric shock can be induced at any desired strength. A rubber tube is strapped about the subject's chest.

Reflexes of the subject to shock are recorded on a single sheet by pens, one guided by the hand shocked, the other by the unaffected hand, and the third by lung action during the tests.

Diagnosis, said Dr. Gantt, then becomes but a matter of interpreting the record of reflex activity.

Dr. Gantt said one of the chief concerns of brain specialists has been to distinguish between patients suffering functional ailments and those who are victims of organic disorders. One present test for brain tumors, he said, requires drilling a hole in the skull and testing with air pressure. His machine he said could eliminate much of that delicate surgery.

As to tests for alcoholism, he said the reflex recorder can be used to gauge not the amount of alcohol in the blood but, more importantly in legal actions, the effect of that alcohol on a man's reflexes.

Sales Tax Decision Possible Thursday

Congressional District leaders will meet anew at 10:30 a. m. Thursday to seek a decision on whether Washington is to have a sales tax for the fiscal year starting July 1.

The decision has now boiled down to the question of whether Federal employes are to get a pay raise that would be extended to District employes and increase the city deficit by eight million dollars or more in the new fiscal year.

Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.), chairman of the House subcommittee in charge of District tax legislation, said he will confer with House leaders today on the prospects for pay increase legislation.

"By Thursday morning we should have a pretty good understanding of what the salary increase situation is," said Bates. "If that situation shows the need for new District revenues it throws the burden right on us to get the money."

Dworshak Agrees

Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho) chairman of the Senate subcommittee in charge of the District budget, joined strongly yesterday with Bates in the idea that without a pay increase for city employes, the District can go through the new fiscal year without an increase in taxes.

"If we have any kind of a pay raise bill, however, we'll have to have a sales tax," Dworshak declared.

Dworshak said that if the signal is given in Thursday's meeting for a sales tax, his Appropriations Subcommittee will start brief hearings Friday morning on the House-approved District budget of 101 million dollars. He said two hearing days would probably be given to the budget bill, including time for spokesmen of Washington organizations to testify.

Thursday's meeting will continue the conference begun yesterday by Dworshak, Bates and Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.), chairman of the Senate subcommittee in charge of District tax legislation. Cain, too, was planning conferences with Senate leaders on the pay increase prospects.

Dworshak told reporters that "if it were not for the apparent likelihood of salary increases, I was hopeful we might be able to reconcile the budget with present revenues, without additional taxes."

Taft Urges Pay Raises

On the salary question, Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, told the Senate that Federal pay increases should have priority over public works. He estimated increases proposed for Federal classified and postal workers would cost between 400 and 500 million dollars.

"It seems to me that we have an obligation to a million or more men and women to see that they receive a reasonably decent living," Taft said.

He suggested that the pay increase over prewar levels should at least cover the cost-of-living increase since that time.

Senate and House civil service committee leaders have scheduled a conference for today on the pay issue.

Dr. Corning Appointed to Loyalty Unit

School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning was named by the Commissioners yesterday to serve on their District employe loyalty committee.

Corning

The city heads took action following a report from the seven-man loyalty committee, which recommended that its own membership be increased to eight to include Dr. Corning.

The appointment came four weeks after a Board of Education request that Dr. Corning be made a member of the committee.

At a meeting April 29, the loyalty committee recommended against a general loyalty check of all District employes for the present but prepared to conduct a survey to determine if any city jobs or installations could be considered "sensitive" to national security.

ITU Votes Today; 2 Factions Fight For Presidency

Indianapolis, May 18 (AP).—Members of the International Typographical Union (AFL) will vote Wednesday on 17 officers.

There are two complete tickets, the Progressives, led by President Woodruff Randolph, and the Independents, who are seeking to elect John R. Evans of Washington, D. C.

The Independents have campaigned on a platform of "peace, harmony and order" in the union, and have criticized the Randolph policy on contracts which has resulted in the union's being restrained by a Federal court order.

The approximately 80,000 members will vote on a local basis, and the votes wil be counted at international headquarters here by a canvassing board representing the opposing candidates.

Don Hurd, secretary-treasurer, running for reelection on the Progressive ticket, said results on the presidential contest probably will not be released until next week, and the official vote will be compiled in June.

Postmaster Nominated

President Truman yesterday nominated William Paul Graham as postmaster at Mardela Springs, Md.

GAO Building Bill Signed By President

President Truman yesterday signed legislation authorizing a new General Accounting Office building at 5th and G sts. nw.

Federal building officials said the next move would be to ask Congress for contract authority to begin construction. Previous appropriation bills have left some five million dollars available for the project, and no additional appropriation will be sought in this session.

About two million dollars was spent for the site and preliminary work before the war halted further work on the GAO building. The new law authorizes a total cost of $22,850,000 for the project.

Senate Gets Mental Bill

Meanwhile, at the Capitol the House approved and sent to the Senate a bill to permit voluntary admissions to St. Elizabeths Hospital.

A second bill, to authorize direct admissions to St. Elizabeths for chronic patients, without the present routing through Gallinger Hospital, was introduced by Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.). He scheduled a hearing on the bill for 10 a. m. Friday before his House District Subcommittee in charge of public health legislation.

The House also sent to the White House a bill to give Federal building guards in Government areas outside the District police powers similar to those now held by Federal building guards in the District.

Objections blocked unanimous consent action by the House on two other Washington area bills. A demand for further hearings returned to the House Public Works Committee a bill to authorize the Government to obtain additional land for the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway near Alexandria in exchange for specified dredging rights for the Smoot Sand and Gravel Co.

A second bill, to authorize Government donation of two Negro residence halls here to Howard University for dormitory use, will be routed to the House Rules Committee, according to Representative J. Harry McGregor, chairman of a House Public Buildings subcommittee. The buildings are the Lucy Diggs Slowe hall for women and the George Washington Carver hall for men. McGregor pointed out there was a dispute about whether the halls should go to Howard University or to the Booker T. Washington Birthplace Foundation for use in setting up an industrial training institute for Negroes.

Jury Hears Child Describe Attack

A blonde, curly haired little girl hobbled on crutches to the witness stand yesterday to tell how she had been raped and kicked and beaten by an illiterate truck helper last March.

With a steady finger she pointed to the defendant, Theodore M. Holmes, 22, as her attacker. He was arrested in his living quarters in the rear of 1723 7th st. nw., March 18, several hours after the child was found semi-conscious near the National Arboretum and only a short distance from her home.

Assistant United States Attorney John C. Conliff, prosecutor in the trial which opened yesterday in District Court before Justice Edward M. Curran, has asked the death penalty.

Sits In Mother's Lap

Sitting in her mother's lap to testify, the 9-year-old girl told how she was waiting for her stepfather to come home, when Holmes passed by, asked the direction toward Washington, and gave her two sticks of chewing gum.

"Then he suddenly grabbed me, put his hand over my mouth, threw me over his shoulder and started to run," she told the jury of eight men and four women.

In a clear voice she told how she lapsed into unconsciousness for short intervals, while Holmes attacked her, ripped her clothes from her body, and hit and kicked her.

At one time, she clenched her small fists and pointed her thumbs upward to show how he had tried to gouge out her eyes.

"He kicked me on the side and hit me on the jaw and in the eyes, then he covered me with leaves. I don't remember anything then until I saw it was dark and I tried to climb over the fence, but I fell down. I thought my leg was broken," she said.

The child, clad in a pink dress and wearing a big pink hair-bow, said she remembered when her uncle found her and the ride in the back seat of car to the hospital.

"That's all the further I can remember until I woke up and saw my mommy five days later," she declared. She was not declared out of critical danger at Gallinger Hospital until a week after the attack.

An uncle told how he found her. Her hair was covered with blood, her eyes were puffed shut and her left ear was almost torn off, he said.

"I could hardly tell who it was. I thought she was dead," he declared, as he described how he picked her up and ran with her to her home, and then took her to the hospital.

Earlier, her young mother, with tears in her eyes, identified a blueprint dress and white slip and undershirt, blood-soaked and torn to shreds, which the girl had worn the day of the assault. As Conliff held them up, the women on the jury grimaced noticeably. The mother said the child still suffers a paralyzed left foot.

Suspect Placed Near Scene

Alfred Louis of 1723 Swann st. nw., a truck driver for the Rogers Transfer Co., where Holmes was employed, and Andrews Rogers, son of the company s president, testified that Holmes had gone with them to drop a truckload of trash in the vicinity of the arboretum late in the afternoon of March 18.

They had been drinking and Holmes and Louis got into an argument. Louis slapped Holmes, who threw a brick at him and fled, they said.

They testified they last saw him around 5 p. m., about a half hour before the child disappeared from in front of her home.

Holmes showed little emotion at the trial. Occasionally he yawned broadly or glanced slowly around the crowded court room. He gazed steadily, without change of expression, at the child, when she testified. He is defended by court-appointed attorneys, Maurice Weeks and Wesley Williams.

Workman Trapped for Hour by Earth Cave-in

A 62-year-old laborer trapped in the cave-in of a 15-foot sewer ditch at 42d and Nash sts. ne. yesterday was freed by 50 firemen and volunteers who dug in the sandy soil for more than an hour.

Wheeler

The worker, John Wheeler, of 464 L st. sw., was pinned in the 2-foot-wide ditch with only his head and shoulders above ground. Planks which pressed against his head saved him from being buried completely.

The boards were shoved aside by fellow workmen who had just left the ditch when the cave-in occurred. They began digging frantically to extricate Wheeler and were joined by Rescue Squad No. 1, Engine Co. 27 and Truck Co. 16, all under the direction of Third Battalion Chief A. F. Harding.

After an hour and a quarter of digging, the crew freed the worker. He said he was unhurt, but was taken to Casualty Hospital in an ambulance for observation.

Hospital attendants listed his condition as fair and said he may have sustained a chest concussion.

Wheeler was employed by C. W. Lloyd, plumber, of 1168 Abbey pl. ne., digging a ditch for a sewer connection. The ditch was in front of a recently completed brick home yet unoccupied.

300 of AAUW Ask Court Ban On Race Bars

A group of 300 members of the Washington Chapter of the American Association of University Women yesterday asked permission in District Court to intervene in the court fight over exclusion of Negroes.

Claiming that they represented 40 per cent of the voting membership of the local branch, the women asked the court to order the branch to conform to the national policy of admitting qualified Negroes and discard by-law amendments restricting membership.

This action was taken, according to Mrs. Ruth V. Lyons of 1072 Thomas Jefferson st. nw., chairman of the self-styled "liberal" group, because its members "cannot preserve their personal reputations as women who believe in education and in democratic liberties for all, without regard to race or religion, so long as defendants persist in their defiance of the national association on grounds such as those here in issue."

The group asked the court to continue the preliminary injunction restraining the national group from taking any ouster action against the local branch until the court can grant relief as requested in the motion.

Park Trailer Camp To Be Cleared Now

After months of wrangling, the Government finally "called the law" yesterday to force 16 trailer-housed families out of the Washington Tourist Camp in East Potomac Park.

This latest action in the year-old dispute was announced by National Capital Parks to get rid of the last of more than 100 families whom the Government put in the transient camp during the war.

National Capital Parks wants to return the GSI-operated camp to its status as a tourist stopping-place, with a two-week limit on stays.

Assistant Superintendent Harry Thompson of NCP said he expected the United States Marshal's office would serve eviction notices today or Thursday, with a one or two day period designated for compliance. After that, he said, ejection might be accomplished "forcibly."

Answering insistent pleas by the "squatters" that they have no place to go, NCP has provided temporary space at the Army cantonment on Columbia Island off the Virginia side of Memorial Bridge.

One other family has moved into the new area, where the Government has offered to furnish water, electricity and Park Police protection—free—for a month. After that, NCP has other plans for the abandoned Army post, still filled with vacant barracks.

Thompson said he couldn't understand why the 16 families refused to move to Columbia Island. He said NCP is not permitted by law to operate a permanent trailer camp in the District, and the Health Department has demanded frequently that the two-week limit be enforced. Some of the families have lived in the GSI camp two years.

Some of the holdouts, interviewed yesterday, explained the main reason they want to stay is that there is no other suitable trailer space available, public or private. All feared they would again be homeless when the Government clamped down at Columbia Island.

Prince Georges Denies Trailer Camp Permit

A petition for a trailer camp permit was refused the White Hall Manor, Inc., yesterday by the Prince Georges County Commissioners after approximately 40 persons appeared to protest.

The camp was proposed for a 70-acre tract known as the old White Hall farm in Piscataway District between the Piscataway Creek and Farmington rd.

Nicholas Orem, jr., counsel for the corporation, said he believed the commissioners do not have jurisdiction to decide whether to grant the permit or not, except upon health requirements, since the property is outside the regional district and not subject to zoning.

County Sanitary Engineer Charles Woods said the camp, as projected, would comply with health regulations.

Opposition to the camp was led by Harold C. Townshend, president of the Prince Georges County Farm Bureau, who appeared as an individual, and R. H. J. Campbell of the Oxon Hill Citizens Association.

The commissioners in other actions ordered exemption of the Oaklawn Methodist Church, on Allentown rd., Oaklawn, from taxes, and approved a bid for installation of street lights in Bradbury Heights offered by the Potomac Electric Power Co., subject to final approval by the citizens association of the special taxing area. The company offered to install 56 250-candlepower lights at an annual cost of $1484.40, which would be charged to residents of Special Improvement District 29, which is Bradbury Heights.

McNayr Keeps County Post

Montgomery County Supervisor I. G. McNayr will not resign, he told Montgomery County commissioners at their meeting yesterday.

The meeting was held in Rockville.

McNayr previously had indicated he was considering an offer of a $10,000-a-year job with the Port of New York Authority. His present post pays $7500.

Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter who had threatened to make a formal attempt to oust McNayr, said yesterday he would not make the move now since he could not muster enough votes among the commissioners to succeed.

As appropriation of up to $300 to finance the Montgomery County school safety patrol picnic scheduled for May 20 at Meadowbrook, on East-West hwy. at Rock Creek, was approved by the commissioners. The commissioners and members of the county safety board as well as approximately 700 school patrolmen are scheduled to attend.

Arlington 'Y' Urges Camp Enrollment Now

Arlington's YMCA yesterday urged interested parents to enroll their children at once in the association's summer day-camp program from June 21 until September 1.

Utilizing its 5-acre wooded property near N. 13th st. and Kirkwood rd., the YMCA will offer full day programs, including hikes, games, handicrafts and campfires, as well as out-of-county trips. All activities will be supervised.

Parents may enroll their children at the Arlington YMCA at 3422 N. 13th st. Rates are $2 for the summer for boys and girls 8 to 12 years of age, $3 for those 12 to 16.

Riggs Bank Asks Zoners to Permit Parking at Branch

The Riggs National Bank will ask the Board of Zoning Adjustment Thursday to permit a variance in zoning requirements so a parking lot can be installed on property adjoining its Chevy Chase branch at Connecticut ave. and Morrison st. nw.

The bank owns a vacant lot and a home at 3808 Morrison st., purchased last April. It seeks to use the area for parking for bank clients, zoning officials said.

The bank asked the option of installing a drive-in bank on the parking area at a later date.

Montgomery Civil Service Chief Resigns

Climaxing a year-and-a-half dispute with the Montgomery County ing his salary slash, he filed a service commissioner, Jo V. Morgan, yesterday submitted his resignation.

The commissioners a few days ago rescinded their action of last fall which reduced Morgan's salary from $4800 to $1200 and accused him of "dilatory service."

The commissioners last week publicly apologized to Morgan and declared their earlier action had been "ill advised."

"If all the facts had been known," they said "the action would not have been taken."

Morgan said yesterday he had wanted to resign for a long time but had heretofore refused to quit "under fire." A clean bill from the county commissioners now permits him to resign with a "clear record," he said.

Morgan, a Democrat and attorney, has frequently been at odds with the Republican-dominated board of commissioners. Following his salary slash, he field a $50,000 damage suit against Commissioner Brooke Johns and County Supervisor I. G. McNayr, who admitted they were responsible for the "dilatory service" charge.

School Board Urges Bonds or Sales Tax

The Fairfax County School Board yesterday stressed its lack of urgently needed building funds and urged again a county bond issue and State sales tax to aid schools.

In reply to the request of a delegation from Mount Vernon district for school additions, the board at its regular semimonthly meeting pointed out there are no funds now available for new construction.

Board members, who first mentioned it last month, again urged a bond issue to provide the four million dollar new construction needed now and to provide for future needs.

School Superintendent W. T. Woodson said, however, that the initiative for a bond issue must come from county taxpayers since a law requires a petition by at least 1000 taxpayers before action can be taken.

IF STOMACH BALKS DUE TO GAS AND BLOAT
Help Get Food Digested to Relieve Yourself of This Nervous Distress
Do you feel all puffed-up and miserable after every meal, taste sour, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in helping your stomach do the job—it should be doing—in the digestion of its food.
Every time food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite underweight, restless sleep, weakness.
To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that 888 Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the 888 Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.
Also, 888 Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Special Grand Jury

The special grand jury which is to investigate gambling in Washington has been impaneled amid reports of an exodus of gambling operators from the city. The request of United States Attorney Fay for the inquiry has been followed by a great deal of fanfare, as is inevitable in a democratic community—even a voteless community—and every gambler is doubtless on notice to lie low or to leave for parts unknown before the work of the grand jury can get under way. Even though subpenas to be issued by the grand jury may be served anywhere in the United States, it is likely to encounter difficulties in carrying out its assignment.

We do not know how this disappearance of vital witnesses could have been avoided. Everyone can readily see, however, that it is a fact to be reckoned with. No doubt Mr. Fay will succeed in bringing some of the fleeing witnesses back. Still there is a danger that the grand jury may get a distorted picture of the illegal rackets carried on in the Nation's Capital unless extraordinary efforts are made to compensate for the changes that announcement of the investigation has brought about. To do a thorough job we think the grand jury will have to have the aid of expert investigators of the type that only the Federal Bureau of Investigation is likely to have available. Mr. Fay has expressed the belief that the grand jury itself should be free to make its own demands for investigators, but he certainly has the obligation of making the grand jurors understand the real danger of a fiasco unless a thorough probe with the aid of experts is undertaken.

Debate On Communism

As the Governor of New York said to the former Governor of Minnesota, there ought to be a law. The kind of law advocated by Governor Dewey would "directly make it illegal to carry on any organization, either above ground or below, which is directed by the rulers of a foreign power for the purpose of overthrowing the Government of the United States." And he added some important qualifications: "Such a law would not outlaw ideas; it would not outlaw thoughts; it would make illegal organized conspiracy of fifth columns." The definition has significance because it distinguishes what Governor Dewey wants from what Mr. Stassen wants—which is the Mundt-Nixon bill.

It is a pity that these two Republican candidates consumed most of the time in their radio debate Monday evening over a semantic abstraction—Does the Mundt-Nixon bill outlaw the Communist Party?—instead of arguing about the merits of the bill itself. The Minnesotan claimed there would be no difference of opinion between him and his opponent if the latter would only indorse the Mundt-Nixon bill; the New Yorker asserted that this stand constituted a complete Stassen surrender since the bill, according to its authors, was never intended to make the party illegal. This vagueness as to the issue under discussion made their performance Monday only mildly reminiscent of the great Lincoln-Douglas debates nearly a century ago.

Setting aside for the moment the grave constitutional questions entailed, it is useful to look at the Mundt-Nixon bill in purely pragmatic terms. If it would not, strictly speaking, outlaw the Communist Party, it would certainly have the effect of driving it even more deeply underground than at present. For the party could not afford to operate openly and members could not afford to acknowledge their membership in view of the handicaps and hardships imposed under the bill. Indeed, the party leaders have already made clear their intention to circumvent the measure if it is enacted into law. And such circumvention is all too easy, as the experience in Canada and Brazil made plain.

The bill would also impose severe handicaps on organizations designated "Communist fronts." These, too, would be driven underground, while their members, whether individually innocent or guilty of participation in the Communist conspiracy, would be stigmatized on the basis of mere association. Opinions, rather than overt acts, would be penalized. As Governor Dewey put it, "Stripped to its naked essentials, this is nothing but the method of Hitler and Stalin. It is thought control borrowed from the Japanese war leadership. It is an attempt to beat down ideas with a club. It is surrender of everything we believe in."

According to the New York Governor, there are now some 27 laws on the statute books to protect this country from the subversive activities of foreign agents. This newspaper has repeatedly called for strengthening of the existing statutes as well as more effective administration of them and for legislation that would require the registration and reporting of all organizations engaged in influencing public opinion. Every group soliciting funds from the public should be required to disclose the names of its contributors and account for its expenditures. This would, we think, afford substantial protection against the Communist tactic of raising money for a worthy cause while spending it for anti-American propaganda. It would force the Communists to operate in the open where their objectives would be exposed to the buffets of democratic debate. It would subject Communist ideas to what Mr. Justice Holmes called the best test of truth, "the power of thought to get itself accepted in the competition of the market." Americans need not fear such a test.

Dr. Weizmann

In the 73-year-old Chaim Weizmann, a man whose friendships are notable and legion, the new State of Israel has named as President one of the most remarkable leaders of our turbulent times. Born in Russia, he lived and was educated in Germany, and then taught in England. Here he imbibed the moderation and liberalism which has distinguished his fruitful life. His services to Britain in the First World War cannot be underestimated. He discovered how to make synthetic acetone at a time when Britain was running out of explosives. To him the British, in the Balfour Declaration of 1919, promised "a national home" for the Jews after the Middle East had been freed from the Ottoman Turk. What the "national home" meant at the time was quite plain to the British. It did not mean only a place to live, for this the Jews had, but a place over which they could raise a flag and which they could call a state. This has now been achieved 30 years after Weizmann got the pledge, though firm possession of the Palestinian homeland must await the outcome of the present conflict.

Dr. Weizmann will give the Israelis a leadership which he commands by the veneration and trust he inspires. He has had his ups and downs in their affections. Weizmann, though no pacifist, is nonviolent, and Zionist extremists used to attack him for his opposition to every form of activism except illegal immigration. This he believed to be justified by the restrictionism imposed by Britain in 1939—a restrictionism that, as Mr. L. S. Amery puts it in a striking letter to the London Times, meant "a going back on the obvious purpose of the Balfour Declaration." To Weizmann violence was a crime against the law, against the Jews in Palestine, against the Jews in other countries. But he will not shrink from commanding the last ounce of strength from the people in securing the new Israel, no matter what the sacrifice in blood and property. For, while there has been a lot of questioning of Weizmann's policy, none has ever doubted his courage. This was the greatest kind of courage: intellectual courage. In no man is the quality more obvious. It will be a source of strength to the new state, almost as important as his wisdom, which, if his record is any guide, will be expressed in moderation and cooperation.

Making Capital for Wallace

How much capital Henry Wallace collected out of the Administration's maladroitness of last week is anybody's guess. But we feel it was plenty. Stalin now has added to the store with his soft answer to Mr. Wallace's open letter to the Soviet leader. Not once, however, did the Wallace communication touch the crux of the Soviet-Western problem, though all the items in his compendious catalog led to it, and on one occasion he came pretty close to it.

For instance, Mr. Wallace wants, as the Administration wants, a peace treaty with Japan. The snag is that Soviet Russia insists on the exercise of a veto power, which, of course, would mean a Russian-dictated treaty. Why insist on the veto? Way down in his communication Mr. Wallace himself supplies the answer in his reference to the abuse—the Soviet abuse—of the veto power in the United Nations. He excuses the "excessive" use of the veto power as a symptom, and not a cause, of Russo-Western conflict, and adds that the causa causans is "lack of confidence."

Here is the true point of departure for Russo-Western discussion. It leads straight to the missing link that only those who are intent upon making political capital could miss. Ask the question: To what is due the lack of confidence between the United States and Soviet Russia? Surely it is aggression, direct and indirect. Yet the word "aggression" is not mentioned once either in the Wallace letter or in the Muscovite response. All these words without the keyword!

The facts are part of the postwar record. As to direct aggression, the Soviet has added considerable territory since the shooting began in 1938. Annexed lands comprise an area of more than 280,000 square miles, with a population of some 22 million people. In that time the United States and Britain have been pursuing the opposite course. Voluntarily—the British at a rapidly accelerating pace—they have been getting rid of their holdings. The contrast is one reason for the prevailing lack of confidence in Soviet Russia.

The second and much more important reason is the Soviet's indirect aggression. This is what the Soviet and its satellites have been practicing in half a dozen countries. The United Nations has condemned the practice, as exemplified at the expense of Greece. But the practice is not covered specifically in the Charter of the United Nations. The result is that, in spite of the Czech protests at Lake Success, the Soviet-fomented coup at Prague escaped even censure. It is obvious from the reestablishment of the Cominform that indirect aggression is the chief reliance of the Kremlin expansionists.

It would be getting down to cases if the Administration were to single out this root of the prevailing lack of confidence. Let us have no more explaining what we don't mean, and tell the Russians and the world what we do mean. Surely the object of our policy is to put an end to aggression so that we can get on with the neglected task of reconstruction. The sandstorm created last week and this has put that object in eclipse. All Congressmen report an avalanche of mail protesting against the negative attitude of the State Department. The people want an affirmative policy, and, what is more important, they want to see it pursued. The Stalin-Wallace exchange gives the State Department another chance—in fact, the plain duty—to reduce the confusion to a concrete proposal. Without delay the Administration should announce in public an invitation to Soviet Russia to discuss the single issue of aggression with the view of suggesting jointly a clarifying amendment to the Charter for general approval.

That is the root of the matter. It is as simple as it is fundamental. And, as it happens, all the spadework has been done, and by the Soviet itself. When Hitler first showed his teeth, they were instantly recognized in the Kremlin and no time was wasted in admiring the way he provided bread and circuses for his Germans. To the Kremlin he looked what he was, namely, the embodiment of aggression. Accordingly, on the heels of his coup in the Rhineland, Litvinoff invited nonaggression pacts intended precisely to smother indirect aggression. They knew the tools of Nazi indirect aggression. They existed in the large settlements of Volksdeutsch, or people of German origin, in various European countries; e. g., the Sudetens in Czechoslovakia. Litvinoff suggested a pledge that an aggressor be so named not only if he invaded another country but also if he gave support to "armed bands" invading another's territory.

Nothing came of the suggestion, but Moscow did not give it up, and Molotov resurrected it six years later, in 1939. And he refined it. After the Sudetens had been used to spearhead Nazi aggression in Czechoslovakia, Molotov proposed treaties to apply "in the case of direct, or indirect aggression; that is to say, an internal coup d'etat or a political change favorable to the aggressor." Molotov cited as a case in point the absorption of what remained of Czechoslovakia after Munich. This was achieved by "inviting" President Hacha to Berlin and forcing him to sign the agreement dissolving the Czechoslovak remnant. Technically this was legal; actually it was rank aggression.

What is creating the lack of confidence of the free world in Soviet Russia is, clearly, the same conditions that alarmed Stalin about Hitler. Let us apply to Stalin Stalin's remedy, and see what happens. The last ball that Stalin kicked in our direction was muffed. Now that he has kicked us another, there should be no further hesitation. Mr. Wallace's open letter was an unassorted collection of the symptoms of the cause of Russo-Western differences. It would be seen for what it is if the Administration were to wake up and come to grips with the basic issue.

Employes In Politics

Federal employes concerned with the quality of local government in suburban areas surrounding Washington have a vital interest in a hearing to be conducted this afternoon by the Civil Service Commission. The purpose of the hearing is to determine whether provisions of the Hatch Act should be relaxed to permit participation of Government workers as partisan candidates for local offices in communities where Federal employes constitute a majority of the population.

The particular reason for the hearing is the decision of political party chieftains in Arlington County to abandon the truce under which elections for county offices have been conducted on a nonpartisan basis. The wisdom of this decision to return to partisan politics is debatable; but the decision is a fact. It is also a fact that under such conditions Government employes who wish to have a say in the affairs of Arlington County will be severely disadvantaged if they must buck political parties as independents.

It is difficult, to be sure, to draw a line between what constitutes participation in local partisan politics and what amounts to activity on behalf of State and national political parties, especially when the parties on the local scene are mere subordinate units of larger organizations. Moreover, it is possible that an exemption from the Hatch Act may set a lamentable precedent for jettisoning nonpartisan elections in suburban areas where they are working well. On the other hand, the point can be made, at least with respect to Arlington, that some of the groups espousing continued nonpartisan elections constitute in themselves a political party. In any event, these are considerations which apply more to the way in which the regulation is administered than to the exemption itself. Certainly the cause of good local government requires that some means be found to enable Federal workers to accept civic responsibility in the communities in which they reside. We can see no valid reason why the Hatch Act should not be relaxed for this purpose, provided that the Civil Service Commission keep an eye open for abuses of the privilege.

"Union Shop"

The Washington Post has established an enviable record for defending the right of individuals to hold free opinions, and to act on those opinions in their personal affairs, free from coercion, governmental or economic, by dominant majorities intolerant of dissent.

It is, therefore, the more shocking to read your editorial "Union Shop" of May 9, in which you support abolition of NLRB-sponsored elections now required by law as a prerequisite to union shop contracts. The union shop contract can be, and in the case of hundreds of thousands of individuals is, a device whereby those individuals are forced to support, financially and otherwise, principles, spokesmen, political causes and union policies in which they do not believe, at pain of being deprived of employment.

The Washington Post supports its claim that union shop elections should be abolished by the statement that in 99 per cent of the NLRB elections a majority voted for the union shop. From this you conclude: "the belief entertained in some quarters that union shops have been foisted on many employes against their will as an alternative to loss of jobs appears to have been unfounded."

I find this reasoning unbelievable. How large, pray tell, were the minorities voting against the union shop in these elections? And however small the minorities may be, what right has even a large majority to force even one individual into membership against his will, under threat of losing his employment?

The newspaper which so rightly upholds Dr. Condon's right to hold and act on his private opinions not related to his performance of his job, without losing his employment, should also bleed to assure this right to every individual in this land.

Aids To Mental Health

Enjoying as we are our postwar jitters, it is not surprising that members of the medical profession agree that Washington needs more clinics for treatment of psychoneurotic patients. Continued inflation, plus unemployment and the failure of veterans to adjust themselves to a civilian life considerably different from that prior to World War II makes it imperative that society recognize the importance of checking mental disorders in the beginning, along with tuberculosis, infantile paralysis and heart disease.

Disheartening is the fact that much of this treatment is restricted to either the wealthy or the extreme poor, leaving the middle-class white-collar workers to deteriorate in their accustomed manner, denied medical treatment because of the exorbitant fees charged by an avaricious group of "specialists."

In spite of the two schools of thought, the Freudian and the economic, it goes without saying that the bases for most American psychiatric disorders are economic, with the sexual playing a secondary role in the causes of nervous breakdowns among persons who have created a highly mechanized society without being able to adjust the political structure to the demands of modern living.

A recent survey by a Chicago psychiatrist revealed that, compared to the United States, nervous disorders were practically unknown in the Soviet Union, proving that economic security and freedom from economic worry were more important to mental well-being than academic conclusions based upon the writings of Sigmund Freud. Actually, we need less clinics and more economic security.

"Black Maria"

In The Washington Post's recent review of George Stimpson's newest book the reviewer noted that Mr. Stimpson did not know, nor could he discover, the origin of the term, "Black Maria," as applied to a police patrol wagon. This is not to be wondered at, for that information has not yet found its way into books or magazines or newspapers; and this, I daresay, is the first time it has been disclosed to the public.

The saying originated in Nashville, Tenn. About the time of the advent of the police patrol wagon there lived in that city a Negro woman who was a town character. The children, of whom I was one, feared her. She was pointed out to us as an African princess, and was supposed to possess certain magical charms which only those who associated with the devil had any right to. Her name was Maria, and we all called her Black Maria.

Often Black Maria, because of her fondness for strong drink, came afoul of the law, and the friendly Irish police had a terrible time taking her to the police station. When the patrol wagon came on the scene, she was its most frequent patron; and whenever its gong was heard clanging through the streets, the cry went up: "There goes Black Maria to jail." This happened so often that the citizens of that old town began to call the wagon the "Black Maria," and to this day it still goes by that name, all over the United States.

Fantastic? Surely no more so than that the first street roller or rock crusher which appeared on the streets of Nashville so astounded one citizen that he dubbed it a "Willipus Wallipus," and that name, too, stuck.

Twisted Lion's Tail

Some people seem to have nothing better to do than to "pick on" England—one of our very few reliable friends in the world. In my opinion the British lion would be more respected by them if occasionally it roared back.

A correspondent in your issue of May 9 complains about the $200,000 yearly income of Princess Elizabeth, and excuses this interference in other people's business by two references: one, to the "fathers sons and husbands of our people who have died to help save her"; two, to our Marshall Plan" taxpayers' money spent in support of idleness."

Something might gently be suggested about the fathers, sons and husbands of British families who died between 1914 and 1917, and more between 1939 and November, 1941, as the heroic advance guard to save all humanity, including ourselves. Someone also should explain to your correspondent the elementary facts of foreign exchange—that pounds spent in England on anything whatsoever bear no relation to dollars from the United States. The charges about "idleness" are too absurd to argue with, but while "there are none so deaf as those who won't hear," it does seem time that education in international facts, and in good manners, were begun. There is no hope for the democratic world otherwise.

Seamen's Exemption

Proposed legislation for the draft gives no credit to merchant seamen for services they have rendered.

They were urged to join the merchant marine and were exempted from the draft to do so. They were required to serve longer than the fighting forces to be exempted from the draft. They did receive at the time higher pay, but they enjoy none of the benefits of a veteran; consequently their total compensation is much less.

Will Congress make provision for their just credit or forget what they have done and require them to serve again?

Mediterranean Confederation

Your May 10 editorial indorsing a confederation of the Mediterranean countries, to resolve the Palestine question, is the most constructive so far suggested by the press or in official circles. The writer has been advocating this approach to the problem in previous letters to The Washington Post and articles in professional magazines for the last three years. It is the most reasonable as well as the most likely to be adopted (as it is being adopted in Europe).

Under Article 51 of the U. N. Charter various regional federations can be formed for defensive and other purposes without destroying the United Nations or excluding Russia. Within regions where problems are less difficult than they are on a world basis, it will be feasible to reduce emphasis on national sovereignty and thus to break down national restrictions on the flow of goods, capital, technical advice and people from country to country. These restrictions are the basic barriers to peace.

In Mediterrania there are now strong motivations toward federation (or confederation), such as the need for mutual defense against Communist imperialism, the need for economic reconstruction, and the need to recover the glories of Jewish-Arab historical learning and cultural accomplishment. The confederation (which can gradually be made stronger) should include Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Libya, Palestine, Trans-Jordan, Ethiopia, Somaliland, Greece, Turkey, Syria, Saudi Arabia and Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

The union would be based on a general recognition of basic needs of all individuals regardless of nationality in the area, the recognition of basic individual rights and the reservation of some degree of sovereignty by the individual states. Palestine, with Trans-Jordan, would become a federation within the large confederation.

The union would have a common defense force, internal free trade and internal freedom of migration. A major aid to unity would be the institution of large public works projects carried on by the confederation particularly in the field of irrigation. Outside capital and technical advice would be provided in the initial stages. The cost would be far less than the cost of continued war in the area.

Jewish immigrants would enter the union as individuals with the same rights as other citizens of the union. The Jewish community of Palestine would have some rights as a state in the confederation but no status as a nation in foreign affairs. Control of Palestine would thus be exercised jointly by the Mediterranean union and by local Palestinian-Trans-Jordan authorities. This should appease Arab objections and at the same time satisfy minimum Jewish demands. The admission of 500,000 Jews to citizenship in the union, not necessarily to Palestine, would relieve Jewish displaced persons in Europe and also provide technical intelligence to aid the Arabs in the industrialization of their countries.

To retain their power the Arab leaders would probably have to institute land reforms, which are among the major needs for democratization of the area in any genuine sense. Such reforms would lead to real democratic federation.

New Experts On World Woe

By Malvina Lindsay

When Youth Takes Over

LISTENING to the latest stiff-necked vaporing on international problems, you decide that it might be just as well to hand the world over to the atom bomb, or a germ deluge or a cosmic ray and get it off your mind. People, much less nations, are never going to get together and do anything. All that remains is for the individual to seek as much safety—or as much fun—as he can in the time left.

Still . . . there are those boys out in Nebraska, the 15 students at the State University, and the 100 who later joined them, in volunteering their services—yes, and their lives if necessary—to serve in an international police force under command of the United Nations. It was to be one, they wrote President Truman, "dedicated to guarantee to all the peoples of the world the presence of justice, of law and of order." And there are the 200 at Princeton who made a similar offer.

Oh, well, that's impulsive youth, you tell yourself. And of course those boys could well afford to take such a stand because the U. N. hasn't any police force, or any prospects of one.

YET . . . you have to admit the boys were deadly serious. Each had made a thoughtful and difficult decision before signing the pledge. "If we are going to die," said one, "we want to die for something in which we believe." And the Nebraska boys had written the President: "We do not believe that peace has ever been achieved or ever can be acheived by the military strength of one nation and her allies . . . but only by a world federal government."

Yes, that was what historians, philosophers and prophets had long been saying. But this was the first time anyone had personally taken hold of the nettle of peace enforcement. Why—why possibly multitudes of young people were ready to do something concrete and positive, something other than uttering swashbuckling threats—like the swivel chair warriors.

The thought excites you! Why, it won't be so very long now before all those young people who have been holding mock party conventions in their colleges, and giving their vacations to world government institutes, young people with energy, confidence, optimism and daring, will be coming on to run things. Maybe they will run them better! Maybe they will take hold of a world drifting toward suicide and set it on the road to sanity!

Still, no use to count too much on youth. It can be very brash, half-baked, opinionated, erratic. That's an old chestnut about the next generation always being able to do a better job than the present one. What has youth ever done in the past politically? In the 1920s its serious members spurned politics, and the other part danced, drank gin, and pursued "hot tips" and "big money." In the 1930s it brooded over its economic woes and stopped its ears to the rumbles of war—until it was trapped. Besides, even if youth did have anything special to give besides cannon fodder, the wait would be too long before it got a voice. By the it would have begun to ossify.

YET THERE are those Nebraska and Princeton boys. Theirs was no a gesture in behalf of themselves. It was not made to gain jobs or opportunities. It was not a move to forestall war for the sake of personal safety. It was not even inspired by the drums of patriotism. It was "for all the peoples of the world."

Perhaps then . . . there is a chance that a very special generation of youth is coming into public life at this time to take over from its jaded and rut-bound elders. Why not? Millions of its numbers are getting their training now on college campuses, where as veterans they have become informed and politically aware of public problems. Millions of other young men have become responsible beyond their years by their experiences in war and in the founding of families. Thousands of others are getting the larger picture of things through foreign study and scholarships. It will be a generation aware, as has been no other, of the global dangers ahead.

No, you won't give up on the world just yet. If everybody who is tired and discouraged can hold on awhile longer there may be newer, stronger and perhaps more skillful hands to take the oars.

ADDENDA—This column wishes to clarify a recent statement to the effect that Judge Marion J. Harron, the only woman member of the United States Tax Court, had never "had a decision reversed by the Supreme Court." The official records of the court show this to be correct. However, the statement has been challenged by a lawyer, who cites one instance in which the Supreme Court remanded a case to the Tax Court for reconsideration in the light of one of its own decisions made after the Tax Court decision. This point is of interest chiefly to lawyers who will understand the distinctions between remandment and reversal of a decision of the lower court.

West Virginia Primary

The Associated Press dispatch from Charleston in your issue of May 14 about the West Virginia primary states that Rush Holt was a candidate to succeed himself in 1940. This is incorrect. He passed it up and ran for Governor in 1944 and was defeated badly by our present Governor Meadows.

In 1940 the candidates for the Senate were former Governor Kump of Elkins and Judge Kilgore of Beckley who is now in the Senate and was reelected in November, 1946.

Reciprocal Trade Act

A Communication

ASIDE from its relation to our bi-partisan foreign policy and ERP, may I cite some reasons why Congress should not permit the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act to be crippled by amendments such as have been proposed by the Ways and Means Committee, with the minority dissenting, but should be extended for two or three years. Among these reasons are:

(1) The act (RTA) is the only medium yet here devised by legislation for selective adjustment of tariff duties through which, at the same time, the United States obtains reciprocal concessions in foreign tariffs.

(2) If it lapses, existing agreements, some 40 in number, will remain in effect for their prescribed terms—in no case more than three years. But the President will no longer have authority to make, in order to meet possibly changed conditions, adjustment of duties up or down. With the act in effect, such changes in existing agreements can be negotiated within prescribed limits. The agreements contain escape clauses which can be availed of in the case of excessive importation or frustration of our benefits by action of other governments. But the lapsing of the right of the President to adjust rates after negotiation would rob the whole trade agreement structure of the flexibility which is one of its qualifications and which will be needed as world trade returns to normal.

AMENDMENTS limiting the President's negotiating authority or subjecting it to the possibility of congressional veto would complicate, delay and place in jeopardy new agreements or changes in old.

It is likely that other countries as well as the United States may desire adjustments which would make modification desirable but this will be impossible or made extremely difficult if the act lapses. Either would be accepted as a forewarning of disintegration and eventual termination of all agreements.

3. The lapsing of the act would be notice to the world that the United States is changing its tariff policy. But no alternative policy has yet been formulated. The American tariff today is the Act of 1930 (Hawley-Smoot) as modified by the trade agreements in force and by application of the most-favored-nation principle of extending the agreement concessions to all nations which grant us similar favorable treatment in return.

4. Is the country or the Congress prepared to revert to readjustment of the tariff only by general tariff revision, by Congress, at infrequent intervals? For many decades it has been found practically impossible to legislate on the tariff selectively, i. e., without an entire overhauling. The risk of precipitating a general revision has been too great to risk. The business and political unsettlements brought or aggravated by some general revisions are well remembered.

THE TARIFF of 1930 provides for adjustment on a basis of comparative foreign and American cost; but this did not work in the early thirties when last essayed. Could it work in the present unsettled era of unstable currencies, trade controls, etc.? That the tariff-making power resides in Congress is a constitutional fact. In the RTA Congress delegated, within prescribed limits, its tariff-making power to the Executive, just as it had delegated its powers in other fields such as interstate commerce, public health, etc. Such delegation has been found almost imperative where flexibility of administration is desirable. Congress has always been able to take back its tariff-making power because it was never delegated for more than three years. But it chose to extend the act four times.

Our trade with countries with which we had agreements grew more rapidly than where there were none before the war. The policy evolved by Cordell Hull was the first check to the competitive tariff raising that started in the 20s. It was a factor in knitting closer relations with Latin America and expanding trade with the sister republics.

During the war they had little effect for the United States was the only great supplier. The world bought goods wherever obtainable. As more normal conditions are restored the agreements will be tested. It is improbable that all will wholly satisfy. This signifies that the present is a dangerous time to strip the President of authority by negotiation with friendly countries, with whom we are cooperating in so many other ways, to adjust tariff relations in a way that will speed the recovery of world trade.

Extension of the act unchanged for two or three years will keep the tariff out of the campaign at least as a major issue. If shortcomings and defects are developed they can be corrected without scrapping the whole reciprocity idea. Both parties have sanctioned the principle in the past. Moreover such an extension would probably effectively work against any premature demand for another general tariff revision.

NOBODY favors the wholesale sweeping away of the tariff or laying American industry open to an inundation of foreign goods. The act and the agreements are proof against this. But the United States does need and can safely absorb more foreign goods. They are needed for our life and industry, to supplement our own waning national resources in a number of strategic lines, to better balance our chronic excess of exports and to recoup some of the vast amount being advanced to other nations to aid their recovery.

The RTA and the agreements have been so much discussed in terms of obtaining concessions from others that their defensive character has escaped due attention. However, they can be so administered as to check discrimination against American commerce. The whole spirit of the act and the agreements is that of nondiscriminatory multilateral foreign trade.

WHILE some restrictions are being tolerated on the part of other countries in the interest of the recovery effort, these may well become irksome and extremely unfair. About 20 of the agreements now in effect are subject to termination on six months notice by either party; all are terminable in the event of unduly prejudicial results. It is unlikely that any important country would like to be without one of these agreements in case the U. S. should suggest its termination unless discriminatory practices were terminated.

Of course no act is sacrosanct. The big question is whether the RTA is to remain a reciprocity act in principle or be frustrated.

The amendment proposing extension for only one year instead of two or three as hitherto would keep it under a sword of Damocles and precipitate another renewal struggle next year. The proposed amendment detaching the tariff commission from negotiation but empowering it to set limits on the tariff adjusting power already delegated by Congress to the President, is a far-reaching change. This, with the proposed requirement that any agreement must run the gantlet of a congressional veto within 60 days if the President does not conform to the tariff commission "metes and bounds" is a form of double jeopardy.

So little time remains before June 12 that failure to extend the act for a greater period than one year and binding it with crippling amendments would be a shock to the world and accepted as a blazing signal of isolation.

Washington Calling

Shrouded Truth In Greece

THE MURDER of George Polk of the Columbia Broadcasting System in Greece is like a sudden lightning flash in the murky atmosphere of that troubled country. It deserves the fullest investigation, which should have the backing of the Government of the United States.

Childs

I saw George Polk in Athens last fall. He was one of three or four really able correspondents in Greece. Both in the war, as a Navy combat flier, and then on his beat in the strife-ridden Middle East, Polk had repeatedly proved his courage, his initiative, his determination.

Because he wanted to get the story behind the surface of the news, he was not content to take government handouts and government favors. In the midst of the intrigues of Athens, he kept his eyes on the main goal—to give the American people the whole story regardless of who might be hurt or offended.

As a consequence, he was resented in high places in the Athens government. He told me last September of the effort to smear him as a "Red" or a "Pink"—a favorite technique of the extreme Rightists who dominate the Athens regime. While Polk did not take this too seriously, he realized that he had made enemies because of his criticisms of the failures and stupidities of the Athens government.

That is one reason why the first attempt to put the blame on the Communists, with whom he was supposed to be trying to make a contact in order to interview General Markos, must not be taken at its face value. That is too easy, and the regime in Athens should be made to understand that it is too easy.

THIS COMES at a time when rumors persist of a new build-up to be launched from Athens and Washington—a build-up of the need for American troops in Greece. What George Polk might have said and written when he returned to the United States—as he planned to do—could have interfered with that build-up.

Last winter, an article on Greece by Polk appeared in Harper's magazine. It seemed to me to be a critical but a fair appraisal of the muddle in Athens. Nevertheless, the Greek Ambassador in Washington, Vassili C. Dendramis, sent a violent protest to Polk's employer, CBS.

Dendramis' protest was politely rejected by Frank Stanton, CBS president. It was forwarded to Polk in Athens, who considered it a more or less open effort by Dendramis to bring about his discharge. Davidson Taylor, vice president in charge of public affairs, tells me that CBS had complete confidence in Polk and that his decision to come to the United States for a year's study at Harvard as a Nieman Fellow had nothing to do with his relationship with the network.

It is because of such reporters as Polk and others that the network has achieved its high standard of news coverage. Edward Murrow of CBS, in several able discussions of the Greek tangle in recent months, gave full credit to Polk for digging out the background and the facts.

UNTIL recently there were several American correspondents in Greece interested in getting more than the routine news and not at all interested in sending out merely the government point of view. Among them were M. W. Fodor of The Washington Post, Homer Bigart of the New York Herald Tribune, and Constantine Argyris of the Christian Science Monitor.

Today only Argyris is left in Athens. Recently Bigart's dispatches were severely criticized by Dwight Griswold, administrator of the American aid program, in a letter to the Herald Tribune. Bigart was transferred to Belgrade but the Herald Tribune says that this was at his own request and that he expects to return to Greece.

We need more than ever today the kind of reporting George Polk was doing in Greece. What is really taking place there is far from clear as the headlines tell of a series of mass executions in Athens.

It is possible that Polk was killed in an effort to establish contact with the Communists and to get an interview with the mysterious General Markos. That is the kind of adventurous reporter he was. But the circumstances surrounding his death, as reported from Salonika, do not make it sound that way.

I have lost a friend, a gallant and loyal friend. I last saw him at a wedding party when he was about to marry a charming young Greek girl. He was gay and very happy.

We have all lost a man who believed in freedom and in truth, and it is a loss we can ill afford.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Dewey, Stassen And The Future

PORTLAND, OREG.—There is precious little love lost between the rivals in the great struggle for Oregon. Governors Thomas E. Dewey and Harold E. Stassen are fighting each other here for very survival. Each knows and admits it. Each has mobilized his sharpest operatives and thrown in painfully large amounts of cash in order to win. And as politicians will in these circumstances, each regards the other with the approximate enthusiasm of a man finding a slug in his salad.

Ironically, the always fallible experts expect a very close outcome in this Oregon primary. If this is correct, the chief beneficiary of all the Dewey-Stassen sound and fury is more than ever likely to be Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg. Yet if Vandenberg is nominated, it can be said on highest authority that he will serve as President for only one term. Political logic also suggests that he would probably choose either Dewey or Stassen as his running-mate and heir.

In prospects as well as in age, therefore, these two bitter rivals may be taken as standing for the Republican future, just as Senator Robert A. Taft represents the Republican past. The present primary has a special interest, as a sort of agitated showcase in which the pair are, willy nilly, very much on view together.

THE CONTRAST between them begins at the beginning, with the facades they present to the world. Stassen is cooly self-confident, lacking any apparent awareness of an audience, and calmly deliberate in decision and action. Dewey, on the other hand, is always aware of his audience. He plainly calculates his effects. He makes a show of his briskness and decisiveness, which, though real, seem also intended to impress. Stassen, one suspects, has always ruled those around him without effort. Dewey has always had to assert himself in order to dominate his environment.

It is this visible effort to be master that causes so many people to be put off by Dewey.

Both are exceedingly clever and exceedingly ambitious. Both have the coldness of personality that goes with intense ambition, but Stassen's ambition shows less behind the screen of his greater self-confidence, which is another reason why he is better liked. Dewey is idolized by his entourage, however. And while both have strikingly able men around them, Dewey's group is more impressive in point of all around experience.

Dewey, who is predominantly an administrator, uses his associates as a genuine general staff, admitting them to all his decisions on an almost equal basis. Stassen, on the other hand, is predominantly a political organizer who has accomplished in the past two years, half unnoticed, feats worthy of Mark Hanna. As such men do, he makes up his own mind, and uses his subordinates chiefly to execute his decisions. Stassen's turn of mind is original and experimental; years in office have given Dewey something of the official conventionality of a first-class civil servant.

FINALLY, in the basic realm of ideals, Dewey stands for sensible fact-facing, whether the facts be the implications of Soviet foreign policy, or the great social changes of the Roosevelt years. On the domestic front, he says in effect, "I believe in everything that has been done, but I shall do it much, much better," adding under his breath, "and I shan't make any further innovations unless I have to."

This credo, scorned by fools, is in truth the essence of classical conservatism, without which democratic politics could not be carried on. In foreign policy, his approach is much the same—to do better, more rapidly and more firmly just about what is now being done.

It is just in this realm of ideas, in contrast, that Stassen is most puzzling. Not so very long ago, he was advocating qualified world government, and contributing to the General Motors strike fund. Now he has published a book which, as Arthur Schlesinger, jr., remarked, places him in domestic politics slightly to the right of Senator Taft. He is also beating the drum for dropping our own economic iron curtain along the border of the Soviet sphere, and above all, for legal suppression of the Communist Party.

IMPARTIAL observers who have watched Stassen for a long time believe that he is making those appeals to the Republican right-wing in the spirit of Henry IV of France, who accepted conversion with the comment, "Paris is well worth a Mass." But it cost the French nation nothing to have one man go to church. It will cost this Nation more than one can estimate, if hordes of secret police are to be turned loose for purposes of political thought control. And Stassen himself is unable to say at all clearly how else his proposal to suppress the Communists is to be carried out in practice. The impression that is left is far from reassuring.

In the realm of ideas, in fact, the advantage must be given to Dewey, who has grown greatly since his own experiments in political expediency in 1940. Yet anyone who watches Stassen in action cannot help but feel that the big, impressive man would develop greatly under the burden of responsibility. It is silly to pretend that either Stassen or Dewey is a "liberal," as both fashionably claim. But with all their enmity, Dewey and Stassen jointly promise a rebirth of intelligent American conservatism, which is already something to be grateful for after the past 16 years.

Vandenberg Ahead Of Truman in Poll

By George Gallup

Princeton, N. J., May 18.—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg holds a substantial lead over President Truman in a presidential "trial heat" race conducted by the Institute.

The Michigan Senator, outstanding Republican expert of foreign affairs, has frequently disavowed any desire for the Republican nomination and has done no campaigning for it. But his name is continually mentioned by political leaders as a possible choice at the convention which meets in Philadelphia June 21.

To test his position in the minds of voters the Institute pitted him against Truman and against Henry A. Wallace, third party candidate, as follows:

If the presidential election were being held today, and Truman were running for President on the Democratic ticket against Vandenberg on the Republican ticket and against Wallace on the third party ticket, how do you think you would vote?

The results compare as follows with a similar test reported in April:

	Today	Apr. 11
Vandenberg	45%	44%
Truman	39	39
Wallace	5	7
No opinion	11	10

From time to time during the last few months the Institute has tested the appeal of other Republican candidate possibilities in similar trial heats.

At the end of March a trial heat matching Governor Thomas E. Dewey against Truman and Wallace found Governor Dewey running ahead. As released April 11 the results showed Governor Dewey with 47 per cent, Truman with 39 per cent, Wallace with 7 per cent, while 7 per cent expressed no opinion. Those figures are, of course, no reflection of present-day sentiment on a Dewey-Truman-Wallace race. How much the situation has changed in the intervening time remains to be shown in future surveys.

A trial heat matching Harold E. Stassen against Truman and Wallace was reported last week. It showed Stassen with 56 per cent, Truman with 33 per cent, Wallace with 5 per cent, while 6 per cent expressed no choice.

In the Vandenberg-Truman-Wallace race the poll figures show Vandenberg with a long lead in the Middle Western section of the country.

The sectional results follow:

	Vandenberg	Truman	Wal.	No Opin.
N. Eng. & M. Atl.	47%	36%	7%	10%
E. Cent.	51	34	5	10
W. Cent.	50	39	3	10
South	29	53	3	15
Mtn. & Pac. Coast	42	42	5	11

Political observers are assuming that Truman will be renominated by the Democratic Party, but the race for the Republican nomination is becoming more and more spirited as convention time approaches. While it is the convention delegates and not the voters of the Republican Party who will do the picking of the candidate, surveys throughout the rank and file of the party show the relative popularity of the leading contenders.

The most recent Institute test of that kind showed Stassen and Vandenberg both gaining popularity as follows:

NOMINATION (Among GOP Voters Only)	POPULARITY
	Apr. 25	May 14
Stassen	31%	37%
Dewey	29	24
Vandenberg	10	13
MacArthur	16	12
Taft	9	8
Warren	2	2
Joseph Martin	1	1
No choice	2	3

British Hotel Expert Likes Lack of Formality in U. S.

Pajamas laid out at night . . . a shoe shine by the American version of a "boots" . . . suits brushed and hung . . .

Courtenay

But for such small amenities American hotels are tops in anybody's country, a British expert said here yesterday.

The comment, by Ashley Courtenay, who is to British hotels what Duncan Hines is to United States restaurants, was promptly seconded by his attractive wife, who said:

"I was perfectly horrified my first night in America when I came back to my hotel and found the beds hadn't been turned down—of all things!

Courtenay, who's spent the last 10 years studying hundreds of British hostelries and has put his views into a book brought up to date annually, found much more to praise than lambast in hotel management here, however.

What he liked most—and this is something he hopes to introduce in his own country—is the lack of formality in U. S. hotels.

"To find a coffee shop, a drug store—and to be able to get a sundae, why that's terrific," he asserted.

In England the "average person is much too frightened" to stop in at a top-flight hotel, Mrs. Courtenay, who's somewhat of an expert on the subject herself, pointed out. Here, on the other hand, she said, "you can stop in for a cup of coffee or a glass of water almost."

Courtenay said he would urge, on his return next month, that British hotels "thaw" a bit and become greater centers of community activity. The couple, who stopped here at the Mayflower, are on a six-weeks tour of the country studying hotel operations. They return June 9 on the Queen Mary.

Prejudices Due To Environment, Prof. Watson Says

Group prejudices are not inborn, but are inculcated by environment, Prof. Goodwin Watson of Teachers College, Columbia University, told a seminar sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews here last night.

He told the group that Negro, White relations have been improving during the past 20 years and should continue to improve. As for Washington, he expressed the opinion that intergroup relations were also in process of change for the better.

Most potent influence in modifying prejudices is participation in experiences on a basis of equality, he said. He urged that all channels open for association between groups be used.

Dr. Watson cited Fair Employment Practices legislation, unsegregated housing, athletics and educational facilities as fostering better relations between racial and religious groups.

Capt. Hugh Jones Retires From Arlington Police

Capt. Hugh C. Jones, 45, member of the Arlington Police Force since 1927, was retired Monday by the Arlington Pension and Retirement Board.

JONES

Griffin T. Garnett, jr., board secretary, said the board acted on Jones' request on basis of a disability sustained in 1931 when a motorcycle he was riding skidded under the wheels of an automobile.

The disability has grown until it is now "a hazard in his work," Garnett said. He will receive approximately $185 a month in retirement pay.

Jones lives at 205 S. Ivy st., Arlington; is married and has no children.

McLean Auction Totals $225,000

The week-long auction of furnishings at Friendship, the Evalyn Walsh McLean estate, brought about $225,000 in sales, it was reported by Norman Diamond.

The item getting the high est bid was a walnut piano decorated with gilt, a period piece which sold to a New York piano dealer for $7500.

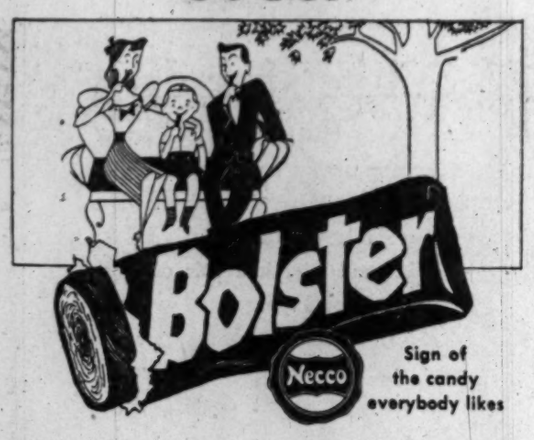

The furnishings and personal property had been appraised at about $134,000, Diamond said. The house and real property are for sale.

The attorney explained that about $150,000 of the sales proceeds will be credited to Mrs. McLean's estate and the rest to the estate of John R. McLean, her father-in-law.

Dewey Would Invite Many to Red Talks

Gresham, Oreg., May 18 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey declared today that the only basis for United States consultations with Russia affecting world peace must be one including "all the free nations of the world."

"We must not start private negotiations leaving any of the other free nations outside," he said.

The New York Governor, a Republican presidential aspirant in the Oregon primary, for the first time brought the Stalin-Wallace "peace" exchange into his campaign utterances.

"If we are invited to join in negotiations with the Soviet Union we should make no settlements behind the backs of our friends," Dewey said.

"That's what we did during the last war. That's the way we gave away half of Poland, much of Manchuria and spheres of influence in the Balkans, which has resulted in Communist domination and control of the nations of central Europe."

Taft-Dewey Stop-Stassen Drive Charged by Stassen

Roseburg, Oreg., May 18 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen said here tonight that Dewey and Taft forces were combined to stop him in his bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

At the climax of a heavy campaigning day in which he traveled nearly the width of the State of Oregon, Stassen told a Roseburg audience that the "combination of opposition has directed its full force on this Oregon primary. An unprecedented amount of newspaper advertising, billboards, radio time, paid campaign workers, and contacts, have put on a tremendous opposing campaign."

Senator Taft is not entered in the Oregon primary election, which has only Stassen and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York on the Republican presidential preference ballot.

Stassen urged his supporters to renew efforts in the two days left before the Oregon primary balloting Friday. He predicted a victory for himself if his supporters carry on a door-to-door campaign until the polls close.

The Minnesota former Governor insisted he had won in last night's debate with Dewey, which he said "has removed the distorted issue of communism from the campaign."

Stassen cited "Governor Dewey's agreement to back the Mundt-Nixon bill," and said he himself "was entirely satisfied with this bill as equivalent to the outlawing of the fifth-column activities of the Communist Party."

"His (Dewey's) earlier position that present laws were adequate is left behind," Stassen asserted.

Who Won Debate Argued in Oregon

Portland, Oreg., May 18 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Harold E. Stassen resumed their rigorous campaign today for Oregon's presidential preference, leaving unsettled a big question for the man on the street:

"Who won tha debate on the issue of outlawing the Communist Party—Dewey or Stassen?"

The pros and cons of communism were aired before a Nation-wide radio audience last night by the two candidates in Friday's primary election.

After an hour-long debate—Stassen in the affirmative, Dewey the negative—the issue was as hot as ever.

Dewey interpreted his opponent's stand as a "complete surrender." Stassen declared Dewey "sort of walked around" the issue.

The decision won't be handed down until Friday, when 300,000 Republicans are eligible to cast primary ballots.

Before Dewey left here he discussed his ideas of a National fiscal policy before a gathering og businessmen in Portland.

The day is gone, he told them, "when a billion dollars was a lot of money for the Federal Government to spend."

But, he said, "we have the right to demand our Government should be managed by the most competent people in our country."

"We can no longer afford to leave big government in the hands of little men."

Dewey said national defense costs this year exceeded the total cost of government in 1940.

Yet, he asserted, "none of us is willing" to economize on the national safety. Nor can the Nation "pinch pennies" at the expense of veterans' benefits or large-scale Government invesmtent in development of natural resources.

"Within sound and reasonable limits," he said, "we should pursue Government investment in developa shrinking economy but to an expanding and more abundant society."

Stassen to Campaign One Day in Illinois

Ontario, Oreg., May 18 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen, Republican presidential aspirant, announced his Illinois speaking schedule today.

Stassen said he would spend only the day of May 28 in Illinois, appearing in three cities: At noon in Decatur, at 3:30 p. m.; in Champaign, at a 7 p. m. dinner with the Illinois Press Association in Peoria.

Essay Contest Winners

Prize winners in the 10 Prince Georges high schools who submitted the best essay on "Service Internationally" will be announced at a dinner meeting of the College Park Rotary Club at 6:15 tonight at Varsity Grill. Best essay in each school was selected and from these the grand winner will be selected.

Sen. Baldwin Voted Favorite Son by Connecticut GOP

Hartford, Conn., May 18 (AP).—The Republican State convention today named Senator Raymond E. Baldwin as Connecticut's favorite-son candidate for the presidential nomination.

A resolution calling him "the outstanding candidate for the office of President of the United States," was unanimously approved.

"The delegates," the resolution said, "are urged to place his name before the Republican National Convention."

The resolution declared Baldwin "demonstrated the highest qualities of leadership as a statesman" during his three terms as Governor and his present service in the Senate.

Sen. Martin Boomed In Pennsylvania Drive

Philadelphia, May 18 (AP).—A drive to obtain the Republican presidential nomination for Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania, was under way today, headed by two figures prominent in veterans' affairs.

Paul H. Griffith and Representative E. Van Zandt (R., Pa.), past national commander of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, respectively, launched the drive with the opening of Martin-for-President headquarters here under the auspices of the veterans committee of Pennsylvania.

The cochairmen hailed Pennsylvania's former Governor as the man "qualified in this fight to the finish to make Senator Martin the Republican nominee for President."

Rich La. Oil Man Appointed Senator

Baton Rouge, La., May 18 (AP).—Gov. Earl K. Long today named William C. Feazel, independent oil and gas producer of Monroe and Shreveport, United States Senator from Louisiana to succeed the late Senator John H. Overton.

Feazel will serve until the general election in November.

The middle-aged Feazel was born and reared on a farm near Farmerville in Union Parish, where he has made fortunes in gas and oil explorations and production. He resides in West Monroe, but maintains business headquarters in Shreveport.

Russell Long, son of the late Huey Long and now executive counsel to the Governor, is being groomed by friends as a candidate in the general election for Overton's unfinished term.

Former Governor Noe Freed in 'Fixing' Case

New Orleans, May 18 (U.P.).—Former Gov. James A. Noe was acquitted in Federal Court today of jury-fixing charges and he immediately announced that he will seek the Senate seat of the late John H. Overton in September.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Cadillac

POPULARITY

In the short time that has elapsed since the 1948 Cadillacs were presented to America, the number of orders placed with Cadillac dealers has broken every existing record. And, every day, the car's popularity continues to grow.

There could be, of course, but one basic reason for this unprecedented swing to Cadillac: the extraordinary beauty and individuality of the new Cadillac models. For only a relatively few people have had the opportunity to drive these wonderful cars—and, thus, to learn that their performance is just as advanced as their exterior design.

Today, you can see Cadillac leadership as never before—and it is obvious that new thousands are resolving to end all compromise and make their next car the "Standard of the World." See these great motor cars in our showrooms.

No Usher Hiring At Belasco Yet

By Richard L. Coe

BEFORE YOU START thinking about going to the Belasco Theater for your stage plays, you might as well face the fact that L'Affaire Belasco is still in the iffy stage.

This is not intended to be a prophecy of doom. But certainly everyone should know that getting the theater back in shape for stage plays still presents innumerable hurdles. To do so will require a vast amount of cooperation from any number of people. The Federal Works Agency has made a fine official first step, and for at least two years private individuals have been hammering away at the problem.

The next step on the agenda will be for the Public Buildings Administration to issue invitations for bids. These advertisements may be expected shortly, but at the moment the PBA isn't certain when.

Much will depend on the cancellation clause of the PBA's offer. Generally, as in the property, houses, etc., it controls around town, these contain a 60-day cancellation clause. This is inserted in the event that either the Government may need the buildings or that it may receive an appropriation for needed buildings.

In the case of a theater, however, it would be madness for any producer to run the risk of improving a property with his investments and then have the rug pulled from under him. In the case of the Belasco it's possible that the Government may permit a one-year clause. (The Belasco property and the adjoining Cosmos Club are wanted for a Treasury Department annex extension, for which congressional appropriation must first be obtained. Just when this may come through is up to Congress.)

Goes to Highest Bidder

Then there is the fact that if a movie company enters a higher bid than a theatrical producer, the Government will be forced to take the highest bid. Just how the movie people will bid remains to be seen, but their activity cannot be discounted.

However, assuming that a stage group, rather than a screen setup, enters the top bid, that producer must be game enough to face several facts.

He'll have to be willing to take the risk that Congress may make the Treasury's requested appropriation. His chances are pretty good, though. Congress has only just okayed a new courthouse to keep the judges from holding court in the streets, and appropriations recently have been made to get all of the scattered General Accounting Office together from the 30 buildings it now occupies. What appealed to Congress in the latter move was the saving of three million dollars by pulling the numerous divisions together. Still, it's most likely it would take a theater man at least from eight to ten years to recover his investment in refurbishing the Belasco.

True, he might be able to salvage half of his investment of new seats, heating, cooling and backstage lighting equipment, which would be one shot of blue on an uncertain horizon.

Fire Regulations

Then there remains the theater itself. The problem here includes the District fire regulations. These are subject, according to the D. C. Building Inspection Department and the fire marshal, to many factors. While certain requirements for existing buildings may be suspended, the fire exit requirements remain an iffy proposition.

It is, for instance, perfectly possible that structural changes may be necessary (indeed one producer so fears) that will reduce the seating capacity of the theater to 950 seats. It's possible that without changes the Belasco will seat 1300, but that's 380 less than the National does right now.

For a theater to seat only 950 persons would by no means guarantee a profit for theatrical ventures at their present rate of admission and backstage costs. There are some half dozen New York houses with as small a seating capacity, including the fine 977-seat Music Box, but for a large cast or a musical they'd have to be scaled higher than Washington theatergoers are used to paying. At all events, the seating capacity of the Belasco will reckon high in a potential renter's calculations.

ANTA'S Natural Home

Even with these important hurdles in mind, the New York theater producers are decidedly interested in obtaining the Belasco. The lively ANTA, Herman Shumlin, Lee Shubert, Louis Lotito of the City Investment Corp. and some other active groups have indicated a listening ear.

ANTA, of course, would be a most welcome association for Washington, since the American National Theater and Academy was chartered by Congress 12 years ago. (Charter it got, but money none). As treasurer of this organization, Producer Gilbert Miller has signified his great interest in the building. Should ANTA manage to make the successful bid, the Belasco would become the home in the Nation's Capital not only of ANTA's Experimental Theater, but also of plays other organizations would wish to tour.

Strong for ANTA is the Washington Art Center Association, which has done yeoman work in poking the Belasco back to its original form. Executive Secretary J. G. Frain has publicly hoped his group can effect Washington visits for ANTA's Experimental Theater and has considered the advisability of raising a public subscription to avoid the possibility of a film company taking over the theater. (Frain is referring to the fact that one of the applicants for the theater probably will be Joseph H. Curtis, son of Jack Cohn, vice president of Columbia Pictures, and nephew of Harry Cohn, president of Columbia Pictures.)

At all events, what we're driving at is that the future of the legitimate stage in Washington remains at a completely iffy stage, despite the hopeful release of the building by FWA. Only a pack of cooperative work will assure the future.

Disability Victim

Another Foe Of Murphy To Be Retired

John L. Werheim, 54-year-old Fire Department battalion chief, will retire on a $260-a-month pension June 1 due to physical disability, the Commissioners announced yesterday.

Capt. George L. Darling, 52, recommended by Fire Chief Clement Murphy as the "best qualified captain" to succeed Werheim, was advanced to battalion chief at $6242 a year.

Werheim

Pollard

Werheim was the second critic of Chief Murphy to be retired for physical disability within a week. Retirement of Carlisle S. Peterson, battalion chief and executive officer of the department, was announced May 11.

Both Werheim and Peterson testified against Chief Murphy during his January trial on "demoralization" charges. A special civilian trial board acquitted Murphy.

Werheim's retirement was recommended by the Retiring and Relief Board after the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons found him "incapacitated for further duty" because of heart trouble and vein infection in his legs.

The veteran of more than 31 years' service has been with the department since April 14, 1914, except for a period between June, 1916, and July, 1919, which he spent in the police department and the Navy.

Also approved for disability retirement June 1 was Sergt. Johnson K. Pollard, 42, assigned as a clerk at Fire Department headquarters. The board said a knee he fractured in April, 1933, had given him "continuous trouble" and showed "definite evidence of arthritis."

Pollard, who has served the department continuously for 16½ years, will receive a $161 a-month pension, the Commissioners said. He and his wife, Nellie, live at 1126 Branch ave. se.

Darling, captain of No. 2 Engine Co., probably will be assigned to Werheim's post as chief of No. 5 Battalion, department officials said.

Werheim and his wife, Hazel, live at 19 Riggs rd. ne. Darling lives with his wife, Martha, and a son at 5423 8th st. nw.

Senate Vote Due Today on Rivers Bill Cut

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Senate is scheduled to vote today on a hotly debated motion to lop 200 million dollars from the record-breaking 700-million-dollar fund for river, harbor and flood control projects.

Little chance of success in the Senate is seen for the GOP economy bloc spearheading the drive to reduce the funds, but House leaders are known to favor the move.

The Senate battle, therefore, is looked upon as a way to strengthen the hands of the House when the bill gets into conference between the two Houses.

The motion to recommit the bill and cut it by nearly one-third was made by Senator Clyde M. Reed (R., Kans.) on behalf of Chairman Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) and himself as a minority of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Senate Chieftain Robert A. Taft (R., O.) has thrown his full support behind the economy move.

This is the time, in a boom period, when this country should cut down, not increase, public works, Taft maintained.

He warned that this Nation faces a possible depression because "we are trying to do too many things at one time, until we are beyond the capacity of the Nation."

Taft urged his colleagues to hold spending within reasonable limits so the budget could be balanced.

Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) replied that this country is not operating under any scientific budget, but rather under a "hodge-podge" budget.

19-Cent Oleo Boost Feared in 'Squeeze'

By the Associated Press

Congress was told yesterday that unnamed groups which expect passage of a bill to repeal oleomargarine taxes are trying to corner the market on cottonseed oil. The oil is a major ingredient of margarine.

This will force the price of oleo up at least 19 cents a pound, Dyke Cullum, a D. C. resident, president of the National Commodity Corp., told a House investigating committee.

The House already has passed a bill to repeal the 62-year-old tax on oleo, and hearings were held by the Senate yesterday on a similar bill.

The Senate Finance Committee Monday heard 25 witnesses argue in favor of repeal, and yesterday listened to some 16 others who are against it. Eventual Senate approval of some sort of a repeal bill was predicted by the committee's chairman, Senator Millikin (R., Colo.).

One argument advanced in favor of repeal has been that elimination of the tax would reduce the price of oleo and help housewives balance their food budgets.

Cullum said yesterday a "squeeze" in the cottonseed oil market will cost housewives at least 19 cents a pound in higher prices for oleo. He tossed a package of oleo on a table before the committee.

Predicts 60-Cent Oleo

"This cost me 41 cents this morning," he said. "It will cost at least 60 cents if the squeeze continues and the price of cottonseed oil stays up."

Representative August H. Andresen (R., Minn.), subcommittee chairman, said he had been told May 7 that Procter & Gamble Co. and Best Foods Corp. were trying to "corner the market" in cottonseed oil by buying up all May contracts for oil.

He said the price of the oil jumped from 29.75 cents on April 7 to 43 cents on May 14.

Cullum said the price of crude cottonseed oil would have to drop to about 25 cents a pound to keep oleo prices down. He did not name any specific companies, but said:

"There has been a group which has taken unfair advantage of the lifting of oleomargarine taxes, expecting a rise in margarine prices."

Floyd M. Barnes of Cincinnati, vice president of Procter & Gamble, acknowledged his company bought 47 cars of oil from March 14 to April 20, but said the oil was for the company's own use. He said the purchase was made because the cottonseed oil market was "very tight" and was expected to get tighter.

Barnes said his firm agreed to sell 10 carloads of refined oil May 11 to help ease the shortage when the New York Produce Exchange asked it to. He said the oil was sold May 13 at 41 cents a pound, and that his firm made about $60,000 on the deal.

Oleo Fraud Discussed

"We didn't want to sell the oil," he said. "We wanted to keep it for our own products."

The Senate Finance Committee yesterday heard witnesses argue that oleomargarine would be substituted for butter if oleo taxes are repealed. Yesterday's hearings were the last.

Opponents, mainly from dairy States, contend oleo will be passed off as butter. The original tax, voted 62 years ago, was designed to raise funds to pay investigators to see that no such fraud was practiced. It also helped bring the price of oleo closer to that of butter.

Charles W. Holman, secretary of the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation, urged Congress to keep some taxes on oleomargarine, but to repeal the import duty on foreign oleo.

John Brandt, president of the milk producers group, said in a statement that the repeal bill would "legalize a raid by one industry upon the established good will and on the markets of another industry."

Henry A. Lepper, chief of the Food and Drug Administration's dairy section, testified that "fraud and deception of oleo as butter can be controlled" without the tax law, so far as movement of oleo in interstate commerce is concerned.

Senate Confirms Jess Larson as Chief of WAA

The Senate yesterday confirmed the nomination of Jess Larson of Oklahoma to be War Assets administrator.

Larson

The Senate acted by voice vote after defeating, by a standing vote, a motion by Senator Tydings (D., Md.) to send the nomination back to the Expenditures Committee. That group had already approved Larson's five-month-old appointment unanimously.

The Senate also confirmed by voice vote the nomination of retired Rear Admiral Paul L. Mather as associate WAA administrator.

Tydings blocked Senate action on Larson's nomination last Thursday.

$33,100 Won by 3 Youths in Roulette Spree

Las Vegas, Nev., May 18 (U.P.).—This gambling town tonight could talk of nothing except the feat of three college youths who in 18 hours at the roulette wheel won $26,700 and ran the total winnings of a gambling spree up to $33,100.

The 18 hours were the climax of eight days at the Pioneer gambling house. Spectators stood 10 deep around the youths, Dr. Roy Walford, Albert Hibbs and Jack Cortez.

All but exhausted, the three quit playing early today, about three hours after their luck ended.

But the $33,100 was not all profit.

The young gamblers disclosed they had been "grubstaked" by Ralph (Farmer) Paige and Tudor Scherer, part-owners of the Pioneer Club. And in keeping with Western tradition, the backers were entitled to half the winnings, leaving the youths a little more than $5000 each.

Conditions of the take provided they could play at any casino in Las Vegas, including the Pioneer Club.

When they quit they had lost on 21 consecutive turns of the wheel.

Early Monday morning the three were $12,300 ahead. They were playing No. 1 and suddenly their number began coming up with regularity.

Walford, Hibbs and Cortez quickly changed from $10 bets to $25 ones. Many of the spectators sensed that they were on a winning streak and joined them in playing one.

As the day wore on, they bet $50 on No. 1. Each time the number came up it cost the gambling casino $1750.

Until after 9 p. m., Hibbs, Walford and Cortez could do nothing but win. Their winnings soared to $39,000. But during the next three hours they dropped about $6000 and decided to quit.

Someday your car had to come along...

You knew
the moment you saw it—this was your car. New, all-new, every inch and pound of it. A big, brawny frame under a sweeping, curved-arch silhouette. Longer, wider, lower—with a road-hugging look that beckoned you to get in and go! When you saw it, you said "This is it! This ALL-NEW 1949 Mercury is for me!"
You heard the proud, soft-spoken, 8-cylinder, V-type engine murmuring gently. You'd heard that sound before. Where? In cars far beyond your budget's reach. But here it was in an engine designed and built exclusively for Mercury... and in a choice of superb body styles, including Mercury's all-new Six-passenger Coupe and Six-passenger Convertible.
You held the wheel easily, because Mercury didn't "wind-wander," didn't "over-steer." Its sure-footed balance and down-to-earth roadability let you hold all roads securely. Its new, bigger, super-balloon tires let you skim over the bumps without a tremor.
You sat
in a wide, "comfort-zone" seat that shaped itself to you—above all-new road-smoothing spring suspension. You filled the car with a controlled flow of fresh, filtered air from the leakproof "Fingertip Weather Control." This was the comfort you wanted in your car. This was Mercury.
You touched
the brake pedal—just a slight touch—and Mercury's new super-brakes brought you gliding to a swift, sure stop. It was then you knew for sure that Mercury had made an all-new car—from top to tires—for you! Your car had finally come along. It was Mercury!

Trans World Airline asked the RFC yesterday for a $10,000,000 loan to avoid defaulting on obligations due soon.

Warren Lee Pierson, TWA chairman, gave the Reconstruction Finance Corporation directors a letter saying that the airline does not have the money to meet payments on obligations soon coming due.

TWA, whose corporate name is Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., borrowed $40,000,000 from Equitable Life Assurance Society in 1946. Payments totaling $1,100,000 on that loan will be due May 28. Pierson told the RFC that if TWA defaults, the entire loan and $8,000,000 of other loans will become due and payable immediately.

TWA is controlled by Howard Hughes, West Coast motion picture producer and manufacturer. Hughes made a $10,000,000 loan available to TWA early in 1947. That was followed by a complete overturn of the top management. LaMotte Cohu, brought in by Hughes as president, resigned recently.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, May 18 (AP).—Mill buying against sales of flour to domestic bakers and for export gave wheat a firm tone today. During the early part of the session the flour grain rallied on reports Government purchasing agencies were following the advance in futures. But it was not until mill buying entered that rallies were sustained.

At the finish wheat was ¾ to 1½ higher than yesterday's close, May 2.46½@2.47. Corn was ⅛ to 3½ higher, May 2.33½@2.33¾. Oats were ⅛ higher to 2 cents lower, May 1.13⅞@1.13. Soybeans were 5 to 8 cents higher, May 4.20.

Stock Prices Sink in Heavy Profit Taking

New York, May 18 (AP).—The stock market dropped abruptly today in one of the sharpest breaks in more than three months. It was the first decline since May 5.

Prices closed with losses of fractions to as much as 3 points.

Volume piled up in the last minute burst of activity and the day's total amounted to 2,480,000 shares. This compared with 3,050,000 Monday. The rush of selling put the high-speed ticker behind floor dealings for 1 to 2 minutes.

Selling orders came mainly from investors and speculators, who wanted to make a profit on the advance which started several months on Friday. Profit taking sales had peppered the market earlier in the session but public demand was still strong enough to hold prices to a fairly steady course. When this demand subsided even for a few minutes, prices weakened rapidly.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined .9 of one point to 70.4, after reaching a high since August, 1946, on Monday. The market lost as much ground on April 26, which was the widest setback since early February.

Steel, motor, mail order, farm implement, metal and railroad stocks were among the hardest hit. Oil company stocks, which paced the spring rally, and aircrafts made a better showing.

Among losers were U. S. Steel at 79⅜, Bethlehem 35⅞, Youngstown Sheet 79¾, General Motors 58⅞, Chrysler 61¼, Studebaker 26¼, Montgomery Ward 62¾, International Harvester 97⅜, Caterpillar Tractor 66½, Anaconda 38½, Kennecott Copper 56½, American Smelting 61¼, American Can 88½, Westinghouse Electric 30¼, Santa Fe 113, Southern Pacific 58¾, Atlantic Coast Line 59½ and Illinois Central 38⅛.

New York Cotton

New York, May 18 (AP).—Cotton futures registered losses of 1.50 to 2.80 a bale today as a heavy liquidating movement developed in late dealings.

The decline, which was accentuated by stop-loss selling, was attributed by traders to favorable crop news, a lower than expected Bureau of Census cotton consumption report and the slow start of export business under ECA.

Nats Win Out, 5-4, on Scarborough's Single in 12th

CHICAGO, MAY 18.—The White Sox are the latest concern of the American League. Chicago used to be an American League town, but the National League Cubs have won it over. Attendance at Comiskey Park this season has sagged to the point where the White Sox are held in almost equal scorn with the St. Louis Browns by the gate-conscious other clubs in the league.

In six home games this season, including the season's inaugural, the Sox have drawn less than 34,000 customers and 14,000 of those were attracted by the opener. Fewer than 2000 saw 'em contest with the Nats today. The Washington club will scarcely make hotel and train expenses during its two-day stay in Chicago.

The disaffection of Chicago fans for the White Sox is understandable enough. They have been a second division club in 24 of the last 28 seasons, and this year they are off to their sourest start in history. Going into today's game they had won only four of their first 20 contests of 1948, and are a dying last if not a dead last. In fact, there is great doubt that the Sox will ever get out of last place.

THERE ARE EVEN YELPS for the managerial scalp of Teddy Lyons, who is universally acclaimed as the nicest guy in baseball. In Chicago, Lyons for two decades has been esteemed much as was the late Walter Johnson in Washington. But attrition in the form of losing ball clubs has set in, and Sox fans are clamoring for a new deal from Lyons down, or up, as the case may be.

There are the usual howls that the ownership of the club is in poor hands, that the Comiskey family takes all out of the club and puts little back in the form of player purchases, The banks, which used to control the White Sox after the death of Lou Comiskey, jr., are no longer blamed since his widow wrested control of the club from the trust arrangement unto which it had been given.

There were rumors that the club would be sold, but they gai scant credence. Mrs. Comiskey says it is the expressed wish of her husband that son Charles, 22, take over at maturity. He is now being groomed as president of the Waterioo, Iowa, farm club. The White Sox rate second only to the Washington Griffiths as a baseball dynasty. Daughter Dorothy is the club treasurer, son-in-law John Rigney is the farm system director.

THE GENERAL MANAGER is Leslie O'Connor. The Comiskeys hired him when Commissioner A. B. Chandler left the door open for O'Connor to resign following the death of Commissioner Landis. Supposedly wise in the baseball business, O'Connor has been no shining success with the Sox. He has expanded their farm system but it hasn't paid off as yet.

O'Connor brushes off the charge that the White Sox are penurious with their dough. He points out that the club spent more than $100,000 for players last year and put more than a half million into park improvements. That latter item is money down the drain, according to a segment of Chicago fans who says Comiskey Park is in such a poor location on the South Side it isn't attractive to start with.

Meanwhile Teddy Lyons is having his own talent troubles. The batting averages of his club read like the time of day between one and 2 p. m. He hasn't had a pitcher who could win as many as two ball games in the first month of the season. Today he was driven to the benching of Taft Wright, the leading hitter on the club last year.

WRIGHT IS BATTING only .213. So is another of Lyons' outfielders, Bob Kennedy. Aaron Robinson, the catcher from the Yankees for whom the Sox gave up Pitcher Ed Lopat last winter, is batting a pallid .268. Luke Appling at .309 is the only man in the infield who is hitting. At first base, Tony Lupien is a .277 batter. Shortstop Cass Michaels is hitting .170, and Second Baseman Floyd Baker .184.

The tip-off on the White Sox pitching is the home-run count. The Sox have hit eight homers against the 28 served up by their own pitching. And they are evidence that the weak teams don't win the close games. In seven one-run finishes this year, the White Sox have blown five.

It was assumed last winter that the Sox were certain to escape last place. The Browns, last year's tenants, apparently had a lock on that position again after selling off $400,000 worth of their ball players. But there's nothing certain of that now. The seamy side of the Sox is now woefully apparent.

Slaughter's Homer Tops Bums, 4-3

Brooklyn, May 18 (AP).—Enos Slaughter's two-run homer over the rightfield wall backed up steady pitching by George Munger today to give the St. Louis Cards a 4-3 edge over Brooklyn in the opening game of their first Eastern trip.

Although the Dodgers nicked Munger for nine hits, the big righthander was able to take charge whenever the home club threatened.

Spider Jorgensen's home run over the rightfield wall after Ralph Branca singled in the fifth tied up the game, 2-2, for the minute, but the Cards bounced right back to regain the lead on Slaughter's clout following Stan Musial's single in the sixth. It was Munger's second win of the year to one loss and Branca's fourth defeat against two victories.

Terps Defeat W&L, 8 to 7

Al Tuminski's ninth-inning infield single gave Maryland an 8-7 victory in baseball today over West Virginia, its seventh in a row.

The Old Liners were trailing, 6-7, going into their half of the ninth. Jim Moeller came in from third with the tying run on a wild pitch by Art Donata who then was replaced by Jim Bryan. Then Tuminski rapped out his hard grounder and Bob Brewer crossed the plate with the winning run.

Sacred Heart Wins

Sacred Heart defeated Campus School, 6-4, yesterday in a Catholic Youth Organization Junior League game at Taft.

HE'S THEIR HERO—Paul Dare, Catholic University pitcher, is rushed off his feet by teammates after pitching a 1-0 victory in 11 innings over Georgetown yesterday. Dare scored the game's only run, allowed only three hits. A 6-foot-2 righthander, Dare is called "the best college pitcher in the county" by his coach, Gene Augusterfer

Catholic Beats Georgetown In 11-Inning Struggle, 1-0

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

They don't play better baseball than was on display yesterday at Georgetown University, where the high-powered hosts were throttled by Catholic Universtiy for the second time this season.

It was 1-0 this time and it took 11 innings of flawless ball to decide it.

Again it was a pitchers' battle and again it was lanky Righthander Paul Dare, credited with an earlier 5-3 upset of the Hoyas, who was the victor over Tommy Flynn. Dare was credited with a three-hitter while Flynn, sophomore righthander of the Hoyas, allowed five hits, including the winning pair in the eleventh.

To complete his brilliant performance, Dare singled to start the final frame and scored the crucial run on Jackie Walsh's single after being sacrificed to second by Shortstop Zurawel and moving to third on Hallisey's long fly. It was strictly a bad pitch Walsh "golfed" out of the dirt in front of the plate, but it was a perfect hit over the third basemen's head.

All Dare had to do to end it was get Georgetown out in the bottom of the eleventh, a feat he made convincing by fanning Flynn and Al Naples and forcing Jack Connelly to hit a weak grounder that the catcher handled.

In his trip around the bases Dare was the only player of either team to reach third. Georgetown had a beautiful chance to end things in the tenth, getting a man to second with one out, but the threat fizzled.

Pirates Beat Braves On Kiner's Homer

Boston, May 18 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates tonight snapped right-handed Bill Voiselle's string of pitching victories at four by beating the Boston Braves, 4-3, before 19,181 fans.

Ralph Kiner's eighth homer of the year, a long, high clout which bounced off the new scoreboard in left field and which scored a teammate ahead of him, accounted for the Bucs' winning margin.

Trying to Repeat

Short Course Favors Ferrier As PGA Tourney Starts Today

St. Louis, May 18 (AP).—Jim Ferrier, the big San Francisco Australian with a trick knee and a tricky putter, will have everything in his favor when he opens his bid tomorrow to become the first "repeater" in more than 10 years in the Professional Golfers' Association championships.

Ferrier won the 1947 championship at Detroit's Plum Hollow course largely because his putter could do no wrong. He played 203 holes in the qualifying rounds and six rounds of match competition and needed only 333 putts—73 under the "par" of two per hole.

The Norwood Hills course, where the thirtieth FGA tourney will begin tomorrow and finish next Tuesday, appears to favor a good putter and short iron player over the long driving pros. It's short, for one thing—only 6440 yards—carefully trapped and the wind blows steadily to the annoyance of the "sprayers."

A field of 137 is scheduled to start tomorrow in the first of two 18-hole qualifying rounds. These will cut the list to 64 to begin match play Friday, when two 18-hole "knockout" rounds will be contested. The remaining matches all will be at 36 holes.

A local odds-maker has bracketed Ferrier, Jimmy Demaret, the Ojai, Calif., crooner; Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., and Lloyd Mangrum, 1946 National Open champion from Chicago, as 6 to 1 favorites.

Other notably hot golfers in the field include Washington's Lew Worsham, the National Open champ, and Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., who had a 72-hole score of 281 to win at Philadelphia.

Area Olympic Fight Finals Set Tonight

Fourteen bouts, including six semifinals, are carded for tonight's Olympic boxing trials at Griffith Stadium.

The area winners will move on to the regional tryouts in Philadelphia next week and, if successful there, will compete in the final Olympic trials in Boston, June 28 and 29.

Nine District amateur champs are slated to see action, Two AAU senior titlists, Featherweight Pat Thomas and Heavyweight Eddie Grant, reached tonight's finals by winning last Saturday.

Thomas, Apollo A. C., meets hustling Eddie Woodson of Police Boys Club No. 2. Grant, also of Apollo, meets big Norvel Lee of Howard University.

Tickets for tonight's championships are on sale now in The Washington Post lobby and at the ball park. Receipts are being turned over to the United States Olympic Committee to help defray the cost of the trip to London this summer.

Lou Brissie Loses

Tribe Takes First; Routs Macks, 6 to 1

Cleveland, May 18 (AP).—Cleveland's Indians moved past the Philadelphia Athletics tonight, taking first place in the American League by trouncing the A's, 6 to 1.

Cleveland sent two men home in the first inning when Allie Clark's triple scored Thurman Tucker and Clark crossed the plate on Joe Gordon's infield out.

Four more Cleveland runs followed in the second frame.

Lou Brissie opened for the Athletics, but went out in the second after the Indians had pounded him for four hits.

Ray Blanks Chicago in Relief Role

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Chicago, May 18.—The Nats came up with a self-made winning pitcher today.

Ray Scarborough, slightly distrustful of his pals' ability to get him the winning run, batted that necessary article over the plate himself in the twelfth inning to beat the White Sox, 5 to 4.

Scarborough whacked the important single into left field with two out in the twelfth, and was this afternoon's man of distinction otherwise. He took over a tie ball game in the eighth inning and flung five innings of shut-out confusion at the White Sox.

Losing Streak Ends

His heroics put a stop to that four-game losing streak of the Nats and left the White Sox still without a winning ball game to show in their six contests at Comiskey Park since the season opened.

Sid Hudson and Rookie Jim Goodwin, who were advertised as the starting pitchers, didn't finish. Young Goodwin, a draftee from Jersey City making his first major league start, walked in two Washington runs in the sixth and was excused.

Hudson let a 4-1 lead evaporate and also was invited to discontinue pitching.

Comes the Twelfth

Ike Pearson, who relieved Goodwin, shut the Nats out for five innings before they caught up with him in the twelfth. He walked Ted Stewart with one out, and that was his grievous lapse.

Jacke Early neatly singled to left, moving Stewart to second and after Mark Christman struck out, Scarborough delivered the decisive blow, his second straight hit.

Al Evans set the Nats up in a 1-0 lead when he singled over second to score Carden Gillenwater, who had previously singled, but Hudson gave up the tying run in the fourth on a pair of singles by Hodgin and Robinson and Philley's infield out.

Nats Have Big Sixth

Young Goodwin, a southpaw, had a horrible time of it in the sixth. His control deserted him and the Nats scored three runs on two hits and four walks.

He walked Kozar and Hudson in succession with the bases full to force a pair of the runs home. The third scored on Yost's infield single off Pearson.

Bob Kennedy got two of those runs back for the Sox in the same inning with a single that scored Appling who had walked and Philley who had doubled. The latter blow was the only extra-baser of the day, despite the 22 hits—10 by the Nats. A stiff wind blowing toward the plate was a factor.

Hudson Lifted in 7th

Hudson was lifted under pressure in the seventh when the Sox tied it up at 4-4. Michaels beat out a single to Kozar, was sacrificed to second, and scored on Appling's single to left. Forrest Thompson finally got the side out.

He gave way for a pinch hitter in the eighth, and Scarborough took over. It was an excellent selection by Manager Joe Kuhel.

The only scoring threat against Scarborough was in the eleventh when with two out, the Sox got a man to second base on Michaels' infield hit which Sullivan threw into the dirt past Vernon. But Pearson went down on strikes to end the inning. It was the only lapse by Sullivan who was making fancy plays all afternoon.

Minus Show Pool Caused By Favorite

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., May 18.—Lawless Miss, the Citation of the minor tracks, didn't fly the Calumet colors here today but she acted the part of a Warren Wright horse. Not only did she win smartly by four lengths in the Rosslyn Purse, but she went high hat and caused a minus show pool, the amount of which was not announced.

The G. Y. Booker mare drew a $5000 show bet from one individual who pushed a roll of bills into a $50 window and took an entire stack—one hundred tickets. As a reward he took down the minimum mutuel allowed in this State—$2.20.

3d Win This Year

Lawless Miss, in winning for the third time in five tries this year, paid $2.80 to win and $2.20 to place. Capably handled by Jockey Emilo Carrillo, the 5-year-old mare was clocked in a creditable 1:15 3/5 for the Charles Town course of 120 feet more than 6 furlongs over a fast track. Frosty River, owned by Wayne Kendrick of Washington, was second and three lengths in front of Mrs. Charles Bayly's Double Reward in the field of six.

Frosty River did the expected and shook off Double Reward to take the early lead while Carrillo rated Lawless Miss. Along the backstretch, the two rivals went head and head. However, when Carrillo asked for additional speed, the mare responded, disposed of the Kendrick hope and drew out.

Commission Meets

Charles Town, which ranks high as a developer of jockeys, proved the spot for the first victory of Robert D. Jones, 20-year-old Georgia youth, who was discovered riding quarter horses last winter in Florida and was brought here by Agent Max Pearson of Washington.

Jones, dubbed "Rural Delivery" around the track, booted M. Hall's Baby Billy home in the third race at a $38 mutual.

The West Virginia Racing Commission—Beverley Broun, chairman; Frank Brooke and Mont M. McIntyre—met here and made three rulings. Former Jockey Robert W. Fitzgerald, who was suspended in 1946 for using a battery, was reinstated, but as a trainer and not a rider. Trainer William C. Mein's suspension was continued until next October 24, while Jockey Richard R. Pinn was returned to good standing.

Eastern Runs Over Tech, 8-5, Clinches First Place

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

A KANGAROO HOP—Ralph Tobiason, Eastern pitcher, hops out of the way in a hurry as Teammate Joe Graves, left-fielder, scores on a triple steal in yesterday's Eastern-McKinley Tech game at Eastern. The catcher is Ray Speaker, Tech. Eastern won, 8-5.

Ramblers Get 8 Hits, 9 Stolen Bases

Eastern's Ramblers and McKinley Tech each collected eight hits, but the Ramblers stole nine bases to run away with an 8-5 victory yesterday on Eastern's diamond. The victory clinched first place for the unbeaten Ramblers.

After seeing a 4-1 lead melt away, Eastern scored three runs in the third with the aid of a triple steal and salted the game away. Joe Graves and Dave Zatz walked to start the inning, and Paul Merola was hit by a pitched ball filling the bases. Then came the triple steal, Graves scoring standing up. Relief Pitcher Ralph Tobiason then swatted a two-run double.

At Chevy Chase, 97 women begin the two-day, 36-hole medal play Keefer Cup competition.

Titleholder Absent

Just about every Women's Class A player is included in the field, with representatives from all of the area clubs entered.

Miss Anne Stonemetz, last year's winner, has moved out of the District and her title will pass over to another woman star.

Also at Chevy Chase, Foster and Wolfe will meet for The Washington Post Trophy, symbolic of District schoolboy supremacy, at 3 p. m.

Downed Wolfe's Brother

Foster, who captured the youth prize in the National Celebrities Tournament Sunday, defeated Wolf's brother, Eugene, in the semi-final round of the Scholastic Tournament.

So young Billy, a 14-year-old golfing prodigy, will be out to avenge the family honor against Foster. A cool competitor whose 75 in the qualifying round of the tournament stamped him as a favorite, Wolfe is one of the best young golfers ever turned out here.

Pitcher Dolores DeSilva hit a home run with two on and two out in the seventh inning to give Hyattsville girls a 16-15 softball victory over Maryland Park yesterday.

GW High Wins Title, 8 to 1

George Washington High of Alexandria successfully defended its northern Virginia baseball championship and wont a place in the State playoffs yesterday on the Ellipse as it ground out an 8-1 triumph over its bitterest rival, Washington-Lee of Arlington.

Willie Zehring went the route for the winners, striking out 10 and allowing 9 hits. Meanwhile his mates bunched a large portion of their 11 safeties for 3 runs in both the first and third innings and the final two in the fourth.

Walt Tuthill and Stan Monroe hurled for the losers as G. W. took its seventh straight victory and its fourteenth triumph in 16 games this season.

GSI Cafeterias Now Making Profit, Decide Against Price Rise

There is to be no general price increase in Federal cafeterias operated by Government Services, Inc. However, the price of some a-la-carte items will be boosted eventually, but any increase is subject to the approval of Philip B. Fleming, the Federal Works Administrator. And Fleming wants to keep any increases at a minimum.

The fixed-price luncheon—the principal item purchased by Federal workers—is not to be increased.

The cafeterias have been losing money for the past eight months. However, economics in operations and a large volume of business have turned the deficit to a profit in the four-week period that ended April 24.

The decision against a general price rise gives GSI a good weapon to fight the bills in Congress that would curb the semi-Government group. Both Representative Dirksen (R., Ill.) and Senator Baldwin (R., Conn.) have bills that would create Federal corporations to handle the cafeterias. It's reported that any profit-making corporation would be forced to raise present prices, unless it was subsidized by the Government.

FEDERAL SECURITY has clamped a "freeze" order on outside employment. The order applies mainly to CAF jobs above the clerical level. It does not include stenographers, typists and most professional people.

The order was issued because of the threatened lay-off of about 300 employes in the Social Security Administration. Under the House-approved budget, the lay-off would have to be made. FSA hopes to absorb these people in other jobs if the discharges become necessary.

PAY REPORT: The Pay-Raise Subcommittees of the Senate and House Civil Service Committees will meet today at 11 a. m. They will attempt to agree on a common bill to raise the salaries of postal and most other Federal workers. It's unlikely, however, that the two groups will be able to reach an agreement today and that other sessions will be held.

It's also reported that the long-promised pay-raise session between House Speaker Martin and Senator Taft, the GOP leader, will be held either today or tomorrow. In other words, definite action on the pay bills appears imminent. It's about time.

NOTES: The Senate Civil Service Committee tomorrow will look into charges of misconduct and maladministration in the Detroit post office . . . The committee was supposed to have met yesterday to act on 300 postmaster nominations. A quorum didn't show up . . . Donald Stone has been appointed the director of administration at the Economic Cooperation Administration on a permanent basis. He was with the Budget Bureau for years and Charles Stauffacher succeeds him there.

PEOPLE: The American Legion is out to get Ray Foley, the Housing and Home Finance boss. Its executive committee demanded his removal after he sold an Indiana housing project to a private contractor. The Legion supported a group of veterans who wished to buy the project . . . Census' new efficiency rating committee is composed of James G. Stockard, chairman; Margaret R. Rommel, Henry A. Bloom, Royal Olmert, and John F. Borecki . . .

STORY: A bewildered, bedraggled and discouraged employe of the Veterans' Administration was watching a group of his colleagues having their chests X-rayed. He made this crack:

"This is the first time a lot of people have had their chins up since they started to work for the Government."

CLERICAL: Civil Service eligible registers of grade 1 and 2 clerks are exhausted. It plans to announce another clerical exam by late summer or early fall. The commission has a supply of grade 3 and 4 clerks. It's moving ahead with its plans to force the firings of the war service and temporary 3's and 4's who failed last year's test. However, the commission has given the agencies the authority to demote the 3's and 4's who failed to to 1 or 2 jobs.

UPWA: The leadership of this left-wing union has been challenged to follow national CIO policy on the Wallace third party and the European Recovery Program. Otherwise, the build-the-union committee charges the UPWA leaders will be branded as members of the small divisionist clique of left-wing unions within the CIO.

The build-the-union group has sent copies of its newspaper, the BUC News, to the 500 delegates at the UPWA's Atlantic City convention. In one column, CIO President Murray is quoted as saying the Communist Party is directly responsible for the organization of the third party.

In an adjoining column is listed UPWA leaders who are active in the third party. Among them are:

UPWA President Abram Flaxer, a member of the third party labor committee; Sidney Moore, a union organizer, who is the third party candidate for Congress against Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas; William Stafford, another paid organizer, who was suspended from Atlanta's Industrial Union Council because of his work for the third party; Henry Beitscher of this city, Ewart Guinier of New York, and several other UPWA bigwigs.

D. C. School Plant Survey On Building Need Urged

Dworshak and Bates To Ask for Funds in 1949 Budget for Study by Experts

A complete survey of the District school plant to determine building needs was called for yesterday by Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho) and Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.).

The two Congressmen said they would ask for money in the 1949 District budget for a study by "outside independent experts."

The proposal was advanced by Bates, chairman of the House District Subcommittee in charge of District tax and revenue legislation, at an executive conference with Dworshak, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on the District budget, and Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.), chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on District revenue.

Discuss Board Report

They met to consider three conflicting reports on school construction needs prepared by committees of the Washington Board of Trade.

Estimates of needs ranged from a construction program costing $44,418,790 recommended by the board's education committee to $10,418,790 suggested by the committee on municipal finance.

The executive committee of the board drew up a report recommending expenditure of $12,559,440.

All committees recommended the program be financed through a Federal loan.

School officials yesterday received the executive committee report, official view of the trade body, with mixed feelings.

Two Are Disappointed

Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning and Board of Education President Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle expressed disappointment that school construction "vitally necessary to the education of District children" was not included in the final report.

"We are glad that the trade board approves school construction through a loan, a proposal we made a year ago," Mrs. Doyle said.

The loan program, though, was vetoed by District Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler.

"I would rather not see borrowing for any particular program," Fowler said. "If we are going to borrow money we should take into consideration the entire construction program for the District and set up a priority."

Bates said his proposed survey by experts "would resolve the differences" between the various reports of the Board of Trade committees.

Cites Vacancy Figures

Referring to figures cited in one of the reports that high school and junior high school buildings are used below capacity, Bates said the study would indicate ways "to coordinate the District's school facilities by eliminating overcrowding on the one hand and filling empty buildings on the other."

He cited the white Roosevelt and Central High Schools, where "there is a tremendous number of vacancies, while Negro high schools are filled beyond capacity."

The question was raised at the executive committee, Bates said, why pupils in Central High School should not go to Roosevelt, freeing the Central building for other uses.

Dworshak, in supporting an independent survey, said:

"We have so many conflicting reports. It is time to have some coordination and over-all planning. Loans for schools would be logical if we have to have an intensive building program, but that will depend upon what the survey would show."

ABC Board Suspends Club Madre License

The liquor license of Club Madre, 2204 14th st. nw., was suspended yesterday for 31 days, beginning June 1, by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Chairman Alan W. Payne said the board found the owners, Washington Restaurant Corp., guilty on four counts of permitting after-hours sale.

Two police vice squad members testified at a hearing May 12 that drinks were sold after legal closing hours at the club last March.

Mrs. Theo Buford, vice president, treasurer and manager of the corporation, denied the charges and said the club always closed at the proper time.

The two policemen, Silas C. Vaughan and W. A. Dalrymple, said drinks were served after closing hours by a person known as Odessa Madre. Mrs. Buford said the corporation subleased the premises from Odessa Madre, who is neither a member nor employe of the corporation and has no authority to sell drinks.

Adm. Clark Finds Trouble On 2 Fronts

Neighbors Object To Buyer of House As He Sues to Evict

Rear Admiral Joseph J. (Jocko) Clark and his wife, who have gone to court to seek the eviction of a tenant from a newly purchased apartment house here, are also having property troubles in Arlington.

The Clarks are selling their four-room house at 1057 26th st. S., Arlington. Some of their Arlington neighbors set up a furor when they learned the purchases were Jewish.

"We have been beset on all sides the past two weeks," Admiral Clark said last night. "Some people even called my immediate superior at the Navy Department and tried to put pressure on me that way."

No Covenant Involved

Admiral Clark said the couple who bought the house are quite respectable. The husband, he said, is a graduate of Harvard Law School and his wife a graduate of Radcliffe College. The admiral said the house is not bound by a restrictive covenant.

The same neighbors who protested, Admiral Clark said, informed him they would have no objection if David Lilenthal, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, bought the house. Lilienthal, the admiral said, inspected the house but found it did not suit his needs.

Meanwhile, the Clarks, in a Municipal Court suit, are seeking to have Mr. and Mrs. Houston Thompson evicted from their $175-a-month, 10-room apartment at 2500 Massachusetts ave. nw. Mrs. Clark purchased the apartment building, which contains eight apartments, last January.

Seven in Family

Mrs. Clark has asked the eviction of the Tohmpsons on the grounds she needs the apartment for her own family. She said she will need the Thompsons' apartment as well as another 10-room apartment on the third floor for her own needs.

There are seven in the Clark family. In addition they have two servants and the servants have a child.

"Although the apartments are listed as 10-room apartments, each with four baths," Admiral Clark said last night, "they have only three bedrooms. And three bedrooms aren't enough for 10 persons."

Yesterday the Thompson's maid, Miss Sophie Thornton, 26, of 1153 20th st. nw., testified in Municipal Court that last January 22 she showed Mrs. Clark through the Thompsons' apartment during Mrs. Thompson's absence. She said Mrs. Clark, at that time the prospective buyer, was accompanied by Miss Frances Powell Hill, a real estate broker representing the then owner of the building.

Tells of Improvements

"I told Miss Hill," said the maid, "that the Thompsons were worried about having to move. She said they need not be disturbed, that things would go on just as they were, only they would be paying rent to someone else."

The same Miss Hill, according to the Clarks, later acted as broker in the sale of their Arlington home.

Earlier in the courtroom, Thompson, attorney and former Federal Trade commissioner, told how he had built a trrace and made other improvements in the back of his apartment during the 25 years he and his wife have lived there.

Herman Miller, attorney for the Clarks, objected to the testimony on the grounds that the only issue in the case is that the Clarks show good faith in wanting the apartment for their personal use.

Crowd Waits 65 Minutes But 'Big Show' Is Worth It

The circus came to town yesterday—but its first performance was 65 minutes behind schedule.

The time lag converted hundreds of Washington youngsters—impatient for a look at Gargantua, the "happy family" of giraffes and "the greatest juggler of all time"—into a squirming mob.

But when they finally surged into the big tent, with all the speed of a man pursued by a Bengal tiger, their spirits skyrocketed and the restlessness turned to glee.

There was reason. The show, which gave two performances yesterday, drew plaudits from start to finish.

The small fry squealed with delight at Cucciola, the blonde midget who is featured with the Riding Zoeppes . . . shrieked with terror as Natal—Man or Monkey?—hopped into the seats and hugged them with his hairy paws . . . marveled at the "lovely, sultry, soaring swallow of the Big Top, Rose Gould," as she hung from a trapeze by her bare toes . . . and grew dreamy at the make-believe pageant, "Twas the Night Before Christmas."

When the Ugo Troupe performed a thrilling leap from a ski-jump springboard over a group of elephants, one little boy remarked to his daddy:

The arena featured new steel portable grandstands; all on unit-trucks, cushioned folding chairs bolted to the decks and a floor of bright green sawdust.

Performers, who a short time before had appeared disheveled from the "unexpected and outrageous delay on the railroad"—in a press agent's jargon—showed up for their cues in shiny satins, with gleaming stones and polished boo[illegible].

Props were hurriedly rigged. Performers lugged buckets of cold water into their dressing rooms—underneath the steps in the arena for the first time in Ringling Brothers & Barnum & Bailey Circus history—to clean up for the show.

pretty Hilda Alzana, 16-year-old high-wire performer whose back high1wire performer was broken last fall when she fell during a Miami, Fla., performance, smiled broadly as she watched the bustle. Still in a brace and carrying a cane, she couldn't be of much help.

More than 15,000 Washingtonians couldn't either.

Additional performances — at 26th st. and Benning rd. ne.—are scheduled today and Thursday at 2:15 and 8:15 p. m.

FWA Vetoes General Rise In GSI Prices

The Federal Works Agency said "no" yesterday to a Government Services, Inc., request for a general rise in eral price rise in its cafeterias.

However, "adjustments" will be allowed in the prices of some a la carte items, FWA Administrator Philip B. Fleming announced.

Most of the 80,000 Federal workers who eat in GSI-operated lunchrooms buy 40-cent "fixed price" luncheons, he pointed out.

General Fleming said over-all price hikes were decided against, following more than a month of studies by FWA employes, because records show losses "have been steadily decreasing since the first of this year and have in fact changed to a profit for the four [illegible]s' period ended April 2[illegible]."

Citizens Group Votes to Hold Color Line

Petworth Association To Amend Constitution For Restrictions

Petworth Citizens' Association last night voted to amend the group's constitution to restrict membership to white citizens and to investigate applicants for membership.

The association also unanimously voted to apply for certificate of incorporation.

John Connaughton, chairman of the transportation committee, said the incorporation would "limit liability" and that such procedure was in line with "the example of the Federation of Citizens Associations."

Meeting at Petworth Library, Georgia ave. and Upshur st. nw., about 30 members of the association turned down the opposition of Theodore Ward, chairman of the group's Beetle Control Committee, who said he thought the use of the term "white" in the amendment was "poor politics."

Connaughton said use of the word "white" was not the issue. He added: "Under the present membership rules, 50 people could come in on one night, become members and vote our organization away from us." The amendment provides a "lay-over" plan whereby action on applicants for membership would be delayed over the period of about three association meetings for membership.

Concluding the association's last meeting until fall, Harvey O. Carver, president, said in regard to restrictive covenants, "I plead with all property owners to cooperate in keeping Petworth as it is today."

Sellers as delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations, and Robert C. Wales, the association's president last year, and Robert M. Phillips, who was succeeded as vice president, as delegates to the Northwest Council of Citizens Associations.

Man of Mystery First Witness in Gambling Probe

Refuses to Disclose Identity to Press; Jury Hears 3-Hour Exposition of Case

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Washington's special grand jury probing gambling yesterday heard its first witness after United States Attorney George Morris Fay outlined the extent of gambling operations here.

The witness, who refused to identify himself, told reporters who questioned him, "I think I'll have to see a lawyer first."

An extremely heavy-set, black-haired man, about 35 to 40 years old, he was closeted with the grand jury about 20 minutes. He denied to reporters that he was (1) a witness, (2) a member of the police force, (3) an FBI agent, or (4) an employe of a Federal agency.

Attorneys Describe Racket

Asked, "Are you a member of the gambling 'profession'?" he retorted, "Well, I wouldn't say that," then added that he thought he should see a lawyer before saying anything further.

Earlier, Fay and Assistant United States Attorneys John W. Fihelly and Charles B. Murray were before the grand jury for more than three hours, setting forth what Fay has charged is a 100-million-dollar gambling racket operating here.

When they entered the grand jury room, they carried a large case and several portfolios of documents.

Bond Buyer Heads Jury

The special grand jury of 11 men and 12 women was impaneled Monday by District Court Justice David A. Pine. Foreman of the jury is J. Donald Halsted, 53, a buyer of municipal bonds for a New York brokerage firm.

Efforts were continued yesterday to cloud the grand jury's actions in secrecy. The jury met yesterday in the regular District grand jury room in the criminal division of Municipal Court, but will later move to another room.

There will be no public announcement of when or where the special grand jury will meet. An attempt was made yesterday to lead reporters to believe that the regular grand jury was occupying the room which the special jury later was found to be using.

Jurors have been instructed to enter and leave the court building in small groups, rather than en masse, to avoid attracting attention.

Opium Worth $5000, 3 Men Seized in Den

Police arrested three men and seized narcotics valued at between $5000 and $7500 at noon yesterday when they raided a second-floor rear apartment at 1202 K st. nw.

Held on narcotics charges were Eng Yee Fee, 63, occupant of the apartment, and Fong Yike Wing, 43, of 5515 Colorado ave. nw. The third man was booked for investigation and later released.

Police said when they entered the apartment Wing was lying on a mat in dreamy repose, smoking an opium pipe.

The raid was carried out by Lieut. H. H. Carper, head of the police narcotics squad; two of his men and a deputy United States marshal armed with a search warrant.

Carper said police received complaints several weeks ago of a peculiar odor in the building. Carper, investigating, decided it was opium and put a watch on the building. Yesterday police watched Wing enter and go to the second-floor apartment. They waited 20 minutes, then followed him in.

The window behind the pipe-smoking Wing was open, and a small fan had been turned on, apparently to blow the odor out the window.

The raiding party also found Fee in the apartment. Fee, Carper said, was operator of the opium den.

Fee had a quantity of $50 and $100 bills hidden under his shirt, Carper said, and a large roll of bills in his pocket. Police also seized a cigar box filled with Chinese bonds and $1700 worth of checks payable to Fee and drawn on the Bank of China.

In addition to the opium, police found several opium pipes and a lamp used to cook the drug.

While police were in the apartment the third man entered. He was held briefly for investigation.

Fee and Wing were later arraigned before United State Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, who continued their cases until May 25. He set $3000 bond for Fee and $1500 bond for Wing.

Trial Board Deliberates On Dalstrom

A special trial board yesterday began weighing charges that Ivan J. Dalstrom, Fire Department machinery superintendent, was guilty of intoxication and improper operation of a department vehicle, April 11.

The three-man board began deliberating immediately following completion of a two-day hearing. Announcement of the board's decision is expected today.

The complaints stemmed from Dalstrom's arrest in Colmar Manor, Md., after his department car rammed another. He was acquitted of a drunken driving charge in Hyattsville Police Court, but was fined $50 for reckless driving.

Dalstrom, on the witness stand yesterday, denied he had used intoxicants on the day of his arrest. He said he was en route to his Hyattsville home after making a Sunday morning inspection of the department repair shop.

Dalstrom testified he had been suffering from a cold, aggravated by a sinus condition, and had taken a cough medicine containing alcohol which "may have smelled like liquor."

Two prosecution witnesses testified they noticed "nothing to indicate the defendant was abnormal." They were Stephen N. Gill, whose auto was rammed by Dalstrom's sedan, and Miss Violet Scruggs, a passenger in Gill's car.

Gill also testified he believed Dalstrom had attempted to avoid the accident.

Dalstrom told the board he was familiar with the intersection and timed his approach so he would be able to proceed without stopping as the traffic light changed. He said he believed the accident could have been avoided had Gill moved forward as soon as the light changed.

The trial board Monday dismissed a charge of using intoxicants while on duty after ruling Dalstrom was officially off duty after he left the repair shop en route home.

Wife Finds Man Dying From Shot

Gerald E. Harris, 31, a Mount Rainier, Md., tree surgeon, was found fatally shot yesterday after police said he told his wife he would "sleep off" a drinking spell "for good."

He was found dying in his apartment bedroom at 4308 Russell ave., Kaygood Gardens, shot in the lower jaw. The bullet emerged through the top of his head.

Mount Rainier Police Chief E. B. Plumer said Harris apparently placed the muzzle of a .22-caliber rifle under his chin and pulled the trigger. The rifle was found near the body, Plumer said.

According to Plumer, Harris, who was employed by the Asplundh Tree Expert Co., had been drinking before his return home about 4 p. m. yesterday. When his wife remonstrated, and told him she was going out until he "slept it off," Chief Plumer said he told her:

"I'm going to sleep it off, all right—for good."

Mrs. Harris left the house with their eight-months-old child. She found her husband on her return two hours later.

Harris was rushed to Prince Georges General Hospital at Cheverly, Md., where he died after several hours. A certificate of death was withheld pending investigation by the county medical examiner.

The pair, Noel Lawrence, 6602 First st. nw., a student at Takoma Park Academy, and Edith H. Hunt, who is enrolled at the Washington Missionary College, Takoma Park, were hauled from the channel by two workmen.

The rescuers, James R. Cowant, Alexandria, Va., and Dorsey Mears, Colonial Beach, Va., employed by the Merritt-Chapman Scott Construction Co. in construction of the new 14th street bridge, saw the mishap from their cruiser.

Apart from a wetting, the students were unhurt.

Afterwards, Lawrence commented: "It was the first time I ever was in a canoe. I know now they are not rowboats."

Miss Evanti In Recital At Asbury

By Paul Hume

Lillian Evanti's recital last night drew a large audience to Asbury Methodist Church.

Beautiful songs by Faure, Brahms, Marx, Strauss and Moret companioned music from older Italian pens. Opera was represented in arias by Verdi and Bellini.

Evanti's voice, familiar to Washingtonians from concert and opera appearances here, is a lyric of velvety texture. In soft passages it has a wonderful luster, and range is not a problem, for the singer mounted to notes above high C last night without sign of strain. However, the top tones tend to spread and seem to lack support, when carried into full voice. Thus the climaxes of more than one song lost their rightful weight by taking on a color less pleasing than that of the lower voice.

Interpretively, Evanti was best in Moret's voluptuous lines about "zephyrs soothe my soul as they soothe the nelumbo," or Joseph Marx's night rapture, Waldseligkeit. German, French, Italian, and English enunciation come through clearly, although consonants are sometimes slighted to favor the "tone beautiful." Still it was a pleasure to hear again from one of Washington's own singers, whose devotion to the art of song cannot be mistaken.

Arturo Papalardo provided accompaniments for the evening.

1777 Police Put Force at Record High

Metropolitan police strength is at an all-time high, Maj. Robert J. Barrett, police superintendent, announced yesterday.

Barrett also disclosed that if Congress approves the District budget and the provision which calls for 205 additional policemen, the new Fourteenth Precinct may be activated immediately.

As of yesterday, Barrett said, the police force numbered 1777 men, compared with an authorized strength of 1795.

Of the 18 vacancies, 16 exist because men are on military leave.

Although a station house for the Fourteenth Precinct still is in the planning stage, the need for it is so great, the police chief said, that it may behoused temporarily in the Eleventh Precinct station house.

The budget would provide 205 new policemen, including an inspector, 3 captains and 19 lieutenants.

To man the Fourteenth Precinct, 94 men will be needed, including a captain, 3 lieutenants, 3 sergeants and 3 corporals.

The Fourteenth Precinct will halve the present Eleventh Precinct, which has grown in population from 50,000 in 1940 to 160,000.

It will be bounded by the Anacostia River on the northwest, Pennsylvania ave. on the southwest and the District line on the other sides.

The new station house will be at 42d st. and Benning rd. ne. Congress already has approved a $174,000 grant for its construction.

Council Seeks Holy Land Peace

By Genevieve Reynolds

The National Council of Jewish Women yesterday issued a statement praising President Truman's recognition of the State of Israel and urged the United States to use its leadership to effect a speedy and peaceful settlement of the present conflict in the Holy Land. Announcement of the organization's stand was made during the D. C. section's installation luncheon when Mrs. Truman was guest of honor. Approximately 1000 were present at the event held in the Mayflower Hotel.

Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, member of the national board of directors for the national council and legislation chairman of the D. C. section, read the message prior to a talk by Mrs. Theodore Sonnenfeld, chairman of the council's national committee on Overseas Service. During the program Mrs. Theodore D. Peyser was reinstalled president of the D. C. Section of NCJW.

The NCJW statement declared:

"The National Council of Jewish Women welcomes President Truman's recognition of the State of Israel which was established by the Jews of Palestine as an implementation of the November 29 decision of the United Nations on partition—a decision which the U. N. has never altered. By his prompt action the President has contributed significantly to the strength and effectiveness of the U. N. We now urge forthright leadership by the United States through its own good offices and through the U. N. organization to effect the speedy and peaceful settlement of the present conflict in the Holy Land.

Indorse U. N. Appreciation

"We heartily indorse the application of Israel for immediate membership in the U. N. Because the U. N. has created this state it must welcome it to membership. The new Jewish state by its fervent espousal of democratic principles makes just claim for the support and assistance of all democratic nations. Certainly, the United States in the spirit of its finest democratic tradition must lend the State of Israel the practical means, which will enable it to survive . . ."

Mrs. Sonnenfeld, principal speaker, outlined the council's overseas service. She pointed out that the three-fold program consists of Ship a Box Service, including personalized services such as birthday observances; the maintenance of homes for girls in Paris and resident clubs in Athens; a long-range program of bringing students from 10 countries to the United States for post graduate study.

The 200 council groups are serving 150 orphanages in 11 different countries. Food is sent not only to the orphans but to DPs.

In her presidential message, Mrs. Peyser told of the council's contribution to the equipment of the Juanita Kaufman Nye Council House, as well as two contributions to the layette fund of the Service Overseas.

Other officers installed were Mrs. Louis Rothschild, first vice president; Mrs. Joseph Desoff, second vice president; Mrs. Morris Jaffe, third vice president; Mrs. Lawrence Kling, treasurer; Mrs. Julius Aronoff, recording secretary; Mrs. Herman Edlavitch, financial secretary; Mrs. Lewis Sycle, assistant financial secretary; Mrs. Harry Ullman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Nathaniel Aaronson, assistant corresponding secretary; Mrs. Julius Goldstein, Mrs. J. S. Kann and Mrs. Harry Roller, auditors.

Tea, Garden Party Are on Calendar

By Marie McNair

THE crimson rambler roses which roam over the trellises in Mrs. George Holmes' bricked garden are a beautiful backdrop for her party which she gives each spring.

Yesterday Mary Holmes had the Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Kenneth Royall as her honor guests and with such a handsome and popular trio as hostess and honor guests there was a very good reason if anybody failed to snow up.

Earlier Senora Fausta Bianchi de Gonzalez-Arevalo, wife of the new Guatemalan Ambassador, had asked a few guests for tea and I carried away with me from the embassy a picture of a very charming young person in a bouffant taffeta gown in a turqouise blue, made with a deep net yoke on the off-the-shoulder bodice, and a flounce of net at the hem.

Senora de Gonzalez-Arevalo, is Italian born and met her husband in Paris when she was visiting her brother and Senor Gonzalez-Arevalo was in the diplomatic se-vic—on duty in the French capital.

They escaped the Nazi invasion by but a fortnight and lived out the remaining years of the war in London. Three children make the household a lively one. Maxie is 7½, Evelina is 5, and the youngest, Maria Elena, is little more than a year.

Among the Guests

At Mary Holmes' party I found Admiral and Mrs. Clark Woodward already there and Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim talking to George Williams. Mrs. Eugene Milikin, wife of the Senator from Colorado, brought along her sister, Mrs. Lucy Shepard, who is visiting her, and they were soon off to pick up the Senator to be on time for a dinner. Senator Scott Lucas came with his law partner—Charlie Thompson, I believe was the name—and in less than five minutes' conversation with Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock he learned that her husband had given him his first job on his Omaha paper.

In a group which included Chief of Staff and Mrs. Omar Bradley and the Deputy Chief of Staff and Mrs. Lawton Collins, the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder, the movie star, quiet and shy Dorothy Lamour and her husband, Bill Howard, stole the show. Even Gene Archer, who had been asked to sing, couldn't compete.

It was a pretty scene to look upon yesterday, with garden party frocks in gay colors and—flowered hats. Mrs. Holmes had chosen a gray and black printed chiffon, long and slim; Mrs. Royall wore a long pale crepe made with a full skirt which had a panel of violet crepe at the side. And pinned to the neckline were two of the largest purple orchids I've ever seen.

Steve Early Receives

Steve Early, Mrs. Holmes' brother, was also in the receiving line for a time while Mrs. Early and her pretty daughter-in-law, Mrs. Steve Early, jr., stood on the sidelines.

Token for Tankard Presented

Inverchapels, Bound for Scottish Moors, Are Feted Before Sailing for Home

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

DURING the weekend Lord Inverchapel, the retiring British Ambassador, and Lady Inverchapel were honored at a small farewell party given by Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown. They were presented with the token of a handsome present which will be sent to them when they leave on the Queen Mary.

The gift is to be an antique silver tankard which Mrs. "Bordie" Harriman, instigator of the idea, is to track down this week.

Lord Inverchapel, who is making a bee-line for his Scottish estate, will be on hand later in London to welcome contestants in the Olympic games. Lady Inverchapel, who made such a success during her brief reign in the British Embassy, tells how very sorry she is to leave, and how she loves this country. The Ambassador seconded his wife's motion with equal regret, equal enthusiasm for his stint of duty in Washington. Lady Inverchapel, who has retained a small New York apartment, hopes to return next winter and if the joys of raising sheep on a windy Scottish moor should pall, H. E. Archie Inverchapel will return, too.

Fisherman's Tale

THE FOURTH INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS on Tropical Medicine and Malaria convened in Washington last week. You would scarcely expect experts in such exotic diseases to be raconteurs but British Minister Sir Jock Balfour, who had a distinguished malarist in tow, picked up and passed on a wistful story. An unsuccessful angler, no end annoyed to see a small boy whipping out fish after fish, asked how come. "Get a frog," the kid replied, "that's what they're biting on." The angler, poking about for batrachian bait, stumbled on a small snake, a frog wedged tightly in its mouth. Grabbing the snake's tail he tried to extricate the frog, failed completely then, in brilliant inspiration, inserted a spot of whisky between the serpent's jaws. Instantly, snake relaxed, froggie popped out. The angler, frog on hook, was fishing happily when he felt the tiniest tug at his trouser cuff. Startled, he glanced down, there was the same snake, looking up appealingly, a huge frog clamped in his mouth.

Mrs. Spaatz Tells of China

MRS. CARL SPAATZ, the wife of General "Tooie," recently returned from a brief run-around through Germany. Her stories of the Czech refugee situation in our zone are distressing. Even more pathetically indicative of complete Communist absorption behind Iron Curtain was a very small fact Ruth Spaatz mentioned about Meissen china. The Meissen factory is in the Russian zone. For some 235 years this exquisite porcelain has had as its special distinguishing mark, varied in only slight degree every 30 or 40 years, two crossed swords limned in blue on every piece. Now, porcelain connoisseurs will have to chalk up a new mark. The double swords have disappeared. Substituted on each delicate plate, each fanciful ornament, in the same blue (oddly not red) is the Soviet insignia, hammer and sickle!

King Peter and Queen Alexandra Entertain

By Elizabeth Maguire

The youngest and the fairest were the host and hostess at the party given yesterday by King Peter and Queen Alexandra, former rulers of Yugoslavia. Guests were recived by the royal couple in the Louis XVI Room of the Shoreham Hotel from 6 to 8 o'clock.

An interesting group attended. Many were Yugoslavians, and a number were from the Greek Embassy out of deference for the Queen who is of royal Greek blood.

The King and Queen received with former Ambassador of Yugoslavia, Constantin Fotitch. After an hour had passed, the King decided to mingle with the guests, only to be followed by a long receiving line. Finally, he found himself receiving guests at one end of the room, while the Queen continued to greet people at the other end.

Rear Admiral J. "Lanny" Callan, who had acted as naval aide to the King on his visit here in 1942, was one of the guests. The admiral recalled serving as naval attache to Ambassador Anthony J. Biddle, jr., in London, when Mr. Biddle was our ambassador to the governments in exile during the war. At that time, he said, he often attended parties with the young King.

Another old friend of King Peter at the reception was Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, who remembered being in Geneva, Switzerland, as a university student, when Peter's grandfather, also named Peter, was called to the throne after the assassination of King Alexander.

One of the most interesting figures at the fete was Dr. Vlalko Macek, president and chairman of the Croatian Peasant Party, with whom the King had a long talk earlier in the day.

Every feminine guest was interested in the frock worn by the Queen. It was definitely long, almost ankle length, worn with wedge soled black velvet slippers. Made of black chiffon with geranium red flowers, the dress was full skirted and had no shoulder pads. "I hate them," said the Queen. All her clothes are bought in Paris from Valenciaga, a Spanish designer.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer had a chat at the party with Mr. and Mrs. Francis Biddle and Associate Justice and Mrs. Stanley Forman Reed. In another group stood Herbert Elliston with Mr. and Mrs. Drew Pearson. The Greek Ambassador and Mme. Dendramis were there, as well as the Turkish Ambassador, Huseyin Ragip Baydur, Senator Theodore Francis Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard and the Greek Counselor and Mme. Economou-Gouras.

Reader Calls Attention to Pastor's Review Of Fromm's Book, "Man for Himself"; Says It Exposes Fundamental Error of Psychiatry

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My wife and I frequently read your column. Your remarks are very concise and the problems discussed are a tragic cross section of the meaningless abyss in which most people exist.

In several of your recent columns you have recommended Eric Fromm's book "Man for Himself" (Rinehart & Co.) as an aid to self understanding and personal integration.

Pastor Reinhold Niebuhr reviews this volume in the current issue (Spring, 1948) of the quarterly, "Christianity and Society," published at 3041 Broadway, New York City; and in his review, he raises a series of problems which reveal the fundamental weakness of the psychiatric approach to human nature.

Niebuhr's approach, from the viewpoint of Christian theology—see his book, "The Nature and Destiny of Man" (Scribner's Sons)—seems to conserve all that psychiatry can contribute and to allow for a more realistic approach to human need.

Creative Power Comes From God

THE PSYCHIATRIC approach illustrates one of the fundamental problems of Western culture, namely, the attempt to solve problems without the premise that every problem presupposes a relationship to God.

Self knowledge is not of itself any means of saving us from ourselves. From somewhere we must have, in addition to our knowledge of our depraved self concern, a power comparable to what Christian faith calls "the grace of God," to keep a new vicious cycle of egocentricity from becoming master all over again.

Possibly this emphasis doesn't make sense in a secular non-Christian culture which assumes that its scientific techniques of redemption are sufficient; but anyway, thanks for your indulgence. I appreciated Niebuhr's review and thought you (or your audience) might like to read it. R. H.

Advice Addressed To Distrait Woman

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Recently you discussed a letter from a woman of 40, who expresses a deep desire to rehabilitate herself after leading "a life of shame" for 20 years.

She says, "I have thought of going to a psychiatrist, but what could one tell me except to find employment? . . . I know I could be happy and useful somewhere, but I just don't know how to begin to work out my salvation . . ."

You encouraged her to think that psychiatric ministrations would be helpful, in fostering courage and clarity of mind to sustain her in mature, self reliant, self respecting endeavors hereafter. But I fail to see how any medical practitioner can possibly help a person who has drifted so far from spiritual principles.

Only Jesus Can Heal Sick Soul

PHYSICIANS, psychiatrists or mental hygienists may be just the fellows to cure insomniacs, alcoholics and other such maladjusted persons, who make minor messes of their lives; but what can they do for one in her plight? Nothing.

You should have told her to do one of two things: Either to join the Salvation Army and work for atonement, or to simply pray God for forgiveness. These courses of action hold the only answer to her problem. After all, doctors heal the body and psychiatrists heal the mind—at least they try,—but only Jesus Christ can minister successfully to a demoralized and contrite soul.

I trust you won't mind publishing this rebuttal to your well meaning but worldly counsel. C. S.

Be Courageous, Woman Tells Us

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Just a line of thanks for the help and understanding you are giving through your column. I have had problems and they are being overcome as I read and study along the lines you recommend and learn to pray to a most real God.

I was deeply thrilled with your wonderful answer to the agnostic mother who feels "absolute revulsion" to the idea of teaching her child to pray. And I do hope you will continue to advise expert mental help for those who need it, despite adverse criticism. Surely someone must have courage to lead in this day of floundering minds. R. T.

Mary Haworth welcomes letters of comment and is glad to publish them as space permits. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

How to Refinish Maple Dining Room Furniture

We have a solid maple dinette table and four chairs which we would like to refinish in a light color. At present, it is stained dark red-brown. Will you tell me the best way to remove this finish? It has been suggested that we use fine steel wool and a cleaning fluid. A. R.

This finish can be removed with less effort and more satisfactorily with a good commercial varnish remover, which can be purchased where paints are sold. Most varnish removers are applied with a brush, allowed to stand to soften the finish, then wiped away with a coarse cloth or steel wool. If there are some spots which remain where the finish is not removed, these can be removed by sanding or rubbing with fine steel wool.

How would you suggest cleaning and preserving a wedding gown and veil? The gown is made of fine net and imported lace with an underslip of satin. The veil is of illusion. Can it be cleaned without losing the stiffness of the net? Can it be kept in good condition for about 20 more years? L. P.

My best advice is to turn the gown over to a thoroughly experienced dry cleaner before storing. Some cleaners do not attempt to clean wedding veils because of their extreme delicacy. Firms that do clean them do so only at the customer's risk. Unless the veil is extremely soiled, it seems wisest not to attempt having it cleaned. After the gown is well cleaned, fold it loosely, with tissue paper between every fold of the fabric. Use dark blue or black tissue paper to retard the yellowing of the fabric and store in a large box which has a tight-fitting lid. Place in a dry storage place. Prepared in this way it should keep in good condition many years.

Is there any method for removing clear shellac from brown corduroy slacks and from a record player with a veneer finish? E. M.

Shellac stains can be removed from corduroy by sponging with alcohol. If the stains are old, it probably will be necessary to allow the alcohol to remain on the fabric for a time to thoroughly soften it, then rub it until stain disappears. It may be difficult to remove the stain from the veneer without affecting the finish. However, you might apply alcohol to an inconspicuous spot of the record player. If it does not affect the finish, rub alcohol lightly on the stain with a soft cloth. When the shellac has been removed, polish the entire surface with a good furniture polish or wax.

To S. S. and M. C., both of whom have asked about washing feather pillows in automatic washing machines:

Manufacturers of a few automatic washers suggest methods of washing feather pillows in their machines. Obtain exact instructions from the maker of your washer if you want to try it. Otherwise the venture may come to grief and your washing machine wind up with a lot of feathers in its vital parts. There is also danger of breaking and matting feathers.

If you can't get exact instructions from the home service department of the manufacturer, them first to a porous bag twice the size of the original ticking. (Baste openings of bags together to transfer feathers.) Sew opening of large bag shut and immerse in a large container of mild, lukewarm suds. Squeeze water and suds gently through feathers until clean. Rinse thoroughly in two or more clear waters. Hang bag on line in sun and wind if possible. Choose a dry, windy day so feathers will dry quickly. Or hang bag in a warm place and turn an electric fan on it. If feathers stay wet, they develop an odor. When dry, transfer to old freshly laundered ticking or to new one.

I have two vinegar jugs given to me by my mother. They are oil painted in a swirling mixed color effect. At the time she gave them to me she described briefly the manner in which they were painted; dipped in water with oil paints dropped on the top of the water, they were then twisted slowly to give a swirling effect. I would like to do this type of painting on several vinegar jug lamps I have. Could you give the directions, materials used and treatment of the glass, if any, in your column? M. L. L.

This process you mention seems to be the one sometimes used to decorate construction paper and to give a marbelized effect to Easter eggs. Although I haven't located anyone who has used the process on glass bottles, I see no reason why it would not give the effect you wish. Here is the method: Fill with water a large container, which is wide and deep enough to immerse the bottle. On the surface of the water, drop oil paints. By using bright colors in combination, you can achieve interesting effects. When all the colors you wish to use have been dropped onto the water, give them a minute or so to spread, then gently swirl the water with a stick or finger until the effect you wish is achieved. A little experimenting will show you just how much swirling of the water you should do. Now, immediately place the clean, dry bottle in the water, turning it gently so that the oil comes in contact with all sides. When marbelized, remove the bottle from the water and set upon a paper towel to dry. To marbelize paper, lay the dry sheet of construction paper onto the water which has the oil paints floating on top. Leave it there only an instant and then remove and spread on a flat surface, unpainted side down to dry.

Will you kindly tell me how to remove the yellow cast on my ice box? I have had all new cabinets put in my kitchen, and now my refrigerator looks yellow. H. B. C.

I'm afraid there isn't too much which can be done to improve the appearance of your ice box. Possibly, if you will add two tablespoons of household bleach to each quart of water in which you wash the refrigerator, the color will be lightened in time. Be sure to rinse the refrigerator well after washing with the bleach.

My baby has received a porringer that is a reproduction of a colonial style. Instead of pewter, an alloy was used which has the lustre of pewter but is not supposed to tarnish or scratch as easily. I serve the baby cereal from the dish but since adding an egg yolk to his cereal, I have noticed the dish is darkening in spots. How can I remove them? M. K.

A good silver polish should easily and quickly remove this discoloration.

Could you tell me if there is any store in Washington which sells the attachments to convert an ordinary vinegar jug into a table lamp? M. L. L.

A lamp shop on G st. sells the equipment you wish. Call them at National 0140.

I have a mahogany salad bowl that is badly gummed up inside and out with old salad oil. Can you tell me how to remove this gummy substance? I have tried hot water and soapsuds, with no luck. S. J.

Dust the bowl lightly with fine kitchen scouring powder and go over it, inside and out with a stiff brush. This should remove any oil which has not come off with washing. When all the surface has been cleaned, wash the bowl with mild soapsuds and warm water, and dry very thoroughly to prevent warping.

The reader who recently wrote to ask about removing lint from dark wool clothing may be interested in my method: I wrap Scotch tape around my hand with the sticky side out (four or five rows) and either pat or brush the clothing lightly with it, using inside or outside of hand. For large articles it sometimes takes two "mitts" to do a thorough job. R. C.

I have a number of white silk blouses which are beginning to yellow. Is there any way to prevent or remove this? If I dye them to pastel colors, will the yellow show? M. S. B.

You can probably get that yellowing out by soaking the blouses in a solution of sodium perborate and soapy water. Use 4 tablespoons perborate (you can buy it at a drug store) to 1 pint of soapy water. Let blouses soak in this mixture 20 or 30 minutes, then rinse thoroughly.

If you prefer tinting the blouses to bleaching, do so by all means. Unless the yellowing is uneven and very pronounced, you should be able to do a nice tinting job with home dyes.

Would you tell me how to cure a new aluminum frying pan? H. H.

Thoroughly coat the inside of the frying pan with an unsalted vegetable shortening. Place on very low heat on top of stove or put into oven with temperature set at 250 degrees. Leave on heat or in oven for several hours, renewing the fat as it is absorbed. Allow to cool with fat on it and wipe away excess with a paper towel.

My father has a black leather billfold which is covered with mildew. Is there any way to remove the mildew without harm to the leather? L. J. J.

There really isn't much which can be done to remove mildew from leather other than washing the article in mild soap and water. If the mildew is removed by washing, then go over the billfold well with a good leather preservative. Since mildew is a fungus, it may have penetrated so that no surface preparation will remove it and the article is beyond restoring.

How can I remove white cloudy spots from the top of my maple vanity, caused by spilling toilet water? Will I have to have the whole top refinished? A. B. S.

Probably wiping the wood with a cloth which has been dampened with camphorated oil will remove the cloudy appearance. Several applications may be necessary before the cloudiness completely disappears. When the cloudiness is gone, give the piece a good waxing with furniture wax or the new automobile wax which comes in maple color.

Baby's Place Is Home in Bed Not at Movies

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

People ask me frequently if I think it is "terrible" to take their babies to night movies. Yes, I do. I've always thought so. Thirty years ago, the 3d of May, I wrote my first newspaper column. And what do you think was its subject?—"Night Owl Babies!" I deplored the practice of making babies the victims of their parents' recreation and I deplore it today.

This isn't because I am unsympathetic with the need of parents for recreation. I have been a parent, had no help and I know all the longings of a young person to get away from her babies, dear as they are. But I think a baby needs his sleep more than a parent needs this particular type of recreation. And if she or he must have it, then he must get it with the aid of a sitter, or an accommodating relative, to sit in the house with the baby; or separately with father or mother doing sitter duty. Not ideal, of course, but better than nothing.

Babies do not belong in movie houses. They are dark-noisy or bright-noisy, and neither one is a place for sleep. All of them are not well aired, some are too hot. Babies have to be held in arms, which is not a comfortable way for a baby to sleep.

Babies get punished for being babies when they make a noise and disturb the paying patrons. And yet the baby is not interested: it is he who is being disturbed and prevented from doing the thing he wants to do, which is to sleep.

When the child is old enough to want to stay awake and see the picture; it will be, inevitably, a picture unsuitable to him. While small children get little of the content of a picture, the action may be exciting, and the excitement is enough to keep the child awake. It develops a desire for more and more excitement of the same type and makes the child progressively unable to engage in play of his own, which can match the excitement of this artificial amusement.

MEN
READ CAREFULLY
Thursday, May 20, at 1 p.m. sharp I want to talk with 26 men who are really ambitious in securing a position that will give them steady employment the year round. In other words, there are no laying off periods and consistent income is the income that really counts. It doesn't matter what your past employment has been, study and learn as we teach you our work. It will also be necessary that you be willing to get along on $75-$85 week for the first 4 to 6 weeks while learning our work.
You must also be able to give the names of 3 people who will vouch for your honesty and integrity. We prefer men who are married or men who have some source of responsibility.
I would also like to talk to a few men who are mechanically inclined and who know a good thing when they see it.
Therefore, if you are honest and of good character and a willing worker, and neat in appearance, come in and talk with me.

The Unseen Audience

THE FAMILY SCRAPBOOK

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Do You Jump to Conclusions?

Have you heard this story? Johnny had been a little disorderly now and then when he visited his friends' houses. So when he was invited to a party, his mother said, "Johnny, if you get sent home early from Mary's party I'm going to tend to you." Within half an hour after he left, Johnny returned with a scowl on his face. His mother was furious and sent him up to his room to wait her coming. When she had cooled off a little, she climbed the stairs and entered.

"Johnny, tell me the truth now. Why did Mrs. Jones send you home? Can't you act nicely just once?" "Aw, gee, Maw," said Johnny, "you're always blaming me. That dopey old party was yesterday!"

Somehow or other—and far too often—we parents and teachers, too, seem to expect the worst from our children. It pays to take a little time to be sure we are seeing things straight.

Bill Rushes to 'Defense' Of Women Drivers

A recent headline in The Washington Post brings a bitter complaint from Jean B. Bryan of 1729 Lanier pl. nw.

The headline said: "Trolley Car Injures Man; Woman Driver Hits Light Pole."

Jean objects that we shouldn't identify women drivers who have accidents unless we also carry a sex identification when men are at fault.

"You'll notice," she says caustically, "that it was a woman who hit the light pole, but a streetcar of undetermined sex which caused the other accident."

Jean is so right. It's utterly unfair to to use deceitful journalistic tricks to imply that:

Women drivers are incompetent, undependable, erratic, unmindful of other traffic, unskilled, inexperienced—and just plain rotten drivers.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Last Thursday's Washington Post carried a story which said:

"In the average day, the average man has 216,000 words to say—nearly four times more words than you'll find in the customary novel."

If the poor devil rattles off 200 words per minute, which is a pretty stiff pace, he'd click off 12,000 per hour.

And it would take him 18 full hours of continuous gab to total 216,000 for the day.

Thomas B. Hudson
Holmes Run rd.
Falls Church, Va.

Dear Tom:

The story was written by a syndicate man, Anthony Slade, who will now probably listen to 216,000 well-chosen words from his editor.

Bill.

REFRAIN (FROM SINGING)

Many a song sonorous
Ends on a note of pain
When folks join in the chorus
Though clearly it's scored:
"refrain."

MISCELLANY

Evelyn R. Mudd of 329 Longfellow st. nw., reports that a muzzled dog strayed into her yard the other day, and appeared to be thirsty. So Mrs. Mudd offered him a pan of water, and the dog went to work on it. After a few minutes of watching his efforts to lap it up, Mrs. Mudd's young daughter observed: "I think he'd be able to drink better, mommy, if you'd take off his 'puzzle'" . . . Dorothy W. Coulter of 811 21st st. nw., can get that obsolete 25-B-8 radio tube she wants by writing to the National Radio Service, 2105 Wickham ave., Newport News, Va. . . . Mrs. E. F. Hayes of Homoja Village, Annapolis, Md., wants to know the formal title of the song we all know as "Ta-rah-rah-boom-de-ay" . . . District Liner B. A. Bergman, who has just moved to Philadelphia to pursue his duties with Publicker Industries, writes that he's having his troubles these days. It seems there is great confusion in the public's mind between Kinsey, Alfred C., and Kinsey, 86.8 proof, which is one of Publicker's best whiskey brands. And to make matters worse, Alfred Kinsey's publishers are also located in Philadelphia. "The result is," moans Bergman, "that we not only get some of the publisher's mail, but our own is constantly filled with complaints from dealers who want to know why haven't we received a copy of your new promotion booklet, the Kinsey Report'?"

Listen to Bill Gold each noon, Monday through Saturday, over WINX (1340) and WINX-FM (96.3).

NEW YORK.—Andrei Gromyko, who announced yesterday that he was returning to Russia for a new assignment, denied the story when he was questioned about it a few months ago. He told some newspapermen at the U. N.: "'Gromyko Returning?' That may be—but he hasn't told me about it yet" . . . The dour Soviet official was unnerved only once at the U. N.—that was when he was slapped on the back, heard "How ya doin', kid?" and turned to face Frank Sinatra . . . Bernard Baruch said that he and Gromyko had no difficulty in achieving a meeting of their minds. "Gromyko says no, I say no," said Baruch, "and we understand each other perfectly."

The annual poll by the Woman's Home Companion, to select the favorite movie actors and actresses, was won by Ingrid Bergman and Bing Crosby. Greer Garson and Gregory Peck were voted second place.

Betty Smith's new novel, "Tomorrow Will Be Better," will have the biggest prepublication printing in the history of Harper's fiction department—100,000 copies.

The Communist riots and picketing of the Roxy, where "The Iron Curtain" is being shown, is in strange contrast with the performance of Simonov's anti-American play, "The Russian Question," in 2000 theaters throughout Russia without a single complaint . . . Rinehart's publication presses are working overtime to meet the demand for "The Naked and the Dead," hailed as one of the great war novels.

A new film project will entail the release of one movie a week for the deaf and hard-of-hearing. There will be captions in many languages to encompass the world-wide market . . . Another educational project for the deaf and the 10 million Americans who need hearing instruments will have one portion of a television reel without sound, and with the performers facing the camera and speaking slowly to make lip-reading easier . . . The new children's album, "Little Songs on Big Subjects," will delight children everywhere.

Gas Lobby Fights Appointment

By Drew Pearson

It looks as if the Nation's gas bill was going to be boosted after all. After first taking a defeat, the gas lobby, by some slick parliamentary sleight-of-hand, later scored a victory which may affect every housewife using natural gas.

Olds

The public is aware of the fact that the Senate Commerce Committee first slapped down the Moore-Rizley bill by a 9-to-4 vote. This bill would have taken 75 million dollars annually out of the pockets of gas consumers.

But what the public doesn't realize is that most features of the bill could be administered into law by the Federal Power Commission, now split 50-50 on the Moore-Rizley principles. Commissioners Nelson Lee Smith and Harrington Wimberly have lined up with the natural gas lobby, but Commissioners Leland Olds and Claude Draper have vigorously opposed the big pipeline owners. This means the fifth commissioner, Thomas Buchanan, now waiting confirmation by the Senate, holds the balance of power.

As a member of the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission for eight years, Buchanan carried on a fearless fight against the big power and gas interests. Now they are moving heaven and earth to block him from taking a seat on the Federal Power Commission.

Here is how they have been able to do it so far, inside the Senate Commerce Committee:

Battle of Maine Senators

Senator Owen Brewster, Maine Republican and a friend of the utility interests moved to send the nomination back to a special subcommittee for further study. This would have delayed action until after November—when a Republican President, if elected, could pick his own man.

"This," protested Pennsylvania Democratic Sen. Francis Myers, "is just subterfuge to delay this nomination so it will never reach the calendar or else come up too late."

A rollcall vote was taken, and to everyone's surprise Chairman Wallace White, Maine Republican, sided with Myers. Stunned, Brewster, also a Maine Republican, blurted out: "You gave me your word this morning!"

"When you talked to me very briefly over the telephone this morning at my house, I was not fully conversant with the facts," explained White, who has a reputation for upholding the public interest. "I assume the blame for the misunderstanding."

Parliamentary Tricks

Brewster came back with another parliamentary trick—a motion to rule out proxies. Since the only two proxies were held by the Democrats for Senators Tom Stewart of Tennessee and Ernest McFarland of Arizona, this would have given Brewster a majority. However, all his tricks to sidetarck the nomination were halted temporarily.

At this point, Senator Ed Martin, Pennsylvania Republican, was permitted to make a statement before the committee. Under pressure from the power and gas lobby, Martin had obediently brought in two witnesses against Buchanan at the original hearings; but, under cross-examination, their testimony had backfired.

Now Martin claimed he had been "approached by several Senators from other States" who wanted him to "talk to several people" as possible witnesses.

Backing up Martin, Indiana Republican Homer Capehart resurrected Brewster's motion for a special subcommittee to study Buchanan's nomination.

Caught in this dilemma, Myers agreed not to object to further study by a subcommittee, provided a time limit of two weeks was set for reporting out Buchanan's nomination. He wrung out this concession from Brewster, but the utility-minded Senator from Maine won the final round. He was able to load the subcommittee with two Moore-Rizley supporters—Homer Capehart of Indiana and Albert Hawkes of New Jersey.

Mississippi's unreformed rebel, Congressman John Rankin, was seen overlooking a statue of Gen. U. S. Grant the other day in the Capitol's Hall of Fame.

A passer-by who recognized the die-hard Southerner asked why he was admiring General Grant.

"I am just checking," snorted Rankin, "to see whether he has more stars than General Lee."

Note—Both Civil War generals wore three stars.

War veterans got another kick in the pants the other day when 23 vice presidents of steel companies vetoed the allocation of 60,000 tons of steel for prefabricated housing. This means that veteran cooperatives, formed to finance prefabricated housing developments, will have to fold up or go in for the more expensive conventional houses.

The 23 steel vice presidents are members of a so-called steel products advisory committee to Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer which passes on volunteer steel allocations under a law passed by Congress last year.

The steel moguls pointed out that prefabricated houses require four times as much steel as conventional homes built of wood, brick, etc.

Note—The American Veterans Committee has made a vigorous protest to Congress about the steel magnates' action.

No one man

No man is indispensable . . . To any job or trade . . . No matter how remarkable . . . May be his mental grade . . . Because there are so many men . . . With special qualities . . . That there are always substitutes . . . To fill the vacancies . . . There may be some abilities . . . That are considered rare . . . And there may be those geniuses . . . We think we cannot spare . . . But when we find we have to do . . . Without a certain one . . . There still is some successful way . . . To get the project done . . . No man is so important or . . . So clever and so strong . . . That no one else could take his place . . . To help the world along.
